A QUARREL BETWEEN LAWYERS.

Counsellor Farrell Says that Counsellor Mathot Hit him with a Club.

Lawyer Roderick F. Farrell created considerable amusement yesterday afternoon in the Tombs Police Court by a dramatic description of an alleged assault which he says was committed on him by Lawyer Louis Mathot of Sixth avenue and Fifty-first street. The complainant said that he was referee in a case in which a husband and wife were involved, and went to Lawyer Mathot's office in reference to payment of his fees. He had been disappointed before, he said, in seeing him.

"I went into his office," said the complainant, "and said: 'This is a nice trick you have played me,' and with that he rushed at me like a wild beast and went to shove me out. I said, 'Don't push me,' and he went in and said, 'I'll fire you,' and brought out a policeman's billy and struck me."

The complainant jumped about in lively pantomime, and caught himself by the ear to show how Lawyer Mathot had used him. Then he said the defendant's son cried "Oh, shame," and pulled his father away.

"There's a good comedian lost in you, Mr. Farrell," said the defendant. "Your Honor, this man came constantly to my office when my clients were there, demanding money for services."

"That has no bearing on a man being struck with a billy, your Honor," said Mr. Farrel, striking an attitude and preparing for an oratorical outburst, which was cut short by a denial both by Lawyer Mathot and his son that more force had been used in ejecting him than was necessary. Both maintained that neither billy nor club had been used.

"It's the rankest perjury, your Honor," he said. "I swear that the man hit me with a club."

"I'm afraid Farrell," said the Judge, "that you're the victim of your own admiration."

"I swear, by heavens, there was a club," said the complainant excitedly. "Look at my arm, and my physical suffering was nothing to my mental suffering."

"Did you strike Mr. Mathot?" asked the Judge.

"No, sir," said the complainant. "I'm too much of a gentleman to strike a man in the presence of his son. I went and got a warrant and brought the case here."

Justice Power adjourned the case for further investigation."

THREE ACCUSED POLICEMEN.

Trespass, Assault, and Bribery Among the Charges—One Man Paralyzed.

Thomas McLaughlin of 304 East Forty-fourth street accused Policeman James Mulvey of the East Fifty-first street station before Commissioner French yesterday of chasing him into his own house and assaulting his two sisters and his aged mother. Mulvey returned with Policemen McCarthy and Curren and dragged the family to the station house. The sisters corroborated their brother. One said that her ear was almost torn off by one of the policemen. Mulvey said that McLaughlin had been arrested the week before for a robbery, and that seeing McLaughlin with a bundle under his arm he followed him home. He denied the assault.

Policeman Jeremiah J. Sullivan of the Old slip station was charged with being absent without leave on June 15 for forty-seven hours. Sullivan lives at 1,095 Madison avenue. He said that he lay down at home and couldn't get up. His wife was out of town, and there was nobody in the house to help him. A police surgeon testified that he found Sullivan very nervous and with his tongue coated. He couldn't say whether Sullivan had been on a spree or not.

Mrs. Samuels of 127 Stanton street accused Detective Emanuel Meyer of the Union Market station of trying to bribe her to swear falsely in the General Sessions Court. She said that on July 17 she had her pocket picked in Grand street of $22. Meyer arrested two Italian fruit venders for the robbery, and they were indicted. On Aug. 6 Meyer came to her and offered her $22 if she would say on the trial that she was not certain the two Italians were the right men. He told her he had got the money from the prisoners.

Meyer said that Mrs. Samuels's statement was false in every respect.

SKINNED ACCORDING TO LAW.

If the Aqueduct Laborers Take the Store Orders there Is No Redress.

Last week Mayor Hewitt notified the Aqueduct Commissioners that workingmen employed on the aqueduct complained to him of the system in vogue of paying the men by store orders and robbing them of a considerable percentage of their wages.

