THEY MAY CONSOLIDATE.

BOTH SIDES IN THE BIG FIGHT READY TO TALK BUSINESS.

What is Said About the Buying of the Cincinnati Players—President Day is Ready to Do Anything to Secure Harmony, Even to the Selling of His Club—Other News and Notes—Games Yesterday.

The reproduction yesterday of the Brotherhood's original manifesto regarding the purchase, sale, and exchange of players, in connection with the purchase of the Cincinnati Club and its players, appeared to be the whole topic of conversation among base ball men yesterday. The purchase, sale, and exchange of men were the strongest points made by the Brotherhood against the methods of the National League. The deal with the Cincinnati Club and the manner in which the syndicate secured a majority of the players seemed to completely upset the theory of the Brotherhood. Vice-President Talcott of the New York (P. L.) Club said that it was, technically speaking, a purchase of players, but that it was one of those occasions that the Brotherhood or Players' League never dreamed of when they came into existence. President Day of the New York (N. L.) Club was certain that THE SUN had struck the right chord. Tim Keefe looked at it in a light of a far-fetched argument. He admitted that to a certain extent the Cincinnati players were purchased, but he claimed that they didn't have to sign a contract with the Players' League if they didn't want to. J. W. Spalding thought it was the keynote to the position, while A. G. Mills, ex-President of the National League, is evidently still in deep sympathy with the old organization, for he believes that THE SUN was wise in exposing what he termed "the Brotherhood's fallacy."

Vice-President Talcott, who was prominently identified with the Cincinnati deal, had scarce returned from the scene of his success when he greeted a SUN reporter very courteously yesterday, and reiterated in strong terms that the Players' League had made the hit of its existence when it purchased the Cincinnati Club.

"But," said the reporter, "haven't you violated one of the principles of the Brotherhood?"

"Brotherhood? Why the Brotherhood had nothing to do with the Cincinnati deal. You forget, no doubt, that the Brotherhood and Players' League are separate and distinct organizations. It was a number of gentlemen connected with the Players' League, and not of the Brotherhood, that purchased the Cincinnati Club."

"Then the Brotherhood is not recognized in the deal?"

"I didn't say that. What was done in Cincinnati was, of course, in the interests of the Brotherhood, but I can't see that in securing the players of the Cincinnati Club for the Players' League we violate one of the pledges of the Brotherhood. We purchased the club, and, of course, we wanted a number of players and got them. But the men were not purchased for the purpose of selling them again, that's certain. I believe in treating men like men, and the Players' League thus far has kept its agreement with its players to the very letter."

"Don't you think $40,000 was a large price for the Cincinnati franchise?"

"It was the biggest kind of a bargain. We are perfectly satisfied with the purchase, and what alarmed us most was that Mr. Sterns might recede and keep the club himself. With Cincinnati in the fold the Players' League has a splendid circuit, and all the club now wants is two or three more strong players to make it one of the very strongest clubs in the country."

"Cincinnati is essentially a city for Sunday playing. Does the purchase of the club mean that the Players' League will play on Sundays?"

"No, sir. There will never be any Sunday ball playing in the Players' League. If that should ever take place I will retire from the club, and I speak for President McAlpin of the League as well."

"It is reported that Buck Ewing would like to go to Cincinnati."

"He has never said anything to me about such a move, and I know if he ever contemplated making such a move I would probably be the last to have known it. Ewing and myself are the best of friends. If Ewing would come and say he was dissatisfied with the surroundings of his present club and wanted to leave, I would certainly be in favor of releasing him. I am strongly opposed to keeping a man in New York against his will. Ewing is no use talking on this subject. Ewing is a loyal a man as we have in the ranks."

"Is it true that a committee of the Players' League will meet a committee of the National League, for the purpose of effecting a compromise during the next day? The National League in this city next Thursday?"

"Nothing has been done in that direction that I am aware of. Still, I am in favor of such a scheme, and I think it should be the aim of everybody who has the game at heart to exert himself and try and stop this disastrous warfare. The Players' League has not asked for a conference, nor has it been asked by the National League. Yet there is no good reason why the two organizations should not endeavor to bring about peace. There is a way out of the difficulty, sure. Both sides have got to make certain concessions. But one thing is certain, I would not be in favor of doing anything that would have a tendency to reflect a particle of discredit upon those connected with the Players' League."

"President Day announces that the New York club is for sale. Is the Players' League a bidder?"

