THE HEATHEN OF THE CONGO.

SHALL AMERICAN BAPTISTS LEAVE THEM TO FETISH WORSHIP?

Is Mission Work Too Perilous?—A Good Deal of Talk Since Dr. Judson's Report—To be Discussed by the Ministers To-day.

A special meeting of the Baptist Ministers' Conference is to be held to-day in the Twenty-third Street Baptist Church to discuss the condition of the Congo mission, concerning which there has been much heartburning among the brethren for a month past. The mission was founded by the Rev. H. Grattan Guinness, a wealthy Baptist minister, who had a training school for missionaries in London. He put $250,000 into the mission, and, finding it flourishing as a mission beyond his means to support it, he conceived the notion of turning the mission over to the American Baptists through their American Baptist Missionary Society, with headquarters at Boston, and the Rev. Dr. Murdock as its President. The Rev. Mr. Gratton Guinness and his wife came to America two years ago, visited leading Baptist ministers and laymen, and the result was that the Rev. Dr. Murdock and the Rev. Dr. Crane, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Boston, were appointed a committee at the May anniversaries in Saratoga, 1884, to investigate the subject without going to the Congo mission. On their report the missions were taken under the wing of the Americans.

Soon after the Congo mission was adopted there appeared the reports of travellers from the Congo valley, which made the valley a death trap. What with jungle fevers, wild beasts, and the ferocity of the natives, men, it was said, took their lives in their hands who went there. Statistics were given which caused the American Baptists to hold up their hands and wonder whether they had not made a big mistake in assuming the sustenance of the mission. Forthwith at the last May anniversaries in Saratoga the Rev. Drs. Edward Judson and A. Loughridge were appointed a committee to proceed at once to the Congo mission to investigate its condition, and to organize churches and ordain ministers. The committee had its expenses paid to and from New York. It did not visit the Congo valley, or run the risk of encountering rearing lions, jungle fevers, or rampant natives. The Rev. Dr. Judson is a son of the Rev. Dr. Adoniram Judson, who was formerly a missionary to Burmah and other Eastern countries. The Rev. Dr. Judson is the pastor of the Berean Baptist Church in this city. He cabled to President Murdock from London that it would be a very dangerous trip up the Congo, and that the country seemed to be so unhealthy in many ways that perhaps the committee had better not go. President Murdock cabled back nobly, "Go to the Congo."

This did not meet with the Rev. Dr. Judson's approval. He and the Rev. Dr. Loughridge returned to New York much benefited by the sea voyage and a sojourn in London, and handed in to the officers of the American Missionary Society in Boston a report discouraging further attempts to convert the heathen in the unhealthy Congo valley. This report was to have been made known to the great Baptist denomination at the coming May anniversaries in Saratoga, but the Rev. Dr. Judson showed a friend a copy of his report, and the substance of it was published in a denominational weekly newspaper. Recently there arrived in New York from the Congo valley the Rev. Dr. Sims, a missionary who proceeded to deny that there was sufficient reason for abandoning the mission, and who affirmed in meetings of Baptist ministers that money which had been asked for for the support of the mission and which had been withheld should be granted, and who affirmed that he had spent three and a half years in the Congo valley and its vicinity without detriment to his health, though he often slept all night on the ground; that nearly all who found the climate injurious lacked caution; that the natives were of the most promising kind, having no religion but a belief in fetishes, and that the stories about roving lions searching for live missionary were bungaboo tales. The American Presbyterians, he pointed out, have had a mission in the same latitude for forty years, and do not dream of giving it up.

Meanwhile the mission languishes on account of its hot and cold treatment by American Baptists. It is expected that at the meeting to-day the subject will be freely discussed and that the Rev. Dr. Judson and Missionary Sims will speak.

LOOKING AT OUR CABLES.

Boston Aldermen Stop in New York on the Way to Philadelphia.

Twelve members of the Boston Board of Aldermen stopped in this city over Saturday while on their way to inspect the street car system of Philadelphia. Henry F. Coe, the first to arrive, reached the Murray Hill Hotel on Thursday evening. Messrs. Thomas H. Hart, P. J. Donovan, Michael Barr, P. F. Maguire, Charles M. Bostwick, John H. Sullivan, Samuel J. Capen, and William P. Carroll, and City Clerk A. H. Peters reached here on Friday night, while W. G. Smith and Charles Morton, who came by Sound boat, were detained, and did not get here until 11½ o'clock Saturday.

