MISS HEVENER'S LONELY LIFE.

The Habits of an Unfortunate Woman who Burned Herself to Death.

SYRACUSE, Jan. 18.—The story-and-a-half dwelling in which Albertine Hevener burned herself to death on Saturday was the first frame building put up in the town of Manlius. It was built by her grandfather, Jacob Hevener, in 1824. Jacob Hevener's wife died in 1825, leaving one daughter, Anna, a beautiful and intelligent girl, who acted as her father's housekeeper. She met, confided in, and was betrayed by a fellow named Chase, who ran away and has never since been heard from. The result of that betrayal was the unfortunate girl Albertine. Old Mr. Hevener retained his affection for his daughter, and when he died he gave her the homestead, where she lived with her daughter till sixteen years ago, when she died, leaving the property to Albertine, who had received such an education as the common schools afforded.

She had an uncommon fondness for books, and took refuge in them when taunted by her mates about her birth. She developed an aptitude for painting with oils, and the walls of her cottage were covered with paintings of considerable merit. They were burned with the house. In her young days she was very gay, and was regarded as a belle at the village entertainments. She paid much attention to dress and became a favorite. It is believed that an unfortunate love affair occurring about the time of her mother's death warped her life, for she immediately forsook society and thenceforward lived entirely alone.

She was honest to the last penny, but never forgave a real or fancied injury. She surrounded herself with cows, sheep, geese, and chickens, each of which bore its individual name and was regarded by her as a friend, and would come instantly at her call, as would the birds that flocked to her barn for food and shelter. In summer she used to sit for hours in the shade of two oak trees, which she designated as the spot where she wanted to be buried, calling her pets to her and playing with them. She would never sell any of her animals, for fear that they might be slaughtered, and she always kept them till they died of disease or old age.

Last year one of her cows died at the age of 26 years, and one of those among the surviving stock is 24 years old. Miss Hevener was passionately fond of flowers and a close student of botany. She was a subscriber to most of the leading magazines and newspapers of the country. Piles of partly burned periodicals and papers were found in the cellar after the fire.

She had also an extensive library of useful books. It is thought that she surrounded herself with those objects, set fire to them, and perished with them. Several years ago a neighbor of hers was very ill, and the doctor prescribed the broth of wild birds as the only nourishment he might take. The father of the sick man shot a robin on the roof of his barn, game birds not having appeared in that locality. Miss Hevener never spoke to any member of the family after that, the bird having been one that nested at her barn. She prayed vigorously that the sick man might die, but he lived and helped to remove her body from the ruins of her home. She had often expressed a belief in cremation as the proper disposition to be made of the body.

THE WHEELMEN'S STORMY SESSION.

A Fight for the Possession of the Secretary's Office and Papers Ahead.

The Convention of the Board of Officers of the League of American Wheelmen closed its session, the longest and stormiest in its history, yesterday afternoon. It was decided by vote to give to the public the history of the bitter contest over the office of Secretary, which carries with it the editorship of the Bulletin, the organ of the League, and to which Abbott Bassett of Boston was elected. Eugene M. Aaron, who had been Secretary, resigned six weeks ago, and John A. Wells of Philadelphia was appointed in his place until the election. Mr. Aaron, it was said, was deposed on account of dissatisfaction being found with his accounts. Wells, who had been assistant secretary, was censured for not keeping the League informed of what was going on in the office.

The contest for the Secretaryship was very close, and Bassett, it is said by the anti-Wells faction, won by the barring out of fifteen proxies from Pennsylvania. Aaron tried to get the whole Pennsylvania delegation to leave in a body, but the delegates refused to go out.

The Board appointed John C. Gulick of the Executive Board and Secretary-editor-elect Bassett to visit Philadelphia and demand possession of the office, books, and other effects of the League which are now in the possession of Aaron and Wells. It is understood that the latter will resist all attempts to oust them, and as all payments to them are receipted to them personally, the lease of the office in their names personally, a lively time is anticipated. Aaron and Wells returned to Philadelphia early yesterday.

Help for the Dead Sailors' Families.

THE SUN received yesterday this letter from Mr. G. H. Coutts of Holmes & Coutts:

"Noting your editorial of yesterday, herewith enclosed, please find checks for $20, which kindly accept in behalf of families of life saving crew who lost their lives at Cape Henry, and of family of the late Capt. B. J. Henry of Cromwell line, who perished at sea while trying to save others."

