Boston Fails to Get a Run in the Game at Cleveland—It was an Off Day in the American Association—News and Gossip.

LOUISVILLE, July 5.—The first case in which ball players ever appealed to the American Association from a manager's ruling was tried to-day at a meeting of the directors of the Association. The result was that Mr. Davidson, late President and manager of the Louisville Base Ball Club, was knocked out by a part of the fines imposed upon the players for their strike in Baltimore being remitted. As the case would establish a precedent for future action, the meeting was regarded as a very important one. Six clubs were represented by the presence of officials and proxies. Those present from abroad were President Von der Ahe of St. Louis, President C. H. Byrne of Brooklyn, W. H. Whitaker, Secretary and Treasurer of the Athletic Club, and Wheeler Wikoff, President and Secretary of the American Association. Mr. Byrne also held proxies for Kansas City and Cincinnati.

The Louisville Ball Club was represented by Messrs. Botto, Reiger, Hall, Gatto, and Pottinger, the new owners, and by Mr. Davidson, the ex-President. The Louisville players in attendance were Hecker, Raymond, Ewing, Vaughn, Shannon, Wolf, Ehret, and Cook. The meeting was held at the Louisville Hotel, and was to begin at 8 o'clock, but was delayed by the absence of Mr. Davidson. Messengers were sent out after him, but it was noon before he came to the hotel. It was decided that the Association should first meet in executive session to ascertain the present status of the Louisville Club and who was behind it. All the representatives expressed themselves as being very favorable to the new organization and desirous of helping the club. President Von der Ahe of St. Louis said:

"We would not have allowed Louisville to drop out of the Association under any circumstances if we could possibly prevent it. The club here was one of the charter members, and has always, until this year, been an excellent drawing card. The fault has been bad management. There is not a better base ball town in America in proportion to population than this, and the new management will succeed if the proper steps are taken."

President Byrne expressed himself in much the same spirit, as did also the others. The meeting was called to order at noon by President Wickoff, the session being an executive one. The first business was the formal transfer of the Louisville Club from the old to the new owners. This occupied but a few minutes, and the players of the Louisville Club were then called in. Hecker made the first statement as to the manner in which the men had been treated by Davidson and detailed the fines which had been assessed. Statements were also made by Wolf, Shannon, Raymond, Ewing, and Vaughn, all of them being substantially the same. Eight players had been fined various sums aggregating $1,435, but $1,250 of these fines were imposed upon the six players who went upon the Baltimore strike on June 14 and 15.

The principal thing considered was the cause of the strike in Baltimore, and on this point both sides were heard fully. It appeared, however, that previous fines had caused the trouble. Wolf had been fined $25 for bad language used on a sleeping car, Vaughn had $25 for stupid base running; Ehret had Clark's $20 each for getting mixed in their signs when they were acting as battery, Browning got $10 for failing to slide, and Shannon $25 for a missed ball. These fines provoked the players, and they informed Davidson that they would not go on the field unless he remitted them. Instead of doing so he went to New York, leaving the club over to the players.

In view of this fact, and the further one that they had not been paid their salaries promptly, the Association decided to be lenient with the offenders, although their conduct was not what it should have been. The fines of $100 each assessed upon Ehret, Browning, Cook, Hecker, Shannon, and Raymond were accordingly remitted for the first day of the strike. These were the six players who refused to go upon the field. The next morning Mr. Wikoff came to Baltimore, and the latter told the players to go on with the games and the Association would see that their wrongs, if any, were redressed. In spite of this the six men remained on the field until the next day. The Association regarded this as such a flagrant violation of discipline as to merit the severest punishment, and consequently the fines for this day were sustained.

The players were also warned that only the palliating circumstances of their previous bad treatment saved them from severe discipline. John Ewing has been sent home from Columbus, and when pay day came learned that he had been laid off without pay. The amount of his salary which had been deducted amounted to $184. The Association found this action arbitrary and unjust, and ordered that it be set aside. Browning had been fined $100 for drunkenness in Brooklyn, and this was sustained. The other fine of $10 for failure to slide was remitted. All the other fines for bad playing, &c., were remitted. The total amount was $735, and the assessments remitted for each player were as follows: Wm. Wolf, $25; Henry Vaughn, $25; Phil Ehret, $125; L. H. Browning, $100; Daniel Shannon, $125; Harry Raymond and Guy Hecker, $100 each; and Paul Cook, $125.

The report, in which all these findings and the reasons therefore were set forth, formed several pages of type-written foolscap. The document was signed by W. H. Whitaker for the Athletic Club, C. H. Byrne as proxy for the Cincinnati Club, and Wheeler C. Wikoff, ex-officio Chairman of the Board of Directors. In speaking of the matter to THE SUN correspondent, Mr. Wikoff said: "Nearly all the fines except those for the strike were assessed without reason. For instance, Shannon was fined $25 for refusing to accept a chance when he had already successfully accepted twelve other chances. Vaughn was fined $25 for stopping and running back to the bag when he heard Orfflin shout to Mack to make a double play. This was nonsensical, and no ball player can be dissatisfied with our finding in this case."

The new managers of the Louisville Club have already taken steps to secure another pitcher. He is a man recommended by Umpire Bob Ferguson, who says he is a good one. It was announced this afternoon that Bill Gleason would be released and Tomney be placed at short stop. The latter has recently been playing fine ball.

The National League.

The result of the National League games yesterday was: Pittsburgh 5, New York 2; Cleveland 2, Boston 0; Chicago 8, Washington 1; Philadelphia 11, Indianapolis 2.

PITTSBURGH, 5; NEW YORK, 2.

