A BIG LIFT TO THE FUND.

NEARLY $2,100 MORE SENT TO THE SUN TO HELP THE HOME RULERS.

Father McGlynn Collects $650—Newburgh Again Adds to her Already Big Subscription—The County Tyrone Association Does Good Work, Too—$600 Collected at Kingston—The Sun's Fund Now $21,512.63.

The patriotic readers of THE SUN who believe in home rule and want to see a Parliament in Dublin city that will give Ireland such home rule sent along another generous pile of money yesterday to help push the great cause to success. A large part of the subscriptions yesterday were received in great stacks of greenbacks and mounds of shining silver, and before the day was half gone THE SUN'S fund passed the $20,000 mark with a rush. Twenty thousand dollars is a good deal of money, but the thousands of readers who have spared it from their purses have the satisfaction of knowing that money was never put to a more patriotic use. It afforded very great aid in the battle that Parnell and his men are fighting to win for Ireland her right of self-government, and the money that follows in this last week of the contest cannot help being of service, even though Gladstone meets a repulse at the polls. It will be used to support the champions of Irish freedom when they arm for another encounter for their country in the English Parliament.

The parishioners of St. Stephen's Church, in East Twenty-eighth street, held a great meeting in behalf of the cause of Irish constitutional liberty last week, and yesterday, as a result of the liberal spirit that marked the meeting, Father McGlynn, who presided, turned in to Chairman Eugene Kelly of the Parliamentary Committee, through THE SUN, a check for $650. He started the subscription that reached this handsome figure with his own personal contribution of $100. These clergymen and laymen followed his patriotic lead:

The Home Rulers who are employed in the big Central Park Department Buildings, at Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth street and Seventh avenue, very appropriately selected Independence Day as the occasion for contributing to the home rule cause. Superintendent Clifton Wharton Clifton transmitted to Eugene Kelly yesterday, through THE SUN, $135.50, which was the total of the contributions made by the employes. It was received with this little message, dated July 4:

We feel we can, in no finer manner, commemorate this glorious day than by doing what we can to help our Ireland peacefully that which America was forced to fight for a hundred years ago.

The Gothamites who belong to the County Tyrone Association believe in Parnell and his method of securing justice for old Erin. Yesterday one of their number brought $34.72 in one big pile of greenbacks and silver to THE SUN office, and asked to have it sent to Parnell's treasurers to help the gallant home rule fight. This complimentary message came with the bundle of money:

The County Tyrone Association of New York city has been watching with pride the noble and successful efforts of THE SUN in aid of Parnell and his gallant followers. And to show which side they are loyal to they hand into THE SUN Parnell Parliamentary fund $34.72, collected by a committee who cheerfully volunteered to assist in the good work.

Editor John O'Donnell of the Jamaica, L. I., Herald is a Home Ruler whose enthusiasm for the cause takes the form of taking off his coat and working like a beaver. Yesterday he brought to THE SUN office $154 that had been collected in the town, and cheerily said that there was more to follow. State Senator John Oakley and District Attorney Fleming were among those who joined him in subscribing to the list:

John O'Donnell, $25; John Fleming $25, Cash, $25; James M Oakley, $25; George L. Fox, $5; A. Lefferts, $10; the Rev. A. Farley, $5; Martin Cassidy, $2; Thomas Campion, $1; John Fitzgerald, $2; William Gregory, $2; Bernard Kelly, $1; M. J. Kelly, $1; M. Kelly, $2; Ambrose Hayes, $2; Charles Bulmer, $1; John J. The Irish-American townspeople of Kingston, N. Y., who are always wide awake and working hard when the question of the hour is aiding old Ireland, sent $600 to THE SUN fund yesterday, and said that there was more cash coming after it right away. The money was raised at a rousing meeting of the townspeople, representing all sorts of creeds, politics, and nationalities, held a week ago in the largest hall of the town. Ex-Attorney-General Augustus Schoonmaker presided, and stirring home rule speeches were made by the Rev. James Dougherty of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, the Rev. A. B. Smith of the African M. E. Church, Judge Alton B. Parker, Surrogate D. M. De Witt, and District Attorney A. T. Clearwater. President P. T. Flynn and Committeemen John Madden, David Mulhenland, and Daniel Halloran, who transmitted the money, sent this greeting along with it:

We wish THE SUN God speed in its noble work.