Capt. Henry was in command of the boat's crew of the steamship Knickerbocker of the Cromwell line, and all were lost in assisting the schooner Mail and Creamer, in distress off Five Fathom Bank on Dec. 7. Capt. Henry has a widow, two children, and an aged father in Thomaston, Me. The fund collected for them and the families of the sailors by the steamship company now amounts to $2,315.50. The checks for the families of the $10 checks sent to The Sun by Mr. Coutts. The second check for $10, for the benefit of the families of the five life savers lost in their brave attempt to rescue the crew of the German ship Elizabeth, wrecked near Cape Henry on the 8th inst., was handed to Superintendent F. W. Houghton of the Maritime Exchange. The fund for the families of the life savers is now $2,034. At the regular quarterly meeting of the Exchange yesterday resolutions praising the deed given were adopted, and copies will be sent to their families.

Tried to Pawn Dynamite Cartridges.

Contractor Thomas Brown of 503 West Fifty-seventh street, hired two men to clean out his cellar yesterday. Their names are Patrick Shay of 543 West Forty-seventh street and Charles Mallon of 457 West Forty-second street. They found two packages in the rubbish, and not knowing just what they contained, they went to Hester Fox's pawn shop, at 628 Ninth avenue, to see what they could raise on them. Detective Riley was in the pawn shop, and distrusting the man, he examined the bundles and found they contained dynamite cartridges. There were forty of them, weighing half a pound each. Riley arrested the men.

Contractor Brown said the cartridges must belong to him. He later on said he was not so sure they were, but could not explain why they were left so carelessly in the cellar. As he would not make a charge of larceny against the men, they were fined $10 each by Justice Smith.

Mr. Conkling's Theory of the Stock Tape.

The question whether the Commercial Telegram Company has any contract with the Stock Exchange entitling it to receive the stock quotations collected by the Stock Exchange on the floor, and whether the Exchange chooses to leave it so or not, was argued before Judge Ingraham yesterday. James C. Carter for the Exchange, said that there was no such contract. Roscoe Conkling maintained that there was. He also tackled the question on other grounds, holding that it was against public policy and a restraint on trade "to put into the hands of the governing circle of the Western Union Telegraph Company—mammoth operators in stocks they are—the power to say to the public, without competitor, check, or censor, whatever they please from day to day as to what the prices of stocks are, or to withhold, if they choose, for a quarter of an hour or two hours, the quotations of a certain stock which is to be bulled or beared." Judge Ingraham reserved his decision.

A Verdict Against Gen. Butler.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 18.—The case of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler against the Quidnick Company for $20,000 which he claimed for legal services came up in the United States Circuit Court this morning. Gen. Butler being absent, the Court directed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant covering the costs.

Wife Murderer and Suicide Speath Dies.

Frederick Spaeth, who killed his wife at 66 Charlton street, Newark, on Jan. 2, and immediately shot himself in the breast, died yesterday. A deputy sheriff who was watching at his bedside noticed at daybreak that he was failing, and asked him if he had anything to say. He answered "Nothing."

ST. PAUL'S CARNIVAL.

The Ice Palace Finished and the Reign of King Borealis Begun.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 18.—The second winter carnival opened here last night. The illuminations were very pretty. Eighteen miles of gas pipe have been used in the construction of arches and side lights, and 20,000 colored globes were placed thereon. There are twenty-six arches, eleven of them being double and extending from the four corners at the intersection of streets. The ice palace stands in Central Park. Entering the palace grounds, the visitor passes through an arched gateway of ice, flanked with two smaller arches, the whole sixty feet wide and fifty feet high. These arches are surmounted by two towers. Directly in front of this gateway is a musk ox of carved ice twenty feet high. The word "Welcome" is carved in the archway over the main entrance to the palace. Just above sits King Borealis, supported on either hand by a polar bear.

The palace is in the shape of a Latin cross, and covers 42,000 square feet. The main tower from the ground to the top of the flagstaff is 135 feet high. The palace has eighty-one arc electric lights, and the grounds will be lighted with 106 arc lights with colored globes. At the east side of the grounds are twenty lodges, occupied by 160 Sioux Indians. Walker Stone is the head chief. Evergreens have been placed about the grounds.

The features yesterday were the arrival of the Indians and the first illumination of the streets. The arrival of visitors already begins to crowd the hotels. To-day the Indians and the Arctic outfit paraded, and the palace was illuminated, and to-morrow will occur a parade in honor of King Borealis, who will arrive at 2 o'clock. From that time there will be no cessation of the festivities until a week from Saturday, when the carnival will close with snow shoe contests, tobogganing parades, storming of the castle, fireworks, and illuminations.

DIVORCED TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It Occurs to Mrs. Geschwind to Reinstate Herself, but She Finds She Can't.

