THE APPEAL TO AMERICA.

PREPARING THE WAY FOR DILLON AND O'BRIEN, THE IRISH NATIONALISTS.

Mr. Gill, M. P., Preceded Them Across the Ocean to Raise Funds to Carry on the Struggle of the National Party—Dillon and O'Brien Will Return to Stand Trial.

Mr. Thomas Patrick Gill, a young Irish journalist, who represents the southern division of the county Louth in the British Parliament, arrived here yesterday on the steamship Alaska. He is the vanguard of the Irish Nationalists, who originally intended to come here in a body to tell the people all about the struggle of the Parliamentary party against the oppression of British landlordism. Mr. Gill is one of the best workers and talkers of the party. He was once an editor of United Ireland. He has spent several years in this country, part of the time as editor of the Catholic World. While here he was elected to Parliament and went back to assume the duties of his office. He is a graduate of Trinity College and is 33 years old.

In regard to the coming of O'Brien and Dillon, Mr. Gill said: "I have not heard yet whether they succeeded in catching the French steamer at Havre on Saturday. I think it is rather improbable. They left Dublin, I understand, on the yacht belonging to Mr. William Murphy. It was the plan of the Irish party to send a number of its representative men together over here to talk for the 'sinews of war.' The arrest of Dillon and O'Brien frustrated this object, so they will have to come in installments. Dillon and O'Brien will be followed by Timothy Harrington and T. D. Sullivan.

"The object of O'Brien and Dillon is not to appeal for charity, but to state a case to the American people. A giant conspiracy is on foot to destroy the National party in Ireland in the interest of the Tory Government and the landlords. We come to tell about that and to appeal to the Americans for assistance. We appeal to no faction or clique, but to our countrymen and all Americans. Every class in this great country will be solicited to aid us. For four years the Tory power has been trying to crush out the National sentiment in Ireland. During this period 5,000 Irish people and a third of their Parliamentary representatives have been put into jail. The persecution is still going on, and the power behind it is stronger than ever.

"It is ridiculous to speak of the departure of Dillon and O'Brien as if they were fugitives from justice. They fled merely to fulfil their engagements in America, and when they get through here they will return to Ireland and cheerfully submit to trial and the imprisonment which will necessarily follow. The programme at first was to have them submit to trial and then to appeal the case. Pending decision of the appeal they were to come here. On last Friday a week ago we heard through one of the Government spies that we were always open to him. Balfour's object was to prolong the trial until Christmas so that Dillon and O'Brien could not come to America. We also learned that the Crown intended to proceed against Dillon and O'Brien under the Act of Edward III., which precludes the right of appeal. Then the leaders of the party determined to checkmate Balfour, and it was arranged to bring Dillon and O'Brien to America.

"It has been insinuated in some newspapers that Parnell has not taken an active interest in the project of sending the leaders of the party here. This is false. Parnell is the inspiration of the whole movement. It was he who summoned the Convention that decided to send them, and every act of that Convention was performed only after consultation with Parnell. He is the guiding spirit of the Irish party. The enthusiasm for and loyalty to Parnell among the rank and file of the party has never been greater than it is now. Parnell was not at the Convention, because he was in delicate health. He delegated Justin McCarthy to act for him. The party and Irish people would be more disappointed if Parnell had risked his health to attend the Convention than they are because he did not take an active part in it. When the Irish people find a Napoleon they are not going to risk him to the inclemencies of the weather."

Mr. Gill said the extent of the potato famine in the west, southwest, and northwest of Ireland had not been exaggerated in THE SUN'S reports from the other side. He wanted it distinctly understood that the Irish orators do not come here to plead for charity for the sufferers from the famine. They believe it is the duty of the English Government to take care of the sufferers, because it had assumed the right to take the administration of Irish affairs out of the hands of the Irish people. Those who will suffer most affected by the famine are the cottiers who go to England and Scotland to reap the harvests of the farmers there. What they earn in England they will pay out in rents, and they will have nothing to support their families. We have advised such tenants who have crops utterly blighted to keep the wages they earn across the channel to pay for their subsistence. We ask them to make a fight like men, and when they are evicted the National party will come to their rescue.

"Where both wages and crops fail it is the duty of the British Government to see that the people do not starve. England has undertaken the government of Ireland, thus taking that duty away from the Irish people. We declare that if to-morrow we had the control of Irish affairs, we would so manage them that Ireland would never again present the spectacle of a beggar among the nations. As long as the English Government insists on denying this power to the representatives of the Irish people, it is for that Government to prevent the recurrence of these periodical famines.

"We hope to get enough money to carry on this struggle of the National party, and by so doing put the tenants of Ireland in such a position that their lot will be no longer one of periodical famine. Mr. Parnell and the Irish leaders will see to it that any funds intrusted to them for relief of distress and the carrying on of the fight will be so administered that they will not find their way into the landlords' pockets, as they did in 1879. In the winter of 1886 a similar crisis to the present was averted by the trades unions of the tenants. The scheme was eminently successful until Balfour came into power. He encouraged the formation of a syndicate of English capitalists to buy up Irish land and pursue a policy of coercion, imposition, and eviction. But the tenants have made such a gallant fight that even this conspiracy, backed by the money of the Rothschilds and Barings, has failed to break up their unions. The Irish people themselves have contributed $600,000 to help the tenants' fight. Over $300,000 of this was paid last year. They have taken so liberally from their resources that they are now practically exhausted. They got help from Australia last year."

