MAYOR HEWITT SCORES ONE.

Subway Board Employers have Got to Pass a Civil Service Examination.

The Board of Electrical Control had a busy session yesterday, during most of which Mayor Hewitt sat silent and voted "no," while Commissioner Gibbens talked glibly and made many motions which were passed. But the first event of interest was a knock-down in favor of the Mayor. Attorney-General O'Brien sent a communication declining to give his opinion on the question whether the employees of the Board are subject to classification for civil service examination under the local Board and referring the Board to the Counsel to the Corporation and the Mayor. These authorities have already declared for an examination, and ex-Senator Cornell, the candidate of the Mayor's opponents for chief inspector, is not an electrical engineer.

The Department of Public Works complained that the Subway Construction Company had not paid the department inspectors, and asked that the permits be revoked under which the company is now working and reissued so as to compel the company to pay the inspectors on the certificate of the department as to the amount of work done. Mr. Lauterbach, for the company, consented to this change in the permit, and said that the company had already paid $990 for department inspectors from Aug. 20 to September.

Commissioner Hess—there are nineteen inspectors for a work that does not cover over half a mile square. That looks like a good many inspectors.

Mayor Hewitt (laughing)—The election is coming on

Commissioner Hess—they won't let us appoint inspectors without a civil service examination, and yet the Department of Public Works appoints these men at $4 a day.

The Board directed that all electrical conductors in Fifty-eighth street be placed in the completed subway, and that the poles and wires be removed from that street.

Commissioner Gibbens tried to have the Board adopt a resolution giving the Safety Electric Light Company the right to lay electrical conductors in the streets. He referred to a form of consent which he intimated had already been adopted by the Board. Mayor Hewitt refused to vote any consent without having the form of it before him, and insisted upon having it read. Then the thing was hunted up in the minutes, and it was found that the Board had not adopted any general form. Action was deferred.

Counsellor Oliver of Paradise Park and Douglass Levien, Jr., in turn sought to make the Board hear speeches in favor of various patented conduits. The Mayor was not disposed to listen, and suggested that Messrs. Levien and Oliver should listen to each other. The Mayor remarked:

"This Board has parted with its authority. Whenever I attempt anything I run against the Construction Company."

Commissioner Gibbens—We are not controlled by the Construction Company. We have our own knowledge—at least I have, notwithstanding those who sneer at it.

Mayor Hewitt—I sneered at myself, not at you.

Commissioner Gibbens—My words have nothing to do with you.

Mayor Hewitt (sharply)—Did you not mean me?

Commissioner Gibbens (decidedly)—No, sir.

Mayor Hewitt—Then I have nothing to say.

THE REV. MR. WHITE'S VICTORY.

Turned Out of his Pulpit, he Finally Buys the Church Back at Auction.

The Rev. J. J. White was assigned by the Synod of the Methodist Protestant Church a year ago to a charge in New London, Conn., and the Rev. Mark Staples was placed in charge of the church at Bedford avenue and South Third street, Williamsburgh, over which Mr. White had presided as pastor for fifteen years. At the time of his removal Mr. White declared that the action of the Synod was brought about by conspiracy and fraud among a few members of his congregation. Backed by many members of his congregation, he refused to obey the order of the Synod, and opened an independent church near the old edifice.

"The Lord blessed our work," said Mr. White. "The old church had to be closed, and a short time ago was put up at auction to satisfy the mortgage on it. I bought the building, and on Wednesday the deeds were given to me. I went to the old place and found the Bibles and hymn books thrown about in disorder, the carpets were stripped from the aisles and platform, the pulpit was shorn of its adornments, the altar rail thrown down, and the glass in all the windows broken. The Sunday school room in the basement was in a wretched state, the benches thrown about, and rubbish piled all over.

"What disturbed me the most," he continued, "was the building of the Bible from which I had read the gospel for so many years stripped of its cover and defaced. Now, who is responsible for this work of destruction? I am convinced that the enemies in my old congregation are the vandals, and will soon have the public made as sure of their guilt as I am at present. I threw the doors open to the public when I found out how things were, and invited them to look upon the work. A good many accepted my invitation. I will open the church for services on Sunday week."

The Trouble in the Hinze Household.

The domestic difficulties of Capt. Paul S. Hinze and his wife Sarah occupied the attention of Justice Walsh in Brooklyn yesterday. Capt. Hinze is the Myrtle avenue confectioner who says that his wife, after a quarrel with him in July last, put rat poison in his coffee. She had him before Justice Walsh yesterday on a charge of abandonment. She declared that he assaulted her three weeks ago while she was sitting at the table, and once, she said, he ran at her with a carving knife.

"Didn't you try to spoil the ice cream in your husband's store by putting hair in it?" asked Mr. Elliott, the husband's lawyer.