The little son of Fireman Tom Keogh of Engine Company 6 in Jersey City brought $9 to THE SUN office yesterday that the Home Rulers that handle the engine subscribed to help the home rule cause. These were the firemen who gave it:

Michael Hughes, $2; Thomas Keogh, $1; T. H. O'Neil, $1; Bartley Corlis, $1; John Coughlin, $1; John Irain, $1; Thomas Andrews, $1; John Sweeney, $1.

Mrs. P. Kennedy brought $2 to the offices to show that her heart was in the right place in relation to Ireland's struggle for freedom.

Among the home rule twenties of Newark, N. Y., who gave to the $272 purse that Father Penny raised for the cause was David Smith, who was credited with $1 only, because $1 that he sent by mail to make his subscription a round $5 didn't arrive at THE SUN office in time. The $4 came along safely and reached the office yesterday.

The types tried to deprive Park Commissioner John D. Crimmins yesterday of the credit he deserved for securing the big subscription of the Home Rulers of the Park Department by getting his name in THE SUN as William D. Crimmins. THE SUN cheerfully corrects the unintentional error.

Jerry Tighe sent in $5 for the fund and C. J. Miller brought in $50, which he and those other employees at the Astor House had contributed:

C. J. Miller, $5; F. O'Shaughnessy, $5; P. O'Brine, $2; P. H. Cosgrave, $2; Joseph Breen, $2; Belanze, $1; G. M. Richards, $1; M. A. Reilley, $1; Gallagher, $1; H. M. Briggs, $1; J. J. George Kingler & Co. $100; Father Mathew T. A. B. Society of Thomas Falls, N. Y., $16; Sol M. P. Wagina, $10.

The Tammany Hall Home Rulers who belong to the glorious "Old Sixth" district met on Wednesday night in their club rooms, at 518 Grand street, to raise additional funds for Tammany's share in the Parliamentary fund. The Post Geoghegan presided. Senator Edward F. Reilly made a speech. After the speaking, however, the meeting was kept busy recording the names of subscribers to the fund. The Post Geoghegan announced that a final public meeting would be held next Sunday evening, in the basement of St. Rose's Church, Cannon street, when the Rev. Dr. Brennan, ex-School Commissioner Goulding, and others would speak.

The Tammany Home Rulers of the Eighth district will give a great concert in the Windsor Theatre Sunday for the benefit of Tammany's Parliamentary fund. Manager Martin, who is a Tammany brave, has donated the use of the theatre, and Mrs. Parnell will be there to listen to home rule music by the big band of the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

The election return s from England failed to dampen the ardor of the Irish Home Rule club of this city as manifested at its meeting last night. L. J. Calanan reported the arrangements for Bishop O'Farrell's lecture in aid of the Parliamentary fund nearly perfected. The lecture will be given at Pickering Hall next Thursday evening. Mr. Charles A. Dana presiding. Bishop O'Farrell's topic will be "The Hope of the Hour." Tickets were only ready for distribution on Wednesday evening, and last night the proceeds began to roll in. Not only did several gentlemen pay for packages of tickets, but others made application for them, thus giving promise of a large attendance and the realization of a large addition to the fund to secure home rule for Ireland.

The members of the State Assembly from Brooklyn have challenged the members from New York to a friendly game of base ball, the proceeds to be devoted to the Irish Parliamentary fund. Gen. James R. O'Beirne, B. G. Meswyny, and John D. Desmond are making the arrangements.

