NEW YORK, 5; BOSTON, 1.

After many days of hard luck and poor umpiring the New York Club has come home with blood in its eyes. The reason for the poor work was mainly discouragement caused by bad luck and umpires, who seemed set on giving the club the worst side of it until it became almost impossible to win. Then, again, the players were in hopes that they would get back to the Polo grounds, and, as one of them explained it yesterday when games were lost, the hope of going back to their old home, where they were almost sure to play good ball, made the loss of a few games of little account.

Now that all hope of ever playing on the Polo grounds has gone, the boys acknowledge that it is time for them to brace up. If any of the New York players ever said that the loss of games was the fault of Keefe's not being in condition, they can no longer bring such a charge against him, for his work of yesterday puts a stop to all such talk. Keefe never gets in form until warm weather comes on, and now that the warm weather is here, Keefe's arm is here too. Note his work of yesterday. Where is there a pitcher who can equal it under the new rules and against the heaviest batting team in the country? Twelve Boston players fanned the cool breeze from the bay in their efforts to find Tim's curves, and, during the whole game, only three men hit the ball successfully. Two of these hits were nice hits, but the third was a fluke ball, which Connor went in the air for, but could not hold.

Although Keefe did such fine work, the work of Clarkson cannot be overlooked. Keefe, as can be seen, did the better work; in fact he never put up a better game, and with so much success. Clarkson, on the other hand, used remarkable leadework, and so deceptive were his curves at times that they not only fooled the batter, but the umpire as well, and as a consequence there was not a little scientific kicking, in which the only Mike and the only Buck showed many fine points. Kelly was kissed once or twice, but he doesn't mind that; in fact he would just as soon have hisses as cheers, and he acknowledges both with the same salute of his hat.

Outside of the work of the pitchers the game was poorly played, both sides doing very badly in the way of muffs and wild throws, but the mistakes of the home team only gave one run, while those by the visitors gave the New Yorks all the runs they got. Hardly Richardson notwithstanding his two errors, did almost the only clever field work for the visitors, while a double play by Whitney was the only fine play on the part of the home team.

The champions had men on bases in every inning with but one exception—the first, but they were not always successful in getting the runners over the plate. The chance of stealing bases on Bennett were very small, and, as a consequence, a hit or error was needed to advance the runners. The first inning saw the visitors at the bat first, while the 2,950 spectators settled themselves back in their seats with the hope of a fine game, and they got their money's worth. Brown started the ball with a hit just over Connor's head which he could not hold, although he made a good try for it. Brown took too much ground off first, and Keefe got him between the bases and passed the ball to Conner. Brown skipped for second and Roger sent the ball down in that direction, but it went wild. Nothing further happened until Brouthers came to the bat. Dan hits a sharp one to ward, who fumbles it long enough to let Brouthers get first and Brown third. Brown saw that Ward was slow in going for the ball after he had made the muffing, and started home. Ward then got the ball and threw wild to Ewing, and the run was scored.

Further than this one run the visitors did nothing, and for the next four innings they did not get a man to first base. In the sixth inning a base on balls and an error by Richard on put Brown and John-son on the bases, but Whitney's double play closed the inning. The visitors seventh inning was one in which the excitement was so great that the crowd rolled out the cheers as they used to do on the old Polo grounds, while the air was filled with hats and caps. The inning opened by Brouthers hitting safe to centre, while Hardy Richardson hit safely to right. When Keefe got the ball again Brouthers was on third, Richardson on second, and Nash at the bat. Then it was that Keefe showed what he could do, and he struck out Nash and Bennett, and allowed Quinn to hit only a little pop up to Danny Richardson.

The fifth inning saw the New Yorks get the lead with two runs on a base on balls and hits by Richardson and Whitney. To this was added two more in the sixth without the assistance of a hit. Errors by Quinn, Brouthers, and Richardson, and sacrifice hits by Ewing and Connor, did it. In the eighth inning an error by Nash, a hit by Ward, two steals, and a sacrifice by Richardson gave a run, the last one of the game. In the sixth inning there was a kick over the balls, and in the eighth Ewing threw the ball down to Whitney, and it bounded up and hit him in the eye. He was not much hurt. The score:

BROOKLYN, 7; LOUISVILLE, 5.

The Brooklyns won their third straight game from the Louisville Club at Washington Park yesterday before a small crowd. About the only fine work was done by Smith, who made stops of balls over in Collins's garden which the latter could not handle. The contest was long drawn out. Caruthers was hit hard at times, but the hits were badly scattered, and the errors and bases on balls did not assist the visitors to any large extent in the run getting.

Both teams scored in the second inning. Shannon's error allowed Pinkney to reach first, and on Burns's base on balls he got to second, while Corkhill's sacrifice moved both up one base. Both scored a moment later on Caruthers's single. This lead the visitors offset by sending four men across the plate. Both Decker and Raymond hit safe, while Browning's base on balls filled the bases. Hecker scored on Gleason's fly to Burns, Vaughn's single and O'Brien letting the ball get by him made the total of four runs for the inning.

Both sides then drew blanks until the sixth inning, when the Louisvilles managed to score another run. After Hecker had been retired, Raymond hit a single to centre field and on Gleason's hit he scored. The following inning is where the Brooklyns won. Corkhill got to first on called balls and scored on Caruthers's three-bagger. The latter crossed the plate on Bushong's grounder, which Shannon fumbled. Bushong tallied on O'Brien's double. Hits by Collins and Pinkney gave the Brooklyns two more runs in this inning. Neither side scored after this. The score:

CLEVELAND, June 10.—"Play Association ball, do we?" said Tom Loftus to-day. "If by playing Association ball they mean we fight for what belongs to us, we will play it all season and for all time to come. The idea in the heads of these old-timers is that Cleveland team is new and made up simply to be beat. We will show them a little of the kind of ball we may drop. They say we will, though, of course, they do not know, but we will be in the argument with our weaknesses and our strength. We met this same cry on that score last, but it was only when we won, even in the Philadelphia game, that Umpire Barnum gave against us and fined Faatz $50 and Tebeau $10. There's a heap of difference in the feelings of people when the losers are good, nice people, and fighting artists, and financial winners. I prefer the latter. So do the Spiders. We are out to win and get all that we can.

BALTIMORE, June 10.—The announcement that President Stern of the Cincinnati Club was on his way East to secure from Louisville Stratton, Browning, and Hecker, has stirred up the Association magnates, and a call has been issued for a special meeting to ascertain just what Louisville proposed to do. This meeting is to be held on Friday in New York. Chris Von der Ahe of the St. Louis Club, who is now here in the pennant race in the matter, and he is supported by Manager Barnie and other Eastern clubs. The cause of the haste is said to be the report that the Louisville Club intended to dispose of its best players and place the American Association in a predicament. The members anticipating this have sat upon President Davidson, and he is now willing that the claws of President Wikoff, who has been instructed by the majority of the members of the Association to recognize no transfers of players or sales. No later than yesterday despatches flowed to President Wikoff to observe all instructions to the letter. It is a well-known fact that the Louisville Club has been a losing investment, and, including yesterday's game, has lost eight straight contests. Its weakness is due to the sale of certain of the players for which over $10,000 was paid. President Davidson has been in charge of the club, and the charge has been made that he has made any attempt to strengthen his team that it might make a creditable showing, but on the other hand, has tried to dispose of his best men, and quit even, placing the Association in a hole. The members of the Association say that Louisville must either remain in the Association and strengthen itself, or sell out to some one who will.