John Geschwind got a divorce from his wife Caroline in 1867, from Judge Cardozo, after living with her for a month. Nineteen years later, the Judge, the referee, and the attorneys all being dead, and the husband having married again, the wife moved before Judge Bookstaver to have the decree set aside, on the ground of fraud. She averred that she had never heard of the divorce until two years ago, She had parted with her husband after walking with a pistol in her pocket through the snow to the firemen's ball in Hoboken on Washington's birthday, 1867, and shooting him twice because she found him there with Miss Graff, whom he has since married.

Old Mrs. Geschwind took the side of her daughter-in-law in this suit, and swore that her husband had told her just before he died that he had given their son John $200 to procure a bogus divorce in New York.

The husband swore that the divorce had been properly granted.

Judge Bookstaver, in a lengthy opinion, says that the fact that an order of reference was granted, the hearing had, the report made and confirmed, all on the same day, raises much doubt concerning the good faith of divorce proceeding that had occurred recently; he would have no hesitation in opening the default. But he does not credit the statement that the defendant did not know that her husband had been divorced until two years ago, nor the statement that he attended the firemen's ball on Feb. 22, 1867, accompanied by Eva Graff, his present wife, leaving the defendant at home. The Judge thinks that the facts attending the attempt of Geschwind at the ball show a deliberate purpose on her part and not a sudden impulse, and he believes that the true cause of it was the suspicions and jealousy of her husband as to her conduct before marriage. He is of opinion that her testimony is entirely untrustworthy, and that her mother-in-law's is equally unreliable, and even vicious. He refuses to reopen the case.

M'GRATH'S TRIAL BEGUN.

The Story that he Killed McKeagney for Being a George Man Denied.

The trial of John F. McGrath for manslaughter was begun in the General Sessions before Judge Cowing yesterday. On Oct. 25 last McGrath quarrelled with John McKeagney in Godfrey's saloon, Third avenue and Eighty-ninth street. Blows passed, and McKeagney fell to the floor. His head struck with such violence that the skull was fractured, and he died the next day in the Presbyterian Hospital.

A great deal of excitement was occasioned at the time by his death, as it was said that he was a Henry George man who had been assaulted for proclaiming George's doctrines. The testimony yesterday showed that this was not true. McGrath and McKeagney were both under the influence of liquor. McKeagney said Mayor Grace was a foreigner, and had no right to hold office. McGrath insisted, and called McKeagney a liar and provoked him to strike him, and then knocked McKeagney down. The doctors at the hospital found a bruise at the back of the head, but none elsewhere.

The testimony of the witnesses for the people was in McGrath's favor. He is said to be a respectable young man of previous good character. The prosecution will continue to-day.

The Millionaire Widow Terry Sues for $100,000.

Papers were served yesterday on Mr. Joseph Pulitzer in the libel suit of Mrs. Kate Louise Terry, the millionaire widow of Juan F. Terry, against the World. The article complained of appeared in the World of Dec. 12. The complaint contains extracts from the article, which stated that Mrs. Terry was as a child the companion of thieves; that she married Charles Bullard, knowing him to be a bu glar; that she herself planned the robbery of an English peddler of diamonds; that she was the accomplice of notorious counterfeiters; that she lived an immoral life, under the name of Kate Williams, after leaving Bullard, and that she frequently assaulted her late husband, once throwing him out of a window into an area way.

The damages are put at $100,000.

Emptied Packages in Government Stores.

Complaint has been made for years by purchasers at Government sales of unclaimed goods sent to the square room in the Custom House or to bonded warehouses that empty packages are not uncommonly sold along with the others. The inference is that the package has been plundered while in store. Collector Magone ordered an investigation of the condition of packages now in the bonded stores, and received his first report yesterday. In Congress Stores there were found empty 5 bags and 1 barrel; at the stores 281 and 283 West street, 18 cases, 2 boxes, and 1 bag; at the stores 502 Washington street, 1 can and 1 cask, and in the Woodruff stores 1 cask. If evidence of pilfering can be obtained the pilferers will be turned over to the United States Grand Jury.

The Eight-hour Fight to Go On.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The champions of eight hours at the stock yards are elated over the annual election of officers in District Assembly No. 57, Knights of Labor. M. J. Butler, who last fall achieved much notoriety for the part he played in the two big strikes, was put forward as the eight-hour candidate, and was re-elected Master Workman by a large majority. "The success of the eight-hour champions," said one of the new Executive Board yesterday, "simply means a repetition in the spring of last fall's strikes. We are preparing for the walk out, and we will soon be pretty near ready to dictate terms to the packers instead of being dictated to, as we were last November."