"It is not."

"Suppose you had an opportunity of purchasing Mr. Day's interest in the New York Club, would you consider the offer?"

"Well, that is a question I don't care about answering just now. If Mr. Day should make me an offer personally then I would talk."

Mr. Talcott was asked whether there would be any changes in the personnel of the New York (P. L.) Club next season, but he declared he knew nothing about that matter at present. Gil Hatfield, however, told THE SUN reporter that he believed he was one of a number to go, and that the only feeling he had in the matter was that he hardly had a fair show, although he fared better this year than ever before. "Of course," said Hatfield, "I like the Players' League, and will give it the preference for next season. But if the National League does better by me, I will certainly have to go with that organization."

J. W. Spalding, who undoubtedly expresses his brother's sentiments in a base ball sense said: "The fact is the principles enunciated by the Brotherhood have always been misleading. The Cincinnati deal shows this. The syndicate may think that they have accomplished a great piece of work in purchasing the Cincinnati Club, but I think they could have placed their money to better advantage. Suppose the National League should put a club in that city, it would change the appearances some, don't you think so? I have no idea at all what the feeling of the National League is in regards to such a scheme; but I think it would be a good stroke of policy for the organization to put a club against its rival even at a loss. Of course two clubs couldn't live there, but the interest would be divided, and that is what the National League should strive to do as long as the war continued. I have heard nothing officially but it wouldn't surprise me at all to see the League, if it could find a competent manager to start a club in. I give bonds that he would continue throughout the season, if he could get manager by guaranteeing him a certain sum of money to make good a portion of the loss he may sustain."

Have you any knowledge of a conference between the National and Players' League?"

"I know of no thing that would do more harm and it may possible do lots of good. It would be a wise thing indeed if a committee from the National and Players' Leagues and the American and Western Associations should meet and talk calmly over the situation. But there is no use at present of a meeting between the National and Players' Leagues simply to set together dates in the future. That will be one to be considered by the National League. If the matter is not substantially settled, it will be a war to extermination, and I can tell you the National League can stand it for a good long time."

"Of course the National League will expect to make some concessions?"

"The National League has undoubtedly made base ball what it is. It will certainly not agree to the disturbance of the arrangement put up for the abolition of the reserve rule. Take the reserve rule away and what will become of base ball? If the Players' League or anybody else can show the National League how the game can be made more popular and the latter body will accede to the idea of a change, I think the organization ought to consider a conference is necessary."

Col. McAlpin, President of the Players' League, said he thought the purchase of the Cincinnati Club was the most important piece of business the Players' League had transacted since its organization.

"Are you after any more clubs, Colonel?" asked the reporter.

The gallant colonel smiled, and running his fingers for a long time in such a hurry, said as he laid good day to the reporter, "I shall be coming to tell you on that point by next week."

President John B. Day was seen last night by a news reporter regarding the rumor that he is willing to sell the New York club. "I was said that I would sell," said Mr. Day, "but with no thought whatever that anybody would buy. Any business man would see if he could get his price. As regards the New York (N. L.) team, the figure put on it would be I know, in excess of what anybody but ourselves would think it was worth.

"Do you think there will be a compromise?" he was asked.

"There ought to be," was Mr. Day's answer. "Everything points to such a result. Everybody is losing money. Two clubs cannot live in New York, even with monopoly of the game. The only way out of this difficulty is for a consolidation of the two clubs. I had rather have half a loaf of a good thing than the whole of a bad loaf. If I thought the Players' League was likely to quit I should say go on with the war. But as that League seems ready to stick, and as all hands are losing money the best way, it seems, is to get together and try to adjust matters so that base ball will be put on a paying basis once more. Of course, if the majority are opposed to a compromise then we shall have to go on as we have during the past season. The only way, it seems to me, is to proceed on business principles, stop all foolish and nonsense, and amalgamate where there are two clubs in one city. The American Association would have a hand in it. It might be reorganized the International League started up again, and in fact everything put back on about the same lines as existed before the trouble. That, I think, would give the game some shot of a boom."

"Will the National League wait until the Players' League asks for a conference before anything is done?"

"Not necessarily. Anybody with a good proposition will probably receive attention by either side. The Players' League is willing to end the fight, and for my part I am."

"What would be done with the extra grounds and players in this city?"

"Either the Brotherhood's or our grounds could be easily disposed of to an athletic association that is looking for such. As to the players, there is room for all good ones. There are more good players on the two teams here than would be economically stated on one team, but they could find places easily."

