AFTER THE PENNANT.

THE NEW YORKS DEFEAT THE CLEVELANDS EASILY.

Hard Hitting that Told in the Victory—The Visitors Satisfied at Not Being Whitewashed—What Manager Loftus Thinks of his Own Team and the Bostons—Other Games—Latest News and Gossip.

Tom Loftus came to this city yesterday as chipper as a cricket. When THE SUN reporter asked him at about where his team expected to wind up the season, he very modestly said: "Oh, we don't expect to get the championship, you know, but we do expect to keep on hustling the leaders. We have made a good showing so far simply on our good fielding. We are not much at the bat, although we do get a few earned runs once in a while. Our pitchers have been in good shape all along, but I cannot say as much for them at present. Still, I am not worrying. We expect to get third place, and if we do that the people of Cleveland will be satisfied. This, you must acknowledge, is as much, if not a shade more, than could naturally be expected from the infant club of the League."

Mr. Loftus is about as good a judge of base ball as can be found, and coming right from Boston, he had not a little news to tell the boys in this city. In speaking of the Boston team, he said: "Oh! they are not in it. Why? In the first place, they have no infield to speak of. Quinn and Richardson are simply unable to make a double play, and the former is very weak in his position."

Mr. Loftus says that the Bostons have but one pitcher—Clarkson. The team, he says, are all right, so long as they can hit a pitcher, but when they don't hat they quit. The lively Cleveland manager says that, in his opinion, there is only one club in the race, and that is New York. He does not see how the New Yorks can help but win the flag, for he has seen no better ball playing this season than that which the New Yorks are now putting up.

The National League.

The three games played by the clubs of the National League yesterday resulted as follow: New York 9, Cleveland 1; Philadelphia 9, Chicago 2; Indianapolis 8, Washington 3. At Boston, rain.

NEW YORK, 9; CLEVELAND, 1.

The Clevelands, or League infants and babies, as they are called, yesterday received a taste of what might be expected by any club at the hands of the champions. The Clevelands, fresh from Boston, were expected to make things at least interesting for the New Yorks, but they did not. Before the game Manager Loftus said that his team was doing fine work in the field, but was not batting to speak of. This summed up the work of the visitors in yesterday's game. Their fielding could not be improved, and at times it bordered on brilliancy, but they could not hit Welch, and therefore they could not make a better showing. After the first inning, in which the New Yorks batted Bakely for four earned runs, the Clevelands centred all their efforts in preventing a whitewash. They acknowledged that they had no chance against such work as the New Yorks were doing, and were perfectly satisfied to come out as they did.

Welch was in good form, and with Ewing behind the bat the Cleveland batsmen were mowed down like grass before a wind storm. On one or two occasions during the earlier part of the game they attempted base stealing, but they soon found that hugging the bases was better than trying to steal down on Ewing's lightning throws. There was no fancy business about the New Yorks' field work, they played for outs, and several new tricks which they introduced in this game worked like a charm. The boys hit the ball when hits were needed. Bakely received a red-hot reception at the start off, but he settled down in good form after the first inning, and pitched good ball. He, however, could not prevent the hits from being bunched at times, and then, too, he was a shade wild in the fourth inning, when the New Yorks scored their second tour runs. Altogether, he did fairly well after the home team's first burst of hitting.

At the beginning of the sixth inning Ewing gave way to Brown, so that he could take a rest. Zimmer was taken sick at about the same time and gave way to Snyder. The changing of catchers had very little bearing on the game. Powers umpired the game, and did it so well that there was but one kick during the contest, and that was on a close decision in the fourth inning at the plate, but Powers was right. Even had the decision been off, it would only have made a slight change in the score. It is refreshing to have such satisfactory work as Powers is doing.

As is the usual custom with the New York Club, they went to the bat first, so as to get a crack at the new ball, and they got it. Gore dropped the ball out of the reach of fleet-foot Radford, and got two bases. Tiernan also got a two-base hit, but could not bring Gore home, owing to the peculiarity of the hit. The ball dropped into deep left field, but Tiernan was so near that Gore was even afraid to go half way to third for fear the ball would be caught and he be thrown out at second. However, a thing like this is likely to happen at any time, and this time it was just as well, for Ewing cleared the bases with a pretty single to right field. Connor followed with a hit to left field, and Richardson moved both men up a base with a sacrifice grounder to Foutz. It was now Ward's turn at the bat, and he got there in great shape. He banged the ball into centre field for a base, and two runs came home. Things were now becoming interesting, and the visitors even thought that the New Yorks were shooting the ball about the field.