Election Times in the Grand Army.

Joseph A. Joel, publisher of the Grand Army Gazette, was arraigned before Judge Gildersleeve in the General Sessions yesterday on a charge of libel preferred by ex-Postmaster James McLeer of Brooklyn. He published in 1882 an article accusing McLeer of drawing a pension to which he was not entitled. Subsequently he published a retraction. The prosecution which had been begun by Gen. McLeer led to an indictment which was forgotten until called up yesterday. Col. Horatio C. King, counsel for Joel, said the case was only brought up now as a menace to Joel during the impending Grand Army elections.

Judge Gildersleeve said the case had been long enough in court, and he let Joel go.

Highwaymen Rob a Milkman.

Joseph Meninger of 560 West Fifty-fourth street, who drives a milk wagon, was confronted in West Sixteenth street, at 3 A. M. yesterday, by two men, one of whom pointed a revolver at his head, and remarked: "If you make any noise I'll shoot."

The other man seized the milkman and took $17 from him. Patrick Gallagher of 503 West Sixtieth street and Thomas Niblo of 844 Eleventh avenue later in the day were arrested and identified by the milkman.

Sniffen May Pay 83 Cents on the Dollar.

The creditors of E. D. Sniffen, advertising agent, held a meeting yesterday, at which the assignee made a rough statement showing liabilities $103,000, nominal assets about the same, and actual assets probably $125,000. He thought the assets would pay about 83 per cent. A proposal to incorporate a company with Mr. Sniffen as manager, was discussed, and a committee of five was appointed to prepare a definite plan of settlement to report to-day.

A Medal for Brave Capt. Stetson.

Capt. Hiram H. Stetson of the schooner Emily T. Northam stood on the Maritime Exchange yesterday among a throng of ship brokers and owners while President W. H. H. Moore of the Life Saving Benevolent Association said nice things of him and gave him a gold medal. Capt. Stetson saved the lives of Capt. Thomas Crapo and the survivors of the crew of the schooner Gustie Wilson off Cape Hatteras in August, 1885.

Thirteen Months this Year.

The Chinese New Year arrives next Sunday, Jan. 23. This is their leap year, which, according to their astronomical calculations, has a double fourth moon and thirteen months instead of the usual twelve. This happens once every three years. The Chinese months necessarily are shorter than the months of the rest of the world.

NO PENSION FOR MRS. LOGAN.

The House Committee Decides Against the Bills in Favor of Mrs. Logan and Mrs. Blair.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The bills granting pensions to Mrs. Logan and Mrs. Blair, widow of Gen. Frank Blair, were defeated to-day in the House Committee on Invalid Pensions. Messrs. Pidcock and Kilberry were absent. The members were arrayed on party lines—seven Democrats voting against and five Republicans in favor of the bills. The adverse majority reports on the Logan and Blair bills will be made by Messrs. Swope and Yoakum respectively, and the favorable minority reports by Messrs. Conger and Morrill.

It is understood that the basis of the opposition to the bills is a reluctance on the part of the majority of the committee to continue the policy of granting high pensions to widows of officers who die not die from injuries incurred in the service. The only precedents for passing such bills are found in the cases of the widows and families of Admiral Farragut, Gens. Hancock, Thomas, and Grant, and the majority of the committee believe that it would be bad policy to follow these precedents in view of the fact that there are about 100 surviving widows of officers who would then be entitled to pensions who are now excluded by the general law.

Results of Defying the Court.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Seneca D. Kimbark, a wholesale iron merchant and wagon manufacturer, was fined $500 and costs by Judge Blodgett yesterday for disregarding an injunction to restrain him from infringing upon Mr. Bradley Barry's patent for manufacturing wagon dashboards and bodies.

Pains and Aches

In various parts of the body, more particularly in the back, shoulders, and joints, are the unwelcome indications that rheumatism has gained a foothold, and you are "in for it" for a longer or shorter period. Rheumatism is caused by lactic acid in the blood, and is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which neutralizes the acidity, and eradicates every impurity from the blood.

"I have been suffering with rheumatism nearly two years, and used several different kinds of medicine, but never found relief until I used Hood's Sarsaparilla."—F. A. KINGSLEY, Nineveh, Broome county, N. Y.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia and a tonic alterative with the most beneficial results. I have also used it for rheumatism with good effect. I regard it as one of the very best family medicines, and would not willingly be without it."—A. B. QUERY, Providence, R. I. Be sure to get

Considering my advanced age, I am fairly well, and I am advised by my physician, and I know for myself, that my recovery is solely attributed to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.