Mr. Gill extolled the conduct of the tenants of Tipperary, his native place, in deserting their old homes and leaving the town unpopulated except by soldiers and policemen, and building a new town, called South Tipperary, for themselves. The landlords didn't like this, especially a Mr. Barry, who loses $100,000 a year in rent by it. The Tipperary men, Mr. Gill said, were the ideal soldiers of Ireland. They were inspired by Father Humphrey and Michael O'Brien Dalton, ardent Nationalists, whom the Government vainly tried to proceed against for treason.

Mr. Gill said that the plans for the tour of O'Brien and Dillon through the country had not been completed. He expects them here next week.

Daughters of the American Revolution.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—An organization has been perfected here by the name of the "Daughters of the American Revolution." The purpose of the society is to secure and preserve the historical spots of America and to erect thereon suitable monuments to perpetuate the memories of the heroic deeds of men and women who aided the Revolution and created constitutional government in America. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison has been elected President-General of the society, and Mrs. Flora Adams Darling Vice-President-General at Large in charge of organization. The first undertaking by the society will be the completion of the monument to the memory of Mary Washington, and every American is asked to send in a contribution to the Treasurer, Mrs. Col. Marshall McDonald of this city. Resolutions were adopted favoring the passage of the bill introduced in the House by Representative Sherman of New York arranging for the marking by the Government of historical spots of the revolution; setting apart Oct. 12 as the permanent anniversary of Meeting day of the society in commemoration of the discovery of America, and requesting that a site in building or space be set aside in the World's Columbian Exposition for the exhibition of relics and other things illustrative of the period of the American revolution under the auspices of the lady managers, which exhibit shall afterward be brought to this city and be permanently continued here.

Hard Luck for Karl.

Three-year-old Karl Van der Kopf, the hard-headed youngster who fell four stories at 143 West Sixteenth street on Saturday, and struck on some flagstones, was alive and promising yesterday. By the way that his name which means "Charles of the Heat," is a very apt one.

Robert Boice, 22 years old, surpassed Karl's record yesterday, however. By jumping from a three-story house at 369 Broome street into the rear yard, and only breaking two bones in his left leg. He was insane and is now a patient at Government Hospital.

BRAZIL'S ELECTIONS.

The Official Candidates Poll About Two-thirds of the Vote.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 20.—Further returns from the elections confirm previous reports in regard to the results. Nearly all the official candidates have been elected. The Ministers of War, Navy, Justice, and Foreign Affairs are elected Senators; the Minister of Agriculture is elected Deputy; the election of the Minister of the Interior for Senator is probable. That of the Minister of Finance to the Senate is doubtful, for the State of Bahia, in which he was a candidate, is showing a large opposition vote, and will probably elect one and perhaps more opposition Senators and several opposition Deputies.

In this city all the official candidates for the Senate and eight official candidates for the Chamber of Deputies are elected. One Catholic candidate has been elected and one independent candidate. Neither of these, however, can be called a member of the opposition, as they are not politicians. One of them, the banker Mayrink, may even be considered a partisan of the Government, from which he has received many favors, and with whose financial policy he has been connected ever since the beginning of the year. He was arrested, it is true, on the day of the revolution, but was detained only a little while. Since then he has been taken into favor, and in financial circles he is considered the alter ego of the Minister of Finance. His friends raised $25,000 to offer him a bail in honor of his success, but at his request they have decided to give the money to a benevolent institution.

Count de Figueiredo, the Catholic Deputy, is also a rich banker. He stood in the same relation to the Emperor's last Cabinet as Mayrink does to the present Government.

Baron de Ladario, Minister of the Navy in the Emperor's last Cabinet, who was wounded by the revolutionists, received 5,600 votes as candidate for the Senate, and Carlos de Laet, a warm Monarchist, who was not a candidate, received 8,300 votes for Deputy. This shows that the latent monarchical feeling here is stronger than was generally supposed to be.

The whole vote cast in this city was a little over 14,000. That is about one-half the number of registered voters, which is 28,585. Returns thus far received indicate that the whole vote cast in Brazil is equal to about nine-twentieths of the number of registered voters, which is estimated at between 700,000 and 800,000. In many places no elections were held, and in some others not one-tenth of the voters went to the polls. The returns received up to the present show 180,000 votes for the official candidates and 60,000 for the opposition. Bahia is probably the only State that will be represented by any real opposition Senators and Deputies.

MRS. REIBOLD DISAPPEARS.

Her Husband Disappears Later, and a Startling Rumor is Born.