PITTSBURGH, July 5.—That very genial and considerate gentleman, Jeems Mutrie, had a nice little scheme matured out to-day that did not work by any means. Before he, with his aggregation, left the hotel for the grounds, he sent Buck Ewing arranged a pan by which the pride of Pittsburgh was to be knocked out without a run, the entire idea being that the man would be spotted. When the team took the change arrived at the grounds, however, the genial manager discovered little sympathy, and remarked that the home team would not be shut out, and the result was one 6 to 2 against them. It is now a matter of history that the plans and account of Messrs. Mutrie and Ewing were knocked out of sight.

The truth is, the Pittsburgs were the luckiest people that ever entered into a contest to get a run at all. The two that are recorded to their credit were not altogether merited by their good deeds, and they were scored at the very last stage of the game at that. As it was, however, the run getting of the visitors caused considerable uneasiness among the 2,500 spectators. It really did look, at the last inning, as if a cluster of errors was going to burst all the hopes and cheerful expectations of the crowd, and certainly the air for ten minutes was full of despondency.

The game was a good one, and the weather was quite cool and fine. There were many teasing fly balls left by the visiting outfielders. The fielding of the visitors was excellent, and the only fielding error they made was a wild throw in by Gore. So much cannot be said of their batting, however, and if to-day's game is to be taken as a criterion we might as well lay claim to the pennant ourselves. The singles from the visitors were hardly at sea with Staley, the southpaw, in the box. Staley undoubtedly pitched a game that may safely be termed first-class. His speed was great, and he had a much better command of the ball than usual. Miller caught him well, and the general support accorded him was fine. The very best kind. Hanlon, Dunlap, Ewing, and Smith all played well. The home team, Mackey excepted, was a nothing like strawberry jam for the home talent, and almost all of the men seemed to enjoy it exceedingly. Carroll and Dunlap were out for all the good things they could get. Each was five times at bat and each had four hits. Dunlap, however, had our hits and a line, while Carroll had four hits and a retirement at first. Carroll however, bothered the ball away just whacking it as a butcher would a bullock. Dunlap's hitting was of the scientific kind, because, every time he went to bat, there were men on bases. Fred just placed hits in nice, comfortable localities. Undoubtedly, Welch was hit so ready that the fielders were kept very busy, and even at that, there was not much encouragement for them. They played a sticky game however, and, as above intimated, gave the Pittsburgh's enthusiasts the shakes to a very great extent.

For the first three innings the contest was one really between the pitchers. The first inning may probably be excepted, but for each side that inning was singular. After Hanlon and Sunday had gone out Carroll and Miller made splendid singles, but a short grounder by Dunlap retired the side. For the visitors Gore made a corking single to left and reached second on a wild pitch. Tiernan flew out, and Ewing made a good single to right and Gore got to third. Staley settled down and struck Connor out amid cheers, and Richardson's fly dropped into Hanlon's hands.

In the fourth inning the home sluggers fairly found the measure of New York's smiling pitcher. They jumped onto him as if intending to gobble him up without salt. The burly Carroll commenced with a lively single to left and Miller came up smiling responsive to the good-natured look of Mickey. Smiles didn't go far, however, as Miller sent the ball, with porcupine quills on, tearing the grass up by the roots as it went along. Letters O'Rourke could lay hands on that very hot ball Miller was at second base and Carroll was home. Dunlap dropped a nice little hit into right field, and Miller scored. In the next inning Hanlon led off with a cheerful double over Tiernan's head, and Sunday was easily retired at first. Carroll came again with a good single, and Hanlon scored. O'Rourke threw the ball wildly to the plate, and Carroll reached third. Miller went out at first, but Dunlap found the leather for two bases. He knocked the ball very cunningly into right field, and Carroll came in with the fourth earned run.

In the seventh inning Carroll led off and banged the ball clear to the right field fence for three bases. This aroused the enthusiasm of the crowd to a high degree. After Miller had been retired Dunlap brought Carroll home by a single to right field.

The visitors made their runs in the ninth inning. Tiernan led off and hit for a splendid double to centre and got to third on a passed ball. Ewing flew out to Hanlon and Connor got his base on balls. Richardson followed with a single to left and Tiernan scored. Smith fumbled O'Rourke's grounder and Connor scored. There were now two men on bases and only one man out. Many thought that Staley was weakening but they were deceived. Hatfield was retired at first and Arthur Whitney went out on a foul fly to Miller and the agony was over. McQuaid umpired a good game.

In the early part of the game there was much grumbling about Weidenkeller's left foot being out of the box. The umpire did not interfere, however. Ewing played extremely hard to win. The score:

CLEVELAND, 2; BOSTON, 0.

CLEVELAND, July 5.—To-day's game was the best of the season, and 5,000 spectators cheered the Spiders lustily for shutting out the Bostons after a clean and fielding game. The Bostons, with mighty Clarkson in the box, were clearly outpitched. Bakeley pitched magnificently. Kelly was thrown out at the plate in the fourth trying to score on a three-base hit, and lost the game in the ninth by misjudging Zimmer's long hit and returning it badly. The score:

CINCINNATI, 10; BALTIMORE, 8.

CINCINNATI, July 5.—To-day's game with Baltimore was played under protest. In the morning, with two men out, with one second and Mack at the bat, the Baltimores announced the retirement of Mullane and Earle, who were practicing in the grounds, outside the Sarah street park. Burdette ordered Mack to stand out and called in the Baltimores to be ready. Shortly after waiting a few minutes, decorated Mack out and called in the Cincinnatis to bat. Meeting then announced that the game would be finished under protest. The home club turned out five runs and victory in the last half of the ninth inning, Griffin and Mack played beautifully.
