STABBED ON A FERRYBOAT.

Mr. Schneider Thought his Wife was Insulted by the Campbell Boys.

Thomas Campbell, 25 years old, of 63 Pitt street, who was disembowelled last Sunday night by Christian Schneider of 65 Delancey street on the ferry bridge of the Grand street ferry, Williamsburgh, died yesterday morning in the South Third Street Hospital. His brother John, who was also stabbed and cut by Schneider, will probably recover from his injuries. In the afternoon Schneider, who is confined in Raymond street jail in Brooklyn, was notified of the death of Campbell. He reiterated his statement that he stabbed in self-defence.

Schneider is a young man lately married. On Sunday afternoon he accompanied his wife to her sister's home on Ten Eyck near Leonard street, Williamsburgh. About midnight, on his way home, he met the Campbell brothers in the waiting room of the Grand Street Ferry. They had been to a picnic in one of the parks outside of Williamsburgh. The young men were joking and gibing with their friends. Schneider thought they were making fun of him and he became angry. The Campbell brothers and their friends and Schneider and his wife were among the first to reach the boat. As the other passengers got to the edge of the boat they saw Schneider rush upon Thomas Campbell and stab him in the stomach. Campbell fell on the edge of the boat. Schneider, as soon as he stabbed Thomas Campbell, turned and, driving his knife twice into John Campbell, ran into the cabin of the boat, throwing the knife overboard. The crowd rushed upon Schneider and held him until the policeman came.

Schneider points to his cut and bruised face and black eyes as truth of his statement that he had been assaulted. His wife says that she also was hit, and had her eyes blacked.

The Campbell brothers in their ante-mortem statement to Coroner Lindsay said that they did not strike Mrs. Schneider, nor did they assault Mr. Schneider.

The injuries to the prisoner and his wife are said to have been inflicted by the crowd in the scuffle over Schneider's arrest. Mrs. Schneider when asked Sunday night about her discolored eye, said that "she did not know how she got it."

Coroner Lindsay will hold the inquest to-day.

A REFORMATORY'S LONG REACH.

Weber Confined Without any Warrant but Superintendent Brockway's Will.

Joseph Weber, a 21-year-old German, is now a prisoner in the Tombs, held without a complaint or commitment paper under very unusual circumstances. He is a property holder in Germany and is regularly in receipt of remittances from abroad. Two years ago he was involved in a dispute with a man, whom he assaulted. He was arrested and convicted of the assault, but to save him from going to the penitentiary, as he had theretofore borne a good reputation, the Court, upon the recommendation of Lawyer F. J. Keller, his counsel, sent him to the Elmira Reformatory. Weber was discharged for good conduct, and went to board with Mrs. Nix, at 137 Elm street. He had trouble with Mrs. Nix about some love affair, and Mrs. Nix, having discovered that Weber had once been in the reformatory, wrote to Superintendent Brockway of that institution. Without any warrant Weber on Tuesday and took him before Justice Duffy in Essex Market Court. He said that he wanted Weber back in the reformatory, and Justice Duffy committed him to the Tombs pending his transfer to Elmira.

Lawyer Keller heard of the arrest and secured from Judge Patterson of the Supreme Court a writ ordering Superintendent Brockway to show cause why Weber should not be discharged. This course is taken to test the constitutionality of the law.

"I find," Lawyer Keller said, "that the Board of Governors of the Elmira Reformatory are given power under the law to maintain an espionage over all persons committed to their care until the prisoner reaches his 30th year. Prisoners who are discharged are compelled to report their whereabouts, and what they are doing, every month regularly, and the Governors have the power to seize them at any time and haul them back to Elmira."

Weber's stepfather, Frederick N. Neuschultz, a merchant at 263 Broome street, saw Weber in prison yesterday by special permission of the District Attorney, but he was the only person that the prisoner was allowed to see.

Sliced by an Italian Razor.

William McIntosh, a twenty-six-year-old sailor on the steamer Alexandria, which sailed from the Inman line pier at Prentice's stores in Brooklyn yesterday for the Mediterranean, was left behind and may never go on another voyage. A couple of hours before sailing time he went ashore with two other sailors. While passing through Furman street, near Joralemon, on their return to the vessel, they got in a quarrel with a party of Italians who had come from New York to see some of their friends who were returning to Italy, off on the steamer. The Italians asked the three sailors to accompany them to a saloon to take a drink. The sailors refused, and the Italians took hold of them and started to drag them to the saloon. McIntosh resisted and there was a general fight. McIntosh was slashed with a razor in the chest, back, right hand, and arm. His companions were not cut.

The three Italians were Angelo Bilebroi of 804 Mulberry street, and Machiolo Leonorado of 427 East 111th street. They attempted to escape, but the police, aided by the Italian shoremen until the arrival of the policemen. Bruviosso was identified as the man who used the razor on McIntosh. He said that the sailors first attacked him, and that he acted in self-defence. McIntosh was taken to the Long Island College Hospital. The doctors say that he will probably die.

Avoid Hoboken if You are Wicked.