"No, sir," rejoined Mrs. Hinze, with dashing eyes.

"And didn't you try to poison him by dosing his coffee?" proceeded the lawyer.

"I never heard of that until yesterday when we were in Justice Kenna's court," was the response.

Justice Walsh decided that he was too busy to spend any time with the case, and adjourned the hearing until Monday.

St. Stephen's Parochial School Opened.

St. Stephen's Catholic Church has finally established a parochial school, in accordance with the command of the Council of Bishops held in Baltimore last September. The school was opened last Tuesday in the building just west of the church in Twenty-eighth street, formerly occupied by St. Stephen's Home, now discontinued. The school is in charge of Sister Mary Alacoque, formerly of the Holy Cross Academy, assisted by eleven other Sisters of the parish. There are twelve classes, six for girls, and six for boys, enrolled at present to primary instruction. Religious training is one of the main features. Drawing and instrumental and vocal music will be taught the advance classes. Nearly one hundred pupils have already registered, and upward of three hundred are expected before the end of the month. There are accommodations in the building for 500.

Jealous Brady Shot Him.

Thomas Brady, a laborer, aged 50, was arrested on Wednesday night on a charge of attempting to kill Patrick Cumisky, a saloon keeper at 633 First avenue. Brady lives at 312 East Thirty-third street with his wife, who is younger than he, and quite good looking. Jealousy or unjustly, he accuses Cumisky of being unduly intimate with Mrs. Brady. Backed up by several drinks, his jealous rage brought him to the verge of murder. Armed with a pistol, he hid himself in the dark hallway leading to Cumisky's saloon, and waited until he caused up his place and went away. Then as he approached, Brady fired two shots at him. One bullet went wide of its mark, and the other furrowed the saloon keeper's skin. Brady was held for trial yesterday in the Yorkville Police Court.

The Powers of Coroners.

In the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday Justice Bartlett handed down a decision respecting the duties and powers of Coroners in the state. Daniel Mullen and Dennis Dillon, who are charged with the murder of Michael Mullen at a christening on Gates avenue, Brooklyn, in August last, were committed to jail by Coroner George H. Lindsay after the inquest. Counsel for the accused claimed that Coroner Lindsay had exceeded his authority in the case, and asked for the discharge of the men. Justice Bartlett agrees that the Coroner did not adhere to the requirements of the law in his action in committing the men without first allowing them time to send for counsel and summoning witnesses in their behalf. He, however, refused to discharge the prisoners.

Ready to Sink their Railway.

At the annual meeting of the New York Underground Railway Company yesterday the following directors were reelected: Edward Lauterbach, Richard Irvin, Jr., Henry Clews, John H. Davis, Reman Clark, Origen Vandenburgh, David H. Bates, and Henry D. Sedgwick. These are the new chosen directors: David Paton, John B. Cheever, C. Francis Bates, Wm. C. Behrens, and Jonathan H. Crane. Commissioner Newton having refused the company's application for permission to construct their road, the company will next week apply to the Superior Court for a mandamus to compel Gen. Newton to grant a permit. The officers of the company say they expect a speedy decision, and that they are now ready to begin work.

Is Yuengling to Brew No More?

The dispute between D. G. Yuengling, Jr., and Wm. Belden, joint owners of Yuengling's brewery, will probably be settled in the usual fashion of partnership disagreements, by the purchase by one party of the interest of the other. Lawyer Newcombe, who is one of the receivers, said yesterday:

"The papers for a satisfactory settlement of the trouble have already been drawn. There is no doubt that the creditors will get all that is due them."

It is intimated that Mr. Belden is the partner into whose hands the future possession of the business is most likely to fall.

A Bold Scheme for Robbery.

John Titus, a respectable-looking young fellow of 20, drove a team of horses attached to a truck belonging to F. H. Leggett & Co. of West Broadway down to Pier 54 on the North River yesterday afternoon and had a load of canned goods belonging to that firm. Delivery clerk Rankin suspected that something was wrong, and asked Titus what mark was on the goods. He could not tell, and Titus was arrested. He said that he did not know how he got on the truck. He tried to give the impression that he was drunk, and told the police that he came from Providence. Leggett & Co. missed the truck from in front of their store at 3 o'clock.

NO NEWS OF MRS. FORD'S CHILDREN.

The Woman Positively Identifies Poindexter and Tells Where Locust Valley Is.

Henry Poindexter, the colored Pullman car porter, whom Mrs. Mary Ford, the California widow, accuses of having abducted her three little children, was again up for examination yesterday in Police Justice Stilsing's court in Jersey City. The prisoner was represented by Lawyers Garretson and Rowe.