Five hundred men and women who want to see Ireland have a Government of her own sat in old St. Lawrence Church, in Eighty-fourth street, last night and laughed and wept and applauded while ex-Judge Stephen S. Blake lectured on "Poets and Poetry of Ireland." It was the lecturer's recitation of pathetic gems from Tom Moore that made them weep. They all paid 50 cents each to get into the church, and the money goes to the Parliamentary fund. Fathers Merrick, Moylan, Pete, and Toner sat beside ex-Judge Blake. The lecture was under the direction of Branch 115 of the Irish National League, and Amos J. Cummings presided. He felicitously introduced the ex-Judge. Among those who listened were James P. Farrell, the "Little Napoleon" of the Parliamentary fund, Contractor Henry H. Brown, Bryan G. McSweeny, Dudley Kavanagh, Jeremiah Daly, and Capt. Donohue of the Fire Department. Branch 115 hopes to realize $500 from the lecture when all the returns for tickets are received.

A large and enthusiastic meeting in aid of the Irish Parliamentary fund was held last night at Fisher's Opera House, Fortchester. Judge Dykeman presided, and made an able and witty opening address. The next speaker was the Rev. Father Dunpley of White Plains, who made a masterly speech advocating the Irish cause. The orator of the evening was Lawyer Martin J. Keogh. Naturally an orator of brilliant powers, he never treated a subject better, and never pleaded the cause of a client more earnestly than he did that of Ireland. At the close of the meeting subscriptions aggregating $495 were received and this amount will be largely increased to-day. This sum is exclusive of that realized from the sale of admission tickets, which is at least as much more. Sheriff Duffy came over from White Plains and brought with him $250 contributed toward the cause in that town.

Baxter Went Home a Married Man.

SCRANTON, July 7.—A middle-aged man, accompanied by a sweet faced girl of 18 got off a late train from the West last night and went to the Forrest House. They registered as Mr. Parker and Miss Parker of Greene, whence they came on a honeymoon of two weeks. The young man was very much surprised when David Smith, a grummer of spindles, Mass., and an old friend of Mr. Parker's father, came to the hotel, and his handsome daughter, May, were very anxious to have him recall the hotel. Baxter was not anxious to see Smith, and was very sorry when he was informed that Mr. Parker was desperate he went with Smith to the hotel.

After some conversation the party went to the office of the hotel clerk, and Mr. Baxter told the clerk he wanted a marriage license. Messrs. Parker and Smith sat in the office while the young couple answered the clerk's questions. Mr. Baxter said his occupation was that of clerk and his age was 23. He was very nervous, but Miss Parker was perfectly composed. Then they all went back to the hotel, and Mr. Smith sent for the Rev. Dr. David Spencer, who soon came and married them. Then they had dinner together at 4 o'clock. Mr. Smith gave the groom some friendly advice as they sat at the table. Mr. Smith took the handsome bride on his arm and walked to the dining room. Mr. Baxter and his father-in-law walked behind them. They went to Niagara together on the 2 o'clock train. Mr. Parker, who was married a few years ago, was very sharp when he came, and was in the best of humor.

George F. Slosson's Young Wife Dead.

From the Chicago Herald, July 7.

The many friends of that veteran billiardist, Thomas Hoey, and of that younger exponent of the game, George F. Slosson, will regret to hear of the death of Nellie, daughter of the former and wife of the latter. The young lady was a promising, beautiful, and refined girl of 18 years, and her death came as a great shock to her friends. A wedding bell in North Side society, Mrs. Slosson was married Nov. 25, 1885, and married the billiard champion the 7th inst. She died yesterday afternoon at 4.45 o'clock, leaving an infant not yet a week old.