This sort of thing did not last long, for in the second and third innings the New Yorks did not get a man to first base. In the fourth inning it was Bakely's fault that the New Yorks got as many runs as they did. Ward began the inning by getting his base on balls, and stole second. Richardson followed with a hit to right field, and Whitney walked to first after four balls had been called. With the bases full and no one out, Bakely had indeed got himself in a deep hole, and Capt. Faatz called him down. He then became more steady, but it was too late. Welch hit a hot grounder at Bakely, but he fielded it to the plate rather wildly to Zimmer, who was forced to remove his foot from the plate in order to prevent the ball going wild. This enabled Ward to score. Again Bakely lost his head, and pitched the ball so wildly that O'Rourke and Whitney both scored, the latter from second base. This play put Mickey Welch on third, where he stayed while the next two men went out.

Ewing was next at bat. He glanced at the back fence, and then drove the ball skyward. Had the ball gone toward the centre-field fence Fuck would have been $100 richer this minute. There was too much twist on the ball, however, and it went toward left field, and dropped on top of the embankment, as far back as it could go. Three bases was the result of this hit, and Welch walked home. The sixth inning netted the New Yorks their last run. A three-base hit by Tiernan into right field and a two-base hit by Ewing was what did it. The visitors' only run was scored in the sixth inning on a hit by pitcher, errors by Richardson and Whitney, and a sacrifice hit by Faatz.

In the fifth inning the visitors were retired in a remarkable neat manner, Gore, Whitney, and Ewing doing the work in the inning. Tebeau carried off the batting honors for the visitors while the fine work in the field was well distributed. There were 3,571 spectators present. The score:

INDIANAPOLIS, 8; WASHINGTON, 3.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The Hoosier team defeated the Washingtons to-day principally on account of the damaging errors of Irwin and the erratic work of Clarke. O'Day pitched a great game, the visitors being unable to earn a run while the home club earned two. The only bit of good fielding was a clever one-hand stop of a difficult grounder by Denny. PHILADELPHIA, 9; CHICAGO, 2.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Hard and sequential hitting in the second and third innings, assisted by two bases on balls and disastrous errors by Burns and Anson, gave the Philadelphias a comparatively easy victory over Chicago to-day. ST. LOUIS, 13; ATHLETIC, 12.

ST. LOUIS, July 11.—The heaviest slugging match seen here took place to-day, the Browns defeating the Athletics after a hard fight. Both Seward and King were knocked out of the box, the former retiring in the second and the latter in the fourth inning. Latham played miserably, and King's support was wretched. Stivetts saved the day for the Browns by his wonderful pitching, striking out seven men in three innings. Jones and Bauer carried off the honors of the day. The score

Chips From the Diamond.

The babies will be here again to-day.

W. W. Christie—It does not. It is a battery error.

From what Manager Loftus says, the Bostons are in a bad way.

J. H. Fleming—The information will be found in THE SUN of last Sunday.

That crowd on the hill south of 155th street will find itself out in the cold before long.

Instead of impeding, the attendance at the Jersey City games is growing less at every game.

Worcester, July 11.—At a day's session of the Central District Court liquory, W. Lynch, a member of the Hartford base ball team, was fined $50 and costs for assault and battery upon Capt. Cudworth of the Worcesters during yesterday's game.

Chic Hofford is at last in form, and is throwing out base runners with little ceremony.

Denny has made fourteen doubles and eight home runs this season, but has yet to make a three-bagger.

Seven boys crowded through a hole under the centre-field fence at the Polo grounds yesterday and saw the game.

All of the New York players have their eyes on that $100 and the fence. Who will be the next to put the ball over?

After every game the big crowd of boys who use the bluff to see the game run down and cheer the New York players.

If Jersey City defeats Worcester to-day and the Hartfords knock out Wilkesbarre, Powers's pets will once more take the lead.

The Middle States League will begin the season at Morristown, N. J., to-day, when the Gorhams and Harrisburg club will play.