The Aqueduct Board referred the case to the District Attorney and sent him an affidavit made by one of the men, James Coffey by name, a letter from Gustave Kettner of 2,702 Eighth avenue, and one of the store orders.

Yesterday acting District Attorney Goff wrote as follows to Colonel James C. Duane, President of the Aqueduct Board:

In the absence of a special agreement, wages are payable in money only. The wage earner may refuse to accept payment in any other form, and may enforce it by legal means. If, however, he accepts payment in anything else but money, it is his election, and the act of his employer in so paying does not—under the laws of this State—constitute a criminal offence. It is not within the province of the District Attorney to advise you, and I regret that, without legislative action, I cannot by the aid of the criminal law assist in breaking up what seems to be an oppressive system.

Says His Child is Held for a Board Bill.

Lizzie, the three-year-old daughter of Richard Shields, an ice man, was in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday, upon a writ of habeas corpus. Mrs. Shields died on March 1, 1887, and for two weeks Shields and the child boarded with James and Lizzie Tracy, relatives of his wife, at 714 East Twelfth street. He alleges that the Tracys compelled him to leave, and that Mrs. Tracy took the child from her new quarters and has since kept her as security for a board bill. Shields has recently remarried, and says he is willing and able to care for the little girl.

The Tracys deny that they turned Shields and his child out, and say that they repeatedly asked Shields to care for her, but that he answered that he had no money. They ask him if he wants the child, to refund the money they have expended.

Judge Patterson adjourned the case until Saturday.

Hannan Held for Killing Culliton.

Coroner Eidman yesterday concluded the inquest into the death of Patrick Culliton, the truckman, of 456 West Sixteenth street, who, in a quarrel with John Hannan on June 21, was struck in the head with a wrench, from the effect of which he died. The first witness was the widow of the deceased, who said that at St. Vincent's Hospital her husband said he had gone to Hannan to ask for a situation. While he was talking to the Sliby brothers Hannan young Hannan came up with a wrench in his hand, and told Culliton to move off. The two walked away together, when Culliton in turn tripped Hannan up. Hannan got up and dealt Culliton a heavy blow on the head with the wrench.

The jury found that Culliton came to his death from injuries received at the hands of Hannan. The prisoner was then committed for the Grand Jury.

Alexander Smith Must Pay Alimony.

Alexander Smith, a superintendent in one of Macy's departments, married in June, 1884, Mary E. Snyder, a cashier employed in the same establishment. She is now suing for a divorce. She charges her husband with cruelty and desertion. He left her on Nov. 23, 1887, she says, and on 11 July 9, 1883, paid her $6 a week, which has now stopped. She says Smith gets $26 a week, while she is without means to support her widowed mother. In his answer Smith says he discovered a letter from one Gillette which disturbed his domestic peace. He denies the cruelty, and says he is unable to pay alimony. Yesterday Judge Henry Wilder Allen directed that he pay $50 counsel fee and $6 weekly alimony.

Billings Must Answer for Bigamy.

Charles A. Billings, a piano maker, was sent to Raymond street jail in Brooklyn two weeks ago for abandoning his wife, Ida Billings, and, not being able to furnish the necessary bonds to support her, his wife still languishing in prison. Since his arrest his wife has been making an investigation of his movements during the long period of his desertion, and the result is that Mr. Billings will have to confront a charge of bigamy. His wife professes to have discovered that in November, 1886, a few weeks after he left her, he was married to Miss Lizzie Blackman by the Rev. Dr. Beebe, and had been living with her at 106 Clermont avenue.

Grapes will be Scarce.

What promised in the blossoming to be an immense crop of grapes will it is now said, owing to the rot and mildew, be less than half. A grower of Howell township, N. J., whose vineyard in the spring promised about fifteen tons of fruit, will not have one ton, while in Manalapan township the crop will be reduced to one-quarter the average. D. Vanderveer, a very large grower, saved much of his crop by covering the bunches with paper bags. He used over 1,900 bags. The bunches thus cared for are handsomer than those exposed.