On Decoration Day, when the soldiers' monument was unveiled in Hoboken, Isaac Schrieber was arrested on the suspicion of being a pickpocket. The next morning Recorder McDonough sent him to the penitentiary at Snake Hill for three months. He was released two weeks ago and was at once rearrested on the charge of being a suspicious character. He was tried and convicted and sent back to the penitentiary for three months more. He is liable to be arrested again when he is released, and may go to State prison next time.

On the same day that Schrieber was arrested, Thomas Sanborn, another New Yorker, was arrested for attempting to pick a pocket. He was also sent to Snake Hill for three months. He did not behave himself in jail and was not released until yesterday, when he was again arrested and locked up in the county jail on the same charge that he had served the term in the jail for. He will now be in the jail for a month or so, and then will be tried, and if convicted may serve a year more.

Brooklyn Truckmen Must Move.

A week ago City Works Commissioner Adams of Brooklyn ordered all the truckmen who had their stands around the City Hall to move to the plaza in Myrtle avenue and Canton street. The truckmen refused to go on the ground that they had been in undisputed possession of the City Hall square for over twenty years, and paid the city for the privilege. Commissioner Adams asked Police Commissioner Bell to arrest the truckmen, but he refused. Corporation Counsel Jenks has given an opinion to the effect that the truckmen must go, and Commissioner Bell has instructed the police to arrest all those who retain their stands after to-day.

Aground in a Fog all Night.

The steamer Hazel Kirke, which runs between Canarsie and Rockaway Beach, left Rockaway Beach on Tuesday night with a heavy load of passengers. About half an hour later a bank of fog came down and the steamer ran aground. Pilot George Wilson ordered the anchor to be dropped. At 5½ o'clock yesterday morning the fog lifted, and it was then found that the bows of the boat were driven into the bank of Beach Channel, opposite the big hotel. She was backed into deep water without trouble and reached Canarsie at 7½ o'clock. There a special train took the passengers to East New York.

They Fell in Love by Mail.

The marriage of Miss Jessie Reynolds, daughter of Peter M. Reynolds of East Orange, N. J., and Mr. Knud Knudson of Lake Mills City, Ia., on Tuesday evening was the culmination of a pretty little romance. Miss Reynolds became acquainted with Mr. Knudson through a correspondence brought about by a friend. Without ever having seen each other they became engaged, and a week ago Mr. Knudson went from Lake Mills City to East Orange to claim his bride. They left yesterday for their permanent home in Iowa.

His Two Wives Meet.

The two wives of Edwin Holtslander, who was arrested for bigamy at Stapleton, S. I., on Tuesday, on complaint of wife No. 2, met in Newark yesterday. As Mrs. Holtslander No. 2 was introduced by Mrs. Holtslander No. 1 to her two children, wife No. 1 produced her marriage certificate, and announced that when Holtslander was arraigned for trial she would join issues with wife No. 2. Mrs. Holtslander No. 2—formerly Casey—then returned to Stapleton.

Struck His Wife in the Court Room.

Cornelius Brice was charged in the Yorkville Police Court with ill-treating and failing to support his wife. While the woman was telling her story to Justice O'Reilly, Brice suddenly struck her full in the face with his fist. She staggered and fell to the floor, but did not fall. Justice O'Reilly retained his composure, though boiling with indignation. He committed Brice to jail without bail for trial on the charge of assault.

Dying of a Bite on the Thumb.

Richard O'Neil of Newark, who had both legs amputated about ten years ago, is dying of blood poisoning at his home, 41 Union street. On July 7 O'Neil quarrelled with John Fox. For his O'Neil's thumb until the blood ran, and blood poisoning set in. Fox was arrested on Tuesday, but is out on bail.

Miss Baker Did Not Return.

Seventeen-year-old Clara Baker, who lived with her parents in Church lane, North Bergen, went out to walk on Sunday afternoon with some girl friends. She has not yet returned to her home. She is described as a comely blonde of medium height. She wore a white suit and a straw hat.

Worn Out by Boterous Footsteps.

So many thousand prisoners tramp along the board walk leading from the Tombs Prison to the Court of Special Sessions that it is found necessary to repair it about once every six months. A week ago it was so worn that it was torn up and a new flooring laid.

A STATEN ISLAND JOKE.

Two Tottenville Young Men are Arrested for Abducting Two Girls.

Louis M. Crane and Joseph F. Murphy, two of the society young men of Tottenville, Staten Island, took Miss Sarah Prior and Miss Ida Woodruff for a sail on the river. They sailed up and down the river for some time when it began to get late, and the girls asked to be put ashore and taken home. The young men laughed and continued to sail about the river. The girls begged and cried to be put ashore, but the young men enjoyed their fears, and kept on until 3 o'clock the next morning, when they became tired and let the young ladies off. The young men went home themselves and to sleep chuckling over their joke.

While sleeping the next morning the two young jokers were awakened by a policeman, who arrested them on a charge of abduction. They were taken before Justice Ketman, where they met the parents of the two girls. It took the young men and their friends a half a day to convince the parents that it was a joke. The charge was finally withdrawn.