Is It Not Singular

That consumptives should be the least apprehensive of their own condition, while all their friends are urging and beseeching them to be more cautious about exposing and overtoiling. It may well be considered one of the most alarming evidences of the disease, where the friend is anxious and will not believe that he is in any danger. Reader, if you are in this condition, do not hesitate the only means of recovery. Avoid exposure and fatigue, and, regular as your watch, use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, or Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It has saved thousands who were steadily failing.—Adv.

BASE BALL FOR HOME RULE.

Sullivan Pitches for Barney Martin's Team, and Ellingsworth for the Other Side.

John L. Sullivan, prize fighter, played with the Bernard F. Martin Association yesterday. He did not play with the Martinites as he has played in times past with the genial ponderosity of Paddy Ryan; but he played base ball with them, kindly and gently, winning new admirers for his muscular self, and some dollars for the Parnell fund.

The Bernard F. Martin Association is composed of rugged citizens, who have played a game of ball and drank a keg of beer once a year for years past. For opponents yesterday they had the Tammany Hall General Committee of the Seventh Assembly district, whose members love base ball and beer as much as anybody. No thought of lucre enters the minds of these men. They decided to turn over the gate money to the home rule cause, and to make up for their little shortcomings as players invited Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Joseph Ellingsworth, that other noble fighter, to do their pitching, and delight the crowd that paid. The game, of course, was on the Polo grounds, and of course it was watched by that percentage of our citizenship which appears to have been born just to encourage base ball games.

Sullivan was chosen pitcher by the Bernard F. Martin nine of eleven men, who were thenceforward alluded to as the Sullivans. The General Committee eleven were called the Ellingsworths, after their pitcher, and they went out in the field. With one admiring and undivided voice, the Sullivans said: "Let the big fellow go to bat first," and Mr. Sullivan, dignified and blasé, walked out, bat in hand. He hit the first ball that came along with a whack that was loud and emphatic, and trotted calmly to first base. The crowd had applauded when he went to bat, and it howled when he landed on first.

Such a wonderful thing as making first base got even more applause than it merited. Billy O'Brien, ex-backer of Dominick McCaffrey, and later challenger of that gentleman to a free and easy fight, followed the great John. He sent a ball spinning out into the field, and John the Fighter came trotting around to the home plate. When he landed on it the crowd became enthusiastic, and Sullivan smiled and came as near laughing as he ever does, triumphantly observing:

"Well, I made that run if I never made another."

At this sally every one laughed very loudly, and then became quite convulsed when Mr. Sullivan playfully slapped at Mr. Patterson, who was getting to the bat, with a vigor that rang out over the grounds. Patterson is Paddy Ryan's old manager, sporting celebrities were thick—he did not laugh as heartily as some, but went to bat and got out out. Mr. Stack was put out, Mr. Hackett, ex-champ bicycle rider, was put out, too, and then, with two runs to their credit, the Sullivans entered the field.

To follow that game through all its mazes would be a tedious process, because over fifty runs were made, and the number of errors was suggestive of the sore worry that the players felt in running bases. But a few things will give an idea. The game was beautiful for many reasons. It all centred around John L. A Bernard F. Martin man was sent for two siphons of seltzer. His business was to sit in the shade to keep the seltzer cold, and furnish it to Sullivan only.

It was said that the great man would only pitch two or three innings and then retire. But he pitched the whole nine, and pitched them like a major. He baffled Mouse, the umpire, with his big shoes, and he very frankly told him that Mouse was influenced into giving a particularly unjust decision Sullivan showed signs of keen enjoyment. He pitched wildly on one occasion and sent the ball with awful force against the broad back of Mr. Finck, the biggest man on the Ellingsworth team. In an ordinary game Mr. Finck would have said: "You big chump, who the — are you sluggin'?" and then there would have been a riot. There was no riot on this occasion. Mr. Finck only smiled a faint smile.

Not less interesting even than the great John L. was Mr. Martin, the head of that association. The skill that distinguishes his political career was visible in his base ball playing. His is a ponderous person, and his gait strangely like that of a canal boat in a light breeze, but he stole bases with the skill that was wonderful, and made three runs, while young and active men were being put out all around him.