"Would the Brotherhood players come in with Glasscock and Denny?"

"They would have nothing to say about it. Different men are running the Players' League this year from those at the head of the association last year."

FOR THE COLLEGE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Wet Grounds Have a Bad Effect on the Work of the Students.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 6.—Notwithstanding the threatening weather here to-day the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association commenced its annual fall tournament. The grounds were in excellent condition, considering the wet weather, but the balls soon became wet and soggy, and greatly interfered with the best play. The prizes this year are more handsome than ever before, and attracted much attention. But six matches were started, and of these but five were finished.

The first match of the day was between A. J. Parker of Yale and F. A. Stearns of Amherst. Parker had matters all his own way in the first set, and won easily. Stearns showed much improvement in the second set, but was compelled to succumb to the superior work of his opponent. A. E. Wright, one of Columbia's representatives, defeated W. H. Larned of Cornell with ease. Everybody seemed surprised when O. S. Campbell, the champion, lost the opening set in his match with R. H. Mallery of Trinity, but losing a set did not seem to bother Campbell in the slightest degree, and he allowed his opponent but a single game in the following two sets.

F. H. Hovey of Harvard played in very fine form and is likely to prove a dangerous opponent. E. F. McMillan, Columbia's expert, and J. R. Parker of Yale were prevented from finishing their match by rain, after each had captured a set. The only other unfinished contest was between E. J. White of Cornell and G. T. Gunnison of Dartmouth. This match finished the day's play, as the courts were too wet in the afternoon to continue. To-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock the tournament will be continued, and the single matches of the first round will be started.

The doubles will be begun in the afternoon. This evening at the University Club the Intercollegiate Association will hold its annual meeting. Appended are the scores:

Singles, preliminary round—T. H. Hovey of Harvard beat G. A. Avery of Williams, 6—2, 6—2; A. J. Parker of Yale beat F. A. Stearns of Amherst, 6—4, 6—4; O. S. Campbell of Columbia beat R. H. Mallery of Trinity, 4—6, 6—1, 6—0; A. E. Wright of Columbia beat W. H. Larned of Cornell 6—2, 6—1; E. F. McMillan of Columbia vs. L. R. Parker of Yale, 6—4, 3—6 unfinished. E. J. White of Cornel vs. G. A. Gunnison of Dartmouth, 6—2, 4—6, unfinished.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

The Visiting Detroit Players Complain of Discourtesy on the Part of Our Athletes.

To-day will probably see the settlement of the Amateur Athletic Union base ball championship, and whether the Detroits beard the train victors or losers they will carry West with them a number of grievances, chief of which is partial umpiring in favor of their opponents. But a more serious charge is made by some of the team, and that is discourteous treatment in the East, in a morning newspaper one of the visitors makes the complaint that since their sojourn in this city but one member of the New Jersey team has visited them, whereas had the New Jerseys visited Detroit they would have been treated in a royal manner. When Manager Guiney of the Detroits was seen yesterday concerning this he said: "I can hardly believe that one of my men so far forgot himself as to do such a thing. If it is true it was in extremely bad taste, and I wish Mr. Sox would say so. We have received many courtesies at the hands of the New Jersey Athletic club, which is the team of Newark, and these, with Brooklyn's extra players, will play against the regular Brooklyn team. It is possible that Gilliland of the New Havens one of the best young blood pitchers in the country, may join the club. The team down last week without a hit or a run, will pitch for the picked team. The game promises to be very exciting. Manager Mountain, who is expected a hat with Capt. O'Brien that the picked team will win.

The Season a Failure in Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 6.—The base ball season in this city ended to-day, and to say that it has proved a failure would be putting it rather mild. Inclement weather and numerous counter attractions are in a measure accountable for the meagre attendance at the local games. The direct responsibility for the want of success, however, is clearly attributable to incompetent management. The result is that Mr. Frazer's experience as a base ball manager will cost him between $8,000 and $10,000, although it is probable that he himself does not know the real extent of his loss. There being a probability that the Syracuse and Rochester clubs will be dropped from the Association, steps have been taken for the organization of a State league, and the cities talked of are Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Albany, and Troy. David A. Dischler, a prominent base ball man of Utica, is now making a tour of the State with that object in view. He was encouraged by the reception he received in this city, and expressed the opinion that if the object of his journeying could be consummated there is no doubt but what it would be a great success. Mr. Frazer, with the disastrous experience of the present year in the Association in mind, and with the prospects of the organizing of a strong State league, has decided that the dropping of Syracuse from the ranks of its present company would not cause any regret among base ball lovers.