Charles Reibold of 57 Passaic avenue, Newark, and his wife have been missing for several days, and yesterday Capt. Daly of the Third precinct police told a romantic story about the couple. Mrs. Reibold, he says, who is a good-looking young woman, became infatuated recently with Henry Gross, a young man who boarded with a Mrs. Newman at 20 Monroe street. Whether Gross encouraged her or not is a matter of speculation, although he says he did not, and his actions bear him out in this assertion. A few days ago Mrs. Reibold left her home, taking a gold watch, $100 in money, and some articles of furniture. On the same day Mrs. Newman received a telegram from Jersey City. The contents were:

"Has Henry came? If so, answer immediately. Address Jersey City Hotel, Exchange place. ANDERSON."

This was not answered, and a few hours later another telegram came addressed to Henry Gross, as follows:

"Can't find number. Will wait in the depot. Come immediately. O."

This telegram and the other were taken to Capt. Daly by Gross, and Reibold was notified at once. He started for Jersey City, and he has not been seen since. The story ends there as far as the Newark police are concerned. There are all sorts of rumors afloat. One of the startling ones is that Reibold caught his wife and has made away with her. At Jersey City it is said a woman supposed to be Mrs. Reibold sat in the station so long that a gateman put her out, and she is supposed to have crossed the ferry to this city.

TWO LODGERS ROBBED THE SAFE.

Proposed to Start a Saloon Themselves With the Stolen $1,055.

Samuel Doran, a driver, and John Smith, a bartender, were taken to Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning by Detective Sergeant Hanley. He asked to have them remanded until to-day, and this was done. They are accused of having stolen $1,055 from the safe in a lodging house at 472 Canal street. Henry S. Weeks and John Storms own the lodging house and run a saloon there. This, perhaps, accounts for their having so much money on hand. They bought the place recently of a man named Schultz. John Smith used to work for Schultz as a bartender. He and Doran lodged in the house.

On Sept. 19 the proprietors discovered that their safe had been opened, apparently with a key, and the money was gone. Hanley took lodgings in the house, and after several weeks of watching he satisfied himself that Doran and Smith were the culprits. He arrested them on Saturday, and they accused one another. Doran said Smith had stolen the money and alter giving him $28 had hid the rest. They were intending to buy a saloon eventually with the proceeds of the robbery and run it in partnership.

Smith finally owned up to having had the bulk of the money. He hid it at first, he said, in a closet in the lodging house. Afterward he took it to a house at the corner of Seventy-first street and Second avenue and hid it in another closet. Hanley found $870 in the latter place.

Smith had a key to the safe in his pocket when he was arrested.

KNOCKED DOWN IN THE CLUB HOUSE.

Henry F. Trimpl Unsuccessfully Duns Mr. Crippen for a Poker Debt.

The fact that a lively encounter occurred in the Roseville Athletic Club's house on Friday night has leaked out. It was over a poker debt, and the combatants were Edward R. Crippen and Henry F. Trimpl, a Newark insurance agent. Poker playing is not allowed in the club, but the members have little games at each other's homes, and it is said that Crippen recently lost $23 at Trimpl's house, and promised to send a check to Trimpl for the amount. The check did not come, and on Friday evening, when Trimpl met Crippen at the club, he denounced him in strong language, and wanted him to go out in the street and receive a thrashing.

Crippen declined to fight until Trimpl used an extremely offensive appellation, and then Crippen let fly from a flat shot out. Trimpl caught it on his chin and sat down promptly in the bowling alley with great violence. Crippen jumped on him then and would have spoiled his good looks but for the interference of Messrs. Bol Griffith, Francis Whitely, and Beardsley Gardiner. It is believed the club will expel one or both of the men.

Robbed in Chatham Square.

Harris Groseman of 13 Forsyth street reported to the police on Saturday afternoon that on Friday night in Chatham square he had been beaten and robbed by three men, and left unconscious. He said one man had seized his throat, another held his hands, while the third went through his pockets. Groseman gave a description of the men and of his property.

Policeman Cohen made the rounds of the saloons in Chatham square and arrested John Powers and James Casey. In Essex Market Police Court yesterday morning Groseman identified Powers as the man who had hun by the throat, and Casey as the one who held his hands. Groseman told Justice Hogan that he had visited a Chatham square saloon and bought a ring of Casey for $1.50. When he left the saloon Casey and Powers followed him.

Powers admitted that he was with Groseman Friday night, but denied having had anything to do with the robbery. He said Groseman left the saloon with Casey and another man. Justice Hogan remanded the men until this morning.

She Spotted the Thief.

Miss Annie McCauley of 20 Macdougal street, this city, lost her pocketbook containing $6 while on her way to Brooklyn, on the ferryboat Atlantic, of the Hamilton avenue line, yesterday afternoon. She suspected a well-dressed stranger who had been crowding against her in the cabin, and upon the arrival of the boat in Brooklyn she pointed him out to Detective O'Rouke of the Van Brunt street station. The latter arrested him. At the police station he presented, which could be was John Greenwood, 31 years old, of Newark. Indignantly denied the charge. His pockets were searched, and Miss McCauley's pocketbook with the money and some private papers were found. Two other pocketbooks were also found in his possession. One of them contained $73 in bills, and the other about $60 in gold.