The Aldermen had intended to visit only the Brooklyn Bridge, but, learning that there was a cable railroad in this city, they decided to inspect it. Early Saturday morning they telephoned to the depot at Tenth avenue and 130th street that they were coming there. The Superintendent then telephoned to the office of the Third Avenue Railroad Company, which operates the Tenth Avenue Cable road, and President Lewis Lyon and Superintendent J. H. Robertson hurried over to meet them. The Bostonians reached the cable depot about 11 o'clock, and were shown over the building and inspected the machinery and the roadbed. They then took a special car to 186th street, the northern terminus of the road. On their way down the party stopped at the High Bridge Hotel, at 174th street and Tenth avenue, for lunch. At 2 o'clock the Aldermen, under the leadership of Col. Pain, went down to visit the bridge. They went to Philadelphia by the 5 o'clock train.

They are to report on a system of rapid transit for Boston, and were greatly pleased with the cable system in operation up town and on the bridge.

WHAT TO DO IF A MAN HITS YOU.

It Won't Do to Offer Your Other Cheek, According to the New Light Ethics.

Felix Adler spoke to the Society for Ethical Culture in Chickering Hall yesterday on "Our Enemies—How They Can Help Us." He wrestled with the question "If A strikes B, what is B to do?" and said the idea that Christ had of turning the other cheek was impracticable. It might do with some villains who had a spark of conscience left, but not with hardened characters.

"My idea is not that we should love our enemies, that is impossible, but that we should be physicians to our enemies. A person who has wronged me is morally sick—the greater the wrong the greater the illness. It is our duty to cure them, and it will require all sorts of methods."

He explained that if a man hits you the thing to do is to hold his hands until he gets over wanting to hit you again. Then take him gently. If the man who hits you is too violent, cure him by calling a policeman. He said that anger, which was responsible for almost all enmities, is due to a diminished sense of self-importance, and that one lesson to learn ourselves and teach our enemies is that it is possible that some other men are superior to ourselves.

Wanted to See the Driver's License.

John Bell, a driver on the Broadway Surface road, jumped on the front platform of a Third avenue car on Saturday evening and quarrelled with the driver. Michael McLaughlin, because he had not slowed up. Then he asked to see McLaughlin's driver's license, and, as McLaughlin could not show it, caused his arrest. McLaughlin said that he had a license, and Capt. Ryan sent him home to find it. The license could not be found. In the Yorkville Police Court yesterday he still insisted that he had a license, but did not produce it. Bell couldn't prove that McLaughlin didn't have one, and the case was dismissed. The licenses say on their face that the drivers must carry them with them, and produce them when required. The penalty of driving without one is $25.

A Pistol Shot Move him To.

Detectives Doyle and Lewis of the Central Office tried to play the part of peacemakers when they found a fight in progress at Third avenue and Ninth street late Saturday night. One of the combatants turned upon them and knocked Detective Doyle down. Then he pulled out a pistol and menaced Detective Lewis with it as he began to run away. Lewis in turn drew his pistol and shot the runaway in the leg. The man then surrendered. He said he was John McCullough of Boston.

He was removed to Bellevue Hospital, while John Witt, another of the fighters, was locked up in the Fifth street station. Witt was fined $5 for disorderly conduct in the Essex Market Police Court yesterday.

The Wolf Family Gave Chase.

Mrs. Rachel Wolf of 264 East Broadway was shocked on Saturday evening by the intelligence, communicated in breathless haste by little Annie Cohen, that a man was running away with the baby carriage. Mrs. Wolf gave chase. Mr. Wolf followed, and Zachariah Hudson, the culprit, was caught with the stolen property a few feet from the house. Hudson showed fight, but was overpowered by superior numbers, and Justice Duffy held him yesterday at Essex Market Police Court for trial.

Tumbled Into the Cellar Next Door.

While making his way to his home at 541 West Fifteenth street early yesterday, John Diamond fell down the stairs leading from the street to the cellar of the adjoining house. He was picked up in an unconscious condition later in the day, and sent to the Roosevelt Hospital. He is supposed to have been intoxicated when he fell.

BRUNETTI DIDN'T WANT A COAT.

But a Man who Doesn't Want a Coat had Better Shun Baxter Street.