Sullivan went to the bat five times, made two runs, and was put out three times. Once he was caught out by Ellingsworth. He hit the ball with powerful force, and it cut in a straight line, it was intended never to stop, but Ellingsworth's hands are hardened with fighting, and he caught it, in the words of the admiring throng, "like a bird." Like a bird, with an iron beak, the crowd probably meant, for twelve years ago, when John L. was truly awful, Ellingsworth, the other shining light, played with great skill, and made four runs out of a possible six.

Altogether, the Sullivans made 20 runs, and the Ellingsworths 31 runs. Two kegs of beer were brought in right after the game was over. Mr. Sullivan condescended to drink three glasses first, and pronounced it cool and good beer, which it was. After that there was merry-making, free from formality or restraint.

DR. THEUS TAYLOR CONVICTED.

Found Guilty of Manslaughter in the Second Degree in Shooting Gritman.

In the Queens County Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday, before Judge Cullen, Dr. Theus Taylor was tried for the killing of his hired man, Thaddeus C. Gritman, at Norwood, on the 15th of April last. Many friends of Dr. Taylor, including several ladies, were in the court room. Dr. Taylor was defended by ex-District Attorney Downing and A. N. Weller.

Wilmot Abrams, a farmer of Rockville Centre, testified that he was at Norwood on the day of the shooting. He saw Dr. Taylor shoot at a tomato can on Gritman's head three times. Taylor hit the can twice, but the third bullet struck Gritman in the forehead. Gritman was the first to suggest the shooting. Taylor had the name of being an expert shot. He and Gritman were on good terms at the time of the shooting.

Lawyer Weller opened the case for the defence, and claimed that the shootin was excusable homicide. He said that Dr. Taylor, in shooting at a mark and not at Gritman, did not commit an unlawful act, and did what Davy Crockett and the late Recorder Hackett and other expert shots had done before him many times. Mr. Weller said that Recorder Hackett often shot the ashes from a cigar held in the mouth of a friend. Gritman, he claimed, would not have been killed had he not moved his head.

Alfred Chapman, a young woman residing at Woodsburgh, was called as a witness for the defence. She said she became acquainted with Dr. Taylor two months before the shooting. On April 15 last Dr. Taylor invited her and her sister Mamie to take a ride to Norwood. Gritman went along. They stopped at Rockville Centre, where Gritman placed a bottle on his head and said to Taylor: "Doctor, fire at this." Taylor fired and broke the bottle. At Norwood Gritman and Taylor got out of the carriage, and Gritman said to Taylor: "Show the people that you can hit the mark every time." Dr. Taylor at first refused to shoot, but finally consented, and again broke a bottle on Gritman's head. Subsequently Gritman again asked Dr. Taylor to shoot, but the Doctor said he didn't feel like shooting any more; the witness told Dr. Taylor not to attempt any more shooting, as Gritman's hand was becoming steady. Gritman induced Taylor to shoot again, this time at a silver dollar held between Gritman's fingers. Taylor failed to hit the coin. Dr. Taylor then fired twice at a tomato can on Gritman's head, and hit it both times and then started to get into his carriage. Gritman urged him to take one more shot at the tomato can, and, as he did not have any more cartridges, Gritman gave him one for the last shot. Dr. Taylor took aim and just as he pulled the trigger the tomato can began to slip off Gritman's head, and Gritman, in attempting to balance the can, raised his head and was struck by the bullet in the forehead. Dr. Taylor stood about twenty feet from Gritman when he fired each shot. Taylor drove to Rockville Centre with his wife.

Mamie Chapman corroborated the testimony of her sister, and said she became acquainted with Dr. Taylor a short time before the shooting. She did not know then that he was married.

The jury, after being out about an hour, brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter in the second degree and recommended Dr. Taylor to the mercy of the Court. Dr. Taylor, who was much affected by the verdict, was remanded until this morning for sentence.