Mrs. Ford took the stand for cross-examination, but her story, as told on direct examination, was not shaken. As Mrs. Ford was about to leave the witness stand she turned to Justice Stilsing and asked if she might say something. Consent was given.

"I simply desire to state," she said, "that when I saw the prisoner, Poindexter, in the railroad depot on Monday last, I asked if he did not come in on the train with me, and he admitted that he did. Afterward he denied it."

Mrs. Mary Kenney, her stepson Bernard Kenney, and Ann Mulligan, all friends of Mrs. Ford, who were with her in the depot when she identified Poindexter, all testified that they heard the prisoner admit having come in on the train with Mrs. Ford.

Frederick Gross, a bartender in Steup's restaurant in Exchange place in Jersey City, into which Mrs. Ford claims Poindexter took her and her children, told the Justice that he had an indefinite recollection of having seen Mrs. Ford in the restaurant on the day she claims to have been there, but he did not recollect seeing any children with her.

Chief of Police Murphy is in communication with the California authorities regarding the case. Mrs. Ford, in her complaint to Chief Murphy, and in her testimony in the Police Court, has said that she lived in Locust Valley, California, and that that place was 280 miles from San Francisco. The police of San Francisco, to whom Chief Murphy telegraphed, answered that they could not find any such place. Yesterday it was incidentally learned from Mrs. Ford that Locust Valley was on the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and 80 miles distant from Drummond Station. Such a station appears on the map. Instead of being 280 miles from San Francisco, however, as Mrs. Ford stated, the distance is 843 miles.

THE REV. O. F. INGALSBY ARRESTED.

A Former Professor in the Starkey Seminary Accused of Grand Larceny.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Sheriff Van Hosen of Cortland went to Starkey, on the shores of Seneca Lake, on Saturday last and arrested the Rev. O. F. Ingalsby, late a professor of languages in the Starkey Seminary, on a charge of grand larceny. The accused man was committed to the jail, but was afterward released under $1,000 bonds to appear at an examination to be held to-morrow before Justice Squires in Cortland.

Starkey Seminary is an educational institution affiliated with the denomination known as Campbellites or Christian Disciples, and an effort is being made to collect a fund for adding new buildings and grounds and other educational facilities to the institution, the Rev. Mr. Ingalsby being employed as one of the solicitors of the fund. It is alleged that by false representations he induced Mrs. Mary Tanner, a wealthy and infirm widow of South Cortland, aged 86 years, to transfer to the fund certain shares of national bank stock of the value of $2,000. The old lady, it seems, had executed a will making a liberal bequest to the seminary, and it is charged that she was led to believe that in assigning over the bank stock she was simply anticipating the payment of the legacy. Her friends say that the clergyman took advantage of the old lady's infirmities to defraud her of the securities. The clergyman asserts that the transfer was made understandingly as a free gift to the seminary, independent of the provision made by the will.

Struck by Lightning While Driving a Beer Wagon in Kentucky.

Mathias Fuchs stood on the corner of Delancey street and the Bowery holding out his hand for alms. From his neck hung a sign which said that while driving a brewery wagon in Kentucky a year ago he was struck by lightning, which made him permanently deaf and dumb. Policeman Reilly arrested him, and at the Elizabeth street station the Sergeant asked Fuchs if he could not speak.

"I certainly I can," the beggar replied, "but I thought the sign was a good idea."

He was sent to the Workhouse for six months by Justice Patterson.

Wants Some Money Out of S. W. Dorsey.

Judge Donohue has granted an attachment against the property in this state of Stephen W. Dorsey, at the instance of Peter L. Vanderveer, an attorney, who has a claim of $1,000 with interest at the rate of 12 per cent. against Dorsey. Several years ago an action was brought against Dorsey in Missouri and a judgment recovered against him for over $12,000. Vanderveer was authorized by the plaintiffs in that action to bring suit on the judgment in the courts of this city. Dorsey lives, the plaintiffs agreeing to pay him a sum equal to one quarter of the amount recovered. Suit was brought in New Mexico in April, 1886, in order to have the action discontinued. Dorsey, it is alleged, agreed to pay for Vanderveer's services $1,000, with interest at 12 per cent.

Possibly a Scheme of Revenge.

Policeman Murphy of the Bedford avenue station yesterday morning discovered fire in the hallway of the tenement 220 North Second street, Williamsburgh, in which Matteo Bianco, on last Sunday night, shot and killed Angelo Loneco. Murphy found the place had been saturated with kerosene oil, and the police were informed that two strange Italians had been seen about the neighborhood. They think that they were seeking to revenge themselves on the people in the house who have been giving information to the police about the escaped murderer Bianco.

There Should Have Been Guards on it.

