FRIDAY, Nov. 8.

Boston gave the speculative community a good deal of encouragement to-day. There is a well-preserved tradition that the New Englanders invariably take the lead in every pronounced advance in the stock market. The success that the Atchison plan of reorganization is meeting with, together with the recent improvement in the market for copper stocks, appear to have revived the spirits of the Puritans and stimulated them to fresh activity. They and their foreign allies took hold of Atchison stock to-day, both in their own and the local market, in a manner that indicated returning confidence in the property. The "rights" on Atchison stock were in demand, owing to advancing quotations for the securities of the reorganized company. The stock was more extensively dealt in than any other, and closed with an exceptional net advance of over 1 ⅌ cent. The only other stocks that were superior to the adverse influences of the day were certain of the specialities, notably Tennessee Coal and Iron, Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo, and St. Paul and Manitoba.

The view regarding the speculative situation in Reading expressed in this column this morning was borne out by to-day's market. There was an excellent borrowing demand for the stock early in the day, and in spite of determined efforts to depress Lackawanna and Jersey Central, presumably with a view of recovering short stock in Reading, the price was not impaired. Heavy and effective selling of St. Paul common was another feature of a fairly active market. It was attended by, or rather provoked, a variety of unfavorable rumors regarding the finances of the company. It is understood that the bears have employed an expert accountant to interpret unfavorable results from the annual report of the company recently issued.

The course of Sugar Refineries stock demonstrated that as usual the event, which in this case was the decision of the General Term against the trust, had been discounted. The market for it was strong from the opening and advanced sharply late in the day, more than recovering yesterday's decline. Reports of a reorganization of the trust were current, but there were no developments in support of them. The closing was irregular, with the majority of prices lower than yesterday.

Final sales compare with those of yesterday as follows:

New York Markets.

FRIDAY, Nov. 8.—FLOUR AND MEAL—The market was less active for the low grades the export demand having subsided, but prices were pretty well sustained.

COTTON—Futures opened firmer on a further improvement in the Liverpool market, while the scare about the forthcoming report from the Agricultural Bureau was worked for all it was worth. Still, there were many who believed that the position had been discounted; receipts at interior towns were large, and at all points advance from the market inside figures many were inclined to realize profits. Under this influence the early advance was lost, but the close was steady. Cotton on the spot was dull and weak; middling uplands, 10¼c.; Gulfs, 10¾c. The following are the closing prices bid for futures, with sales aggregating 112,300 bales:

November	10.12c.	February	10.26c.	May	10.50c.
December	10.15c.	March	10.34c.	June	10.57c.
January	10.18c.	April	10.42c.	July	10.63c.