A Busy Day for the Soldiers.

NEWPORT, July 8.—This has been the busiest day of the entire encampment for the officers of the Twenty-third Regiment. This morning, upon invitation of Capt. Sampson, they visited the torpedo station and watched the explosion of a number of torpedoes. The afternoon took them to a reception to Col. Finch and the other officers at the Governor's mansion. It was attended by many distinguished people. Later a fleet of the Fourth Artillery reviewed the regiment. Tonight there was a parade and a display of fireworks. Gen. Rodney C. Ward and staff arrived to-day and will review the regiment to-morrow.

Cut his Throat, Legs, and Arms.

NEWBURGH, July 8.—Near Orange Lake, yesterday, John Clark, a New York dealer in spices and coffee, cut his throat with a sickle and a pocket knife. He came here last Monday to buy a farm, and had since then been driving about the country examining property. Yesterday morning he acted strangely, and his friends, fearing that he had become demented, telegraphed for his wife to come from New York. He did not arrive at his destination until 7 in the evening. He was found in a field suffering from gashes in his throat, legs, and wrists. The wounds, though serious, are not fatal. Mrs. Clark says they were the result of an accident.

DEWDROP WINS THE OAKS.

MISS WOODFORD AND HANOVER ALSO CAPTURE RICH STAKES.

Unparalleled Success of the Brooklyn Stable—Sensation's Daughter Crowds Dewdrop—Electric a Coming Three-year-old.

"They will win all the rich stakes of the year," said Col. Bruce, auctioneer at the Rancocas sale, after the Dwyer Brothers had bought the pick of Mr. Lorillard's great racing stable to add to their own. As the season advances it looks more and more as though the Colonel's prediction would prove true. Yesterday Dewdrop won the Monmouth Oak Stakes for three-year-old fillies from Mr. W. L. Scott's fast filly Charity, daughter of Sensation. It was the second appearance of Dewdrop under the crimson and blue of the Brooklyn Stable. In her first race for the Dwyers, at Sheepshead Bay, she ran a dead heat with The Bard for the Spindrift stakes. Yesterday she appeared in better form, winning handily by a length when the issue came a few yards from the finish. Miss Woodford also clutched the Monmouth Cup with a firm grasp, giving Ten Booker seven pounds and East Lynne nine. Hanover looked a better colt than at his initial victory, winning the July Stakes with ten pounds more up than any of the four that came to the post out of the 102 nominated. Seven races were on the card, the Dwyers making a complete sweep of the important fixtures. It is now probable that the Brooklyn Stable will win at least $300,000 in stakes and purses this year, and probably $200,000 more by backing their horses.

Although the attendance was fair, the crowd was not so dense as might have been expected from the excellent programme offered. Betting, too, was below the standard at Sheepshead Bay. But then the results of the principal races were almost foregone conclusions.

Following are the events in the order in which they were run:

JOE COTTON'S EASY VICTORY.

Handicap sweepstakes for all ages, at $25 each, with $750 added, of which $150 to second. Mile and a quarter.

J. T. Williams's ch. c. Joe Cotton, 4, by King Alfonso—Inverness. 110 (McCarthy). 1

G. W. Postle's br. g. Hindoo, aged, 102 (Vincent). 2

Revere Stable's b. g. Hopeful, 4, 102 (McCarthy). 3

Time, 2:09¾.

Betting—Ten to 3 on Joe Cotton, 6 to 1 against Thackeray, 8 to 1 against Elizabeth, and 10 to 1 against Revoke.

McCarthy held Joe Cotton back, permitting Elizabeth and Thackeray to lead by turns until he approached the head of the homestretch, when Joe collared Elizabeth, taking the lead by a neck. Joe held the advantage under a cut all the way home, winning a neck in front of Elizabeth, Thackeray two lengths away, third.