Casino Brunetti, a tailor, who lives at 131 Mott street, passed through Baxter street on Saturday afternoon and was set upon by Samuel Johanson, lately of the London prize ring, now puller-in for Mr. Meyer Levy of 46 Baxter street.

"Can't I show you a fine sample of overcoats, gentleman?" Mr. Johnson said.

Mr. Brunetti knew for certain that he did not want Mr. Johnson to show him Mr. Levy's overcoats, but he had not sufficient force of character to say so, and he hesitated. Mr. Johnson took advantage of this, and bowled him into the middle of Mr. Levy's store, where salesman Soloman Japperinsky and his assistant, Nathan Cohen, whisked off Brunetti's faded coat, and in a jiffy had on one from an immense pile exposed upon the counter.

Assistant Nathan Cohen danced around Mr. Brunetti, rubbing down the coat where it was creased, and praising its excellencies. Meyer Levy stood around and helped Assistant Nathan Cohen.

"Never was such a vine goat gone out of my stores before," Mr. Levy remarked. "Shentlemans you can have the coat dirt scheap, seventeen tollar. I lose money, but I make rooms for my new spring goods."

Jappernisky, Cohen, and Levy talked volubly, and when Assistant Cohen said he would wrap up the coat, Brunetti did not reply. Cohen wrapped it up all the same. Brunetti had no money, and was getting very uncomfortable indeed. Levy asked:

"Shentlemans, vere vill I deliver it?" Brunetti gave his address, saying he would pay for the coat on delivery, and started off. He was passing 14 Baxter street, which is one of the six stores that Harris Cohen owns, when Samuel Banner, Cohen's new puller-in, seized him, and ran him into the middle of the store without ceremony. Salesman Simon Rubinstein took charge of Brunetti, and was putting a coat upon him, when Brunetti modestly said, "But I have no money."

"What you means, you tief?" a very fat woman said, drawing nigh Brunetti with one hand concealed underneath her apron.

"Don't strike the lady, sir," Salesman Rubinstein cried out to poor Brunetti.

Brunetti turned toward Rubinstein and somebody behind him dealt him a blow on the back of the head with a club, and he fell upon the floor. More clubs hit him across the arms and body, and young boys who came pouring in from everywhere jumped on him. He was hustled out into the street. In a little while he had Policeman Farrington arrest Banner.

In the Tombs Court yesterday morning Banner tried to tell Justice Patterson that there never was such a quiet place as Baxter street is now. "Everybody minds his own business and lets the public pass."

"Oh, yes, you do, a lot," said Justice Patterson. "My clerk, Mr. McKeon, and I were going through Baxter street recently, and came near being mobbed because we would not listen to you pullers-in. I am going to make you let people alone some time or other."

Banner was held in bail for trial.

Brunetti was leaving the Tombs when a little boy carrying a big bundle came up and said:

"Shentlemans, if you please, I vas bel your house all night mit der goat you buy at Mr. Levy's. I go home mit you now."

Mr. Brunetti told the boy to go back and say to Mr. Levy that he did not want his coat.

"Mebbe Mr. Levy vill make some deductions," began the boy.

The other Baxter street clothiers now came out of the Tombs with Banner, who had been called by Harris Cohen, and Brunetti thought he had better get home, and he made tracks.

MISS VIOLA MAY'S FRIENDS.

One Stabbed and Another Badly Beaten and Locked Up for Trial.

Henry F. Shortell, a young bartender, and Miss Viola May, who sings at Harry Hill's, walked into the Prince street police station at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. Shortell had five knife wounds in his left arm, which he said had been inflicted by Henry J. Hardy. The wounds were dressed, and Shortell started to escort Miss Viola May to her home at 180 Varick street. He left her at the door and turned to go away, when Miss Viola May called him back and said that Hardy was in her room. Shortell knocked Hardy down, blacked both his eyes, and kicked him. Hardy ran away.

Later Hardy was arrested on a charge of felonious assault, preferred by Shortell, who said that he had come behind him in the street, and cut him with a pocket knife. At Jefferson Market Hardy said that he was a clerk, 19 years old, and a brother of Dr. Hardy, the lunacy expert. He gave 180 Varick street as his residence. He said that he had met Miss Viola May, who was an old friend of his, in a restaurant in the Bowery, and there arranged to take her home. On the way he was attacked by two men, one of whom was Shortell. He denied the stabbing.