The inquest in the case of Jane Lynch, who was killed in the elevator accident in Sidenberg & Co.'s factory at 47 Mercer street, was ended yesterday. The jury brought in this verdict: "We censure the firm of Sidenberg & Co. for not placing proper safeguards on said elevator to guard against loss of life, and we recommend that the Legislature take some action to have proper safeguards fitted on all elevators used for carrying passengers, and to have such elevators inspected by the proper authorities at certain times."

Young Train Wreckers.

George Openshaw, aged 9 years, of 788 Jersey avenue, and Jerome Miller, aged 10, of 758 Jersey avenue, are locked up in Police Headquarters in Jersey City charged with having wrecked an Erie Railroad coal train between Jersey City and Weehawken Wednesday night. While playing on the tracks one of them turned a switch, causing a passing coal train to leave the track. Several cars were wrecked, causing a loss to the railroad company of $3,000. The boys accuse each other of doing the act.

The Vacancies in the George Banks.

Peter Kittrick of Rochester was chosen yesterday to represent the Thirtieth district on the State Committee of the United Labor party. The State Committee meets to night, in room 36 of Cooper Union, to nominate a State Engineer and Surveyor in place of Vivenus H. Sweet, who has not accepted the nomination. The County Committee-124 will also meet there to complete the preliminary arrangements for the big ratification meeting on Sept. 17 in Union square.

Killed by a Base Ball.

Mr. John Gale of 72 Gwinnett street, Williamsburgh, was hit in the left eye by a base ball batted by Charles Miller in a game near the Forty-seventh Regiment armory, in Marcy avenue, on Saturday. Mr Gale was passing at the time when struck by the ball. On monday he complained of great pain in his head, and on Wednesday he died. Coroner Lindsay made an autopsy last evening, which showed that Mr. Gale's skull had been fractured. Miller is under arrest.

His Memory is Good, Any Way.

Franz Huber, one of the dozen inmates of the lunatic asylum on Ward's Island who were liberated by habeas corpus a few weeks ago, called at the Central office yesterday to inquire whether the police had recovered his money and valuables of which he was robbed of shortly before being sent to the asylum. He was sent there thirteen years ago last February. His question was answered in the negative.

Owe the Banks $100,000.

Judge Donohue has appointed H. K. S. Williams receiver of Colby, Duncan & Co., piano manufacturers at 548 West Forty-eighth street. An advisory committee of creditors two of whom are the Presidents of the Garfield Bank and the Peoples Bank, will help the receiver carry on the business. The liabilities are about $100,000 for merchandise and $100,000 to the banks.

Diamond Fanny Not Present.

The motion to vacate the order of arrest in the suit of the Bank of the Manhattan Company against Mrs Fanny B. ROber's came up before Judge Van Brunt in supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday morning. "Diamond Fanny" was not present, but her diamonds and her cause were both well represented by Lawyer Howe. Judge Van Brunt reserved his decision.

★ SCROFULA. ★

My head and face were a solid mass of putrefaction, and my ears discharged offensive matter in large quantities. I had almost despaired of getting well. J. N. RIVALRY IN A FACTORY.

Hunter's Point Girls Who Think the Greenpoint Girls Put On Airs.

There is trouble in Romaine's fruit and vegetable canning factory at Dutch Kills, Long Island City. It is among the employees, the majority of whom are young girls.

"You see," said one of them last night, "some of the girls live over in Greenpoint, and they think themselves above us. That's all there is to it. We think ourselves as good as they are, and stand ready to prove it. One of them," she added, "found that out the other night. Oh, but didn't she run!"

"Who ran?"

"Why the girl I'm talking about, Ella Casey. Why if the bridge had been opened she would have run into the creek, she was in such a hurry to get away from one of our girls, May Rogellette.

The superintendent of the works denies the report that the Hunter's Point girls have refused to work with the Greenpoint girls.

"We don't know where our girls live," he said. "Maybe some little differences exist between the girls, as they do in all shops and factories, but the report of a pitched battle with knives is simple nohsense."

One young Greenpoint girl said last night: "Oh, it's because a few think because we dress well and act respectably that we are putting on airs. That's what brought out the story about us having trouble in the factory. Those who are like us find no fault with us."

Don't Laugh at Nervous People.

Their sufferings are very real, although you, with your vigorous physique and strong nerves, can scarcely believe it. Rather suggest the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, in removing every trace of dyspepsia and regulating the liver and bowels, strikes at and extirpates the most prolific cause of chronic nervous trouble. That nerve-shattering disease, fever and ague, is among the formidable ailments, to the removal of which this genial remedy is specially adapted. Nervous prostration, resulting from prolonged mental or physical effort, is also a state of the system where the intervention of this tonic is very desirable, more particularly as its use is to quiet and relax the tension of overwrought nerves. The Bitters are invaluable in rheumatism, neuralgia, and kidney troubles. Employ no substitute for it.