Manager Sharsig of the Athletics, who is here, expressed the opinion that unless some of the clubs should drop out, there would be no change in the Association next year. He thinks that the new clubs cannot be from out. Mr. Frazer last night reserved his team of eleven players for next season. Connie Murphy, who bolted to the Players' League is also held in reserve. The team will go to Baltimore, where they play three games and will wind up the season with the Athletics in Philadelphia. They will disband in the latter city on Oct. 14. Manager Frazer said to-day that if he concluded not to stay in the Association next year he would sell his franchise. His players are for sale if purchasers come to his figures. If they try to crowd him out of the Association, he said, they will have a good time, for it can't be done. The Syracusans will play at Philadelphia on Oct. 13, 14, 15, with the National League team of that city.

Base Ball Notes.

B. M. Butler of Gorham fame has returned from Boston and intends to begin work in building up his club for next season.

In a short time a suit will be started by several of the ex-players against the club against the Jersey City Base Ball Exhibition Company for money due.

The Lehigh and New Jersey Athletic club game at the Polo grounds yesterday was prevented by rain. The game will be played to-day at the Polo grounds.

Wilson, the crack Jersey City amateur, made a good showing against the Cuban Giants on Sunday. He was handicapped owing to the many errors behind him.

In the Cuban Giant-Allerton game on Sunday Holmes of the Allertons had fifteen chances, of which he accepted twelve. This is an unusual large number of chances for a third base man.

Base ball is so dead to speakers that the directors of the club came to the conclusion not to play exhibition games, consequently the club has been disbanded. The loss to the owners of the club during the past season will foot up over $6,000, and from present indications it is doubtful whether or a professional club will represent Newark next season.

The Hamilton Base Ball Club of East New York has disbanded for the season of 1890. They have been pitted against some of the amateur and semi-professional clubs in the past season, and of thirty-six games played lost only five. The players composing the team were as follows: McGinnis, Healy, Callahan, Cullen, Gaffney, Connors, Gaffney, Engelsberg, and Bell.

There are few base ball people that are better informed than the president of the Atlantic Association, who last Saturday fined a player, Mr. Frazer, office and surprised the latter by presenting him with a gold medal and a check for a hundred dollars. The following is a letter in which Mr. Frazer explains the reason why he imposed the fine:

[illegible] Association has died out. The threatened strike of the Balls did not occur, and all the players appeared against the Clippers and Players' League nines on Saturday last. Mr. Frazer, the only player who did not, left Brooklyn for London that day. Without any notice or permission from me he left the city, and I was compelled to put in a new player at the last moment. Mr. Frazer has not yet been reinstated, and I have no intimation that he will be. Each player is to be looked to play third base for the Boston League team.

The Titus Harriers' Run.

The cross country team of the Titus Athletic Club held their first run on Sunday, the start being made from Walker's lane, Westerleigh. From there the course lay along the river to Fort Lee. A number participated, and the run home was very close. The first five were in a bunch, and were Bechtler, J. Flaherty, C. Stewart, and J. Wernle. The team will hold a run every Sunday over a different course.

SENORITA WINS IN THE MUD.

BUT THE TALENT WOULD HAVE PREFERRED REPORTER AT SHORTER ODDS.

Capt. Sam Brown Placed a Swell Bet on Each—Raceland and Firenze Scratched—Nellie Bly Captures the Nursery Stakes.

Sport was at a discount at Morris Park yesterday, but it was from no fault of the managers. A cold, drizzling rain penetrated the grand stand, saturating the garments of the men in the lower rows and moistening the cheeks of many fair women in the upper tiers. The track was sloppy and muddy, which caused the scratching of several of the best horses. This was especially the case in the Country Club Handicap, which, if the track and weather had been right, would have been one of the events of the season, but the scratching of the stars Firenze and Raceland made a sorry affair of the race. Capt. Sam Brown started his filly Senorita and his erratic colt Reporter in the handicap. It was given out that the Captain intended to win with Reporter, so there was a plunge on the colt. Reporter going to the post at only a point higher than even money, while 5 to 1 for any amount could be had against the mare. The Captain casually mentioned that he had a swell bet on each of his entries, so he hailed the victory of Senorita with joy, while the talent did anything but revere at blessing the future of Reporter. The fact is Tristan, who won second place, had Reporter beaten at the head of the stretch.