Hardy was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

FOR FEEBLE LITTLE ONES.

For many enfeebling complaints to which children are subjected DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, used medicinally, in the hands of parents and nurses, never fails, on account of its absolute purity and efficacy, in effecting a cure.

Mr. J. A. RINGROSE, 174 Battery av., Baltimore, Md., writes: "My twin babies of 5 months old had suffered with pains since their birth, at times having their limbs to draw up and become stiff, expecting them to go into convulsions. These pains were caused, no doubt, by irregularity of bowels, the children becoming emaciated. After trying treatment of local remedies, as well as medical treatment, without avail, and with the loss of rest to myself and wife, we thought it impossible to save the little ones, and, as a last resort, we resolved to try one bottle of your Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. We are glad we did. The result was wonderful; it relieved the babies at once, producing a natural, quiet sleep, relieving them of wind pain, restoring their bowels to a normal condition, thriving wonderfully. While generally opposed to intoxicating liquors as a medical preparation, I don't think your Malt Whiskey can be beat."

Mr. A. J. MERRILL, Editor the Ledger, Pocomoke, Md., writes: "I have been using your Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in my family for a long time. I got it originally for a delicate child. Have given it to her. She is to-day in the best of health, and as hearty as any child of her age. I attribute her present good health entirely to your excellent whiskey."

Mrs. H. E. FAIRALL, Professional Nurse, 61 N. Bond st., Baltimore, Md., writes: "I first practically tested the merits of your Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in the case of two sickly and debilitated children, who were weak and puny at birth. In less than three months, by the use of it, they were big, fat, and healthy as any children I have ever seen. Another instance wherein the most remarkable results were obtained was the case of a child hopelessly ill, and given up to die by the attending physician. I used your Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, combined with milk, and in one month the child was entirely cured. I could mention hundreds of cases where I could safely say it has saved life."

Mrs. C. HART, 165 Wilmot av., Chicago, Ill., writes: "In case any of my children ever becomes sick, I always keep your Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey on hand. Told my physician, and he said he used it in his practice. I will recommend it."

Philadelphia, Pa. (108 Morris st.)

Gentlemen: One of our little ones is afflicted with soreness of the chest, and we have built her up and she has been greatly benefited by the use of your Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in the form of milk punch.

JOHN BRUGAM.

Mr. WM. PETERSON, Camden, N. J., whose baby was very much enfeebled, writes: "In the use of the Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and Consumption Cure the baby is now getting along all right."

Horses, Carriages, &c.

PETER C. KELLOGG & CO. will hold a SPECIAL AUCTION SALE of SEVENTY-FIVE HORSES, Superior and fresh from the country, THURSDAY, Feb. 25, 1886, at 10 o'clock, at The American Horse Exchange (limited), Broadway and 50th st., New York. Office 1:27 John st.

Including horses suited to almost every purpose; matched carriage pairs, roadsters, several that are fast, business and work horses, family horses, saddle horses, &c., all young, sound, fives and six years. These horses are selected by Mr. Thomas Evers, head of the Horse Department, Union Stock Yards Stables, Chicago, Ill. (represented at the Exchange by Mr. James Carroll), as best suited to the wants of this market, from thousands that collect at that great centre.

Twenty of average quality, representing each class, will be sold positively, without protection, if they bring no more than a ten-dollar note; but after 20 are sold the owners reserve the right to withdraw any or all the remainder if prices are too low. This third experimental sale is to test the feasibility of profitably marketing fresh Western horses here instead of waiting for auctions exclusively. On previous occasions we sold more than the market under, allowing the audience to choose which should be put up, and every horse put up was sold, no matter how low. All who attended will testify that the stock was very superior. It is our aim to maintain, in this and all respects, the confidence of buyers. Not one complaint has yet been made against horses sold in the two former sales. Very few of them have yet brought cost, and several were quickly resold by speculators at a profit.

The object of again sacrificing a stated number, if necessary, is to convince buyers for use and dealers of the advantage and economy of supplying themselves through a reliable auction system here instead of searching country markets. It is hoped that popular support will finally yield a small profit, so that large numbers can be brought on from the Union Stock Yards for immediate auction in place of the slower private sale system.

The horses may be seen at any time at the Exchange. Catalogues, also, at 107 John st.