Pat Powers said yesterday afternoon that a committee is now at Providence in regard to getting that city to enter the Atlantic Association.

During practice before the game yesterday Crane drove the ball over the centre-field fence, near the flag pole, while standing near the home plate.

Noah was the first curved pitcher. He pitched within and out. He was no slouch of a twister, either—his neighbors couldn't get "unto" his ark.—Puck.

The Winona Base Ball Club of the B. S. M. C. A. would like to arrange a game for Saturday to be played at Prospect Park. Address W. A. J. Flack, 634 Pacific street, Brooklyn.

Billy Primrose says he will have sole privileges on playing games at the new Polo grounds when the New Yorks are on their trips, and he thinks he will place the Metropolitans there.

Cudworth can be heard chattering from the outfield during the whole game. When Burkett gave Hofford his first base on called balls yesterday the wind brought a "Well, well, well!" from "Cuddy."

The Brooklyn "D" Base Ball Club have Saturday, July 13 and 20, open, also Sunday, July 14, which they would like to fill with first-class clubs. Address John H. Maher, 222 Lexington avenue, Brooklyn.

The Middle States League have admitted Shenandoah and Hazleton, Pa., making it an eight club league. The Gorhams will locate in Lancaster after July 16. The League will probably have a meeting at Philadelphia this week to adopt a new schedule.

CLEVELAND, July 11.—The Cleveland Club to-day released catcher Joseph Lohbeck to the Milwaukee team of the Western Association. He agreed on terms and started for Milwaukee to-night. A side agreement binds the Milwaukee Club to return him to Cleveland at the end of the season. The man will be a great catcher with a little more experience, and is a throwing wonder.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—The manager of the Harlsdon Club has signed these players: White, pitcher; Graves, c.; Corcoran, 1st b.; Davis, 2d b.; Dunn, 3d b.; W. Kelly, s. s.; Crowley, l. f.; Brady, c. f.; Kelly, r. f.; J. Lincan, substitute. Graves and White are Eyes are Indians, and as a battery they have made an excellent reputation among the amateurs of this city. The Harlsdons will play their opening game with the Cuban Giants.

The Worcesters are a great team for having a ball in their pocket. Yesterday O'Brien saw that Campion had a ball in his pocket, and a while later a player that looked very much like Annis was caught with another. Jim Cudworth was also seen, while returning from the field during the game, to take a ball from some part of his clothing and place it in his bat bag. Their trick, it seems, is that when they retire the last man on the opposing team, to change a new ball for an old one, and vice versa when they go to the field.

ROCHESTER, July 11.—The Rochester Base Ball Association is in desperate straits. A meeting of local base ball enthusiasts was held here last night, and after two hours' discussion little was accomplished. It was stated at the meeting that the debt of the club was $2,000, and that $4,000 had been guaranteed to carry it on. No names were mentioned of the guarantors. Unless an agreement is reached this week the club will disband. A number of base ball lovers with money stand ready to buy the franchise, but want the entire control. This the present directors refuse to give.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Ed Williamson indignantly denies the report published from Chicago to-day that there is any controversy between Mr. Spalding and himself on the subject of salary. Williamson is here with the Chicago team practising daily, and he says he has a satisfactory understanding with the management of the Chicago Club. After his return from abroad he called upon Mr Spalding, and the latter told him to get himself in condition as soon as possible, and when he was ready to begin work there would be no trouble about compensation. Mr. Spalding very generously suggested that if he needed any assistance during his lay-off to call on the Chicago Club. Williamson says he has not seen Mr. Spalding since that interview occurred, and that such reports as that published to-day are very annoying to him.

LOUISVILLE, July 11.—The stockholders of Louisville Base Ball Club met at noon to-day at the law office of O'Neal, Jackson, and Helm. The attendance was limited almost to the members of the new syndicate, and all of the ten were not even present. Mr. Lawrence S. Parsons, general freight agent of the Louisville route, was elected president, George Rieger, Vice-President, T. F. Bartman of T. H. Sherley & Co., Secretary and Treasurer, and John R. Botto, city business manager. Mr. Pace, Phelps, etc., completed the directory, and retained as attorney of the club. The directors then went into executive session for the purpose of considering the matter of a manager for the club. The probabilities are that Joe Gerhardt will be secured as captain and manager and