The other feature of the day, the Nursery Stakes, lost some of its interest by the scratching of Masher, Montana and Bay del Rey, but L. McElmesl's fleet-footed filly Nellie Bly, who was the strongest sort of a favorite, took command of the field at the top of the hill, and, coming home in a canter, won by three lengths. Dwyer Brothers' strapping colt Eon gave the talent a cropper. They plunged on the colt to win the mile dash, but Inactine, a California crack, formed a procession of the field in the long down-hill stretch, winning handily, with plenty of light between himself and Eon.

The racing opened with a lofty tumble. Dave Pulsifer's filly Park Ridge, that he paid $200 or so for recently, leading the field of fourteen maidens home handily and winning out in the light. The filly was a 15 to 1 shot in the books and sold in the field in the mutuals. McLaughlin, on Montague, in the third race, made a fine finish, winning by three-quarters of a length from My Fellow, ridden by Littlefield.

THE FIRST RACE.

Park Ridge, Reilly Ella T., Guildean filly, and Algonquin were in the front rank at flagfall, Park Ridge and Reilly held the place to the end, the field stringing out in the last quarter. Park Ridge won by two lengths. Reilly second, four lengths in front of Commodore Beirne, third.

Nellie held the place to the finish, drawing out the field and winning easily by two lengths from Kildeer. Average finishing a close third.

Reporter was beaten in the stretch, Senorita winning by two lengths from Tristan, Reporter coming in a poor third.

THE RUNNERS AT LATONIA.

Roseland Sold After Winning—A Good Day for Favorites.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Favorites were good in the mud at Latonia to-day, three first prize winning the money, Britton rode two of the five winners. The racing opened with a five furlong dash for maiden two year olds, and a field of nine youngsters lined the line. Old Wheatley closed a 9 to 5 favorite, but he was poorly ridden by Hickmore, and the race proved an easy thing for the 8 to 1 shot, Lake Britton, he winning by two lengths with the same odds against Edward's Pride, a length in front of the favorite. Time, 1:04¾.

A selling purse for three year olds and upward, one mile and a half, saw Wilkes, Tramp, and Bertie jumped away, and Roseland came by leisurely in the stretch, and won by three lengths from Roseland. Aunt Kate followed third. Time, 2:46¾.

The third race was a sprint purse, one mile and seventy yards, had eight starters. John Morris here, and Hyer were the same price in the betting, 3 to 1, and strange to say, they were the two leaders, Morris finally Hyer winning by two lengths from Sevres, Hyer third. Time, 1:49¾.

The fourth race, one mile, saw Leslie Chase favorite at 3 to 1, but he could only get second, Billwinning by 5 lengths. Argenia was third. Time, 1:49¾.

A sweepstakes for two year olds, at five furlongs, closed the racing. Eight started. Roseland Britton up, was 3 to 1 favorite. The payers were Richfield, Bertie, and Sevres, by four lengths from Old Gang, Rainier third. Time, 1:04.

The winner, who is one of the best colts of the age in the East, was sold by Walker Rose to-day for $1,000, and it is said that the price is a private, but big, one to be $2,000.

John C. Barron, the clever sporter of the Union Athletic club, denies the rumor to state that he will accept the offer of the Brooklyn Athletic Club, and will meet Young of the National Athletic club in a bout for a purse, before the former organization. John is a handy fighter, uses both hands with good effect, and will give Young all he wants to do to stay him, if the match is made.

CHOICE THOROUGHBREDS SOLD.

The Hurstbourne, Meadowthorpe, and Spendthrift Youngsters Disposed of.

Auctioneer Easton labored under great difficulties yesterday morning when he sold the Spendthrift, Hurstbourne, and Meadowthorpe yearlings at auction in the free field at Morris Park. Rain came down steadily, and the throng of buyers was smaller than usual. Those that were present, however, were there for the purpose of buying, so the bidding, while not high, was quite lively. The Spendthrift youngsters were most in demand, and the competition for several of them was quite lively. The pick of the lot was a magnificent looking bay colt, full brother to Golden Reel, by Spendthrift, out of Janet. Several turfites wanted him. Byron McClelland lasted the longest and secured him for $2,600. Milton Young secured a number of fine fillies for breeding purposes. The stock sold in the following order:
