THE MONK TO MAGDALENS.

HE CALLS THEM HIS SISTERS AND HIS DEAR CHILDREN.

Praying that Some of Them May Yet be Happy Wives and Mothers, and Telling Them that Christ Foresaw and Atoned for Their Sins Many Centuries Ago.

Father Ignatius spoke yesterday afternoon to the inmates of the New York Magdalen Asylum in East Eighty-eighth street. At no time has he preached to so small a congregation, and at no time has he proved so eloquent and impressive in his most characteristic way. While he prayed or preached not only the inmates of the institution but the few outsiders who were admitted through favor wept undisguisedly.

When introduced by Mr. Joseph Mackey, Father Ignatius said:

"I am so happy, sisters, at being able to speak to you. I come in the name of Jesus, and with His power, and therefore you will get a blessing from listening to me, and I will get a blessing from talking to you."

When giving out the hymn, "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds," verse by verse, he interrupted himself to say: "Isn't it beautiful, dear children, to think that Jesus Christ is now in the midst of us, and that we are now singing in His very ears."

After announcing his text, "There is no difference; for all have sinned," he said: "Just realize what God says here—that the very best of us are sinners—you and I, the very best people in New York, as well as the very worst, are sinners. I come as a sinner to speak to you as sinners. But I come also as a messenger of God, who has been washed in the blood of the Lamb, and can therefore announce His blessing to you—not because I am better than you are, but because I have found blessing and pardon and peace in Jesus."

This, he went on to say, he had not found until he was 29 years old, although he had been called "saint" in school and "holy" in college. At 29 he first saw that he was a sinner, and that the soul he had been self-righteously trying to save had been saved for him 1,800 years ago. Those of his hearers who knew that they were sinners, he added, were nearer to Jesus than the self-righteous people who went regularly to church and thought themselves good Christians.

"He is now in the midst of us, but He has not come to condemn and threaten you with hell, but to save and to pardon. No woman can sin enough to make Jesus hate her. Jesus, when living in the glory of the Godhead, as He had lived from all eternity, adored by Cherubim and Seraphim, saw this little planet of ours given over to sin, and was so moved with compassion that He came down to earth to offer Himself as a sacrifice that every sinner might be saved. All here who now trust Him and believe His precious promises are at once saved.

"Perhaps you say 'It is too good to be true; I am too bad to come to Him.' But has He not said that whosoever cometh to Him He will in no wise cast out? Trust Him now as your saviour, and all your sins are forgiven on the spot. When dying on the cross He knew every sin you would commit. As He hung there He atoned for every sin that ever has been or will be committed.

"The world has cast you off. Those who you believed loved you have cast you out to be trampled into the mire of sin. Your very mother will have no more to do with you, because you have brought shame on the good name of your father, but Jesus, all the more you have sinned, stands with His arms open to receive you ever ready to forgive. 'Though thy sins be as scarlet they shall be whiter than snow.'"

He now told of three Magdalens whom he had been instrumental in converting. One was a betrayed woman, who, forsaken and without hope, was on her way to drown herself in the Thames when the illuminated sign "Jesus only" of a Hanlhony mission caught her eye, and, moved by a mysterious impulse, she went in. The words put by grace into Father Ignatius's mouth so impressed her that she repented at once of her sins, and, instead of committing suicide, lived to become not only a pious lady but a happy wife and mother. She is now living in Australia, honored and respected as a Christian woman. Father Ignatius has recently received a letter from her.

The keeper of a fashionable house of sin in Brighton was converted at one of the Seventh Day missions there. She had hosts of admirers, was wealthy, and had her lines cast in pleasant places, but she gave up everything, and is now a nurse of the sick in Scotland.

The self-righteous, hard-hearted matron of a Magdalen asylum in Birmingham, "who was so proper that she wouldn't have touched one of the girls with a pair of tongs, realized, through the grace of the Holy Ghost, that she was as vile as the worst," and was at once the means of converting a poor girl of 18, considered the worst of the inmates, who was dying of a dreadful disease. "Both alike," said Father Ignatius, "entered into the peace of God."

In the course of his address Father Ignatius said that had his hearers never sinned as they had they would never have become inmates of the home, so that if it became the means of their finding grace they were better than if they had never so sinned. He made all kneel when they sang "Just as I Am, Without One Plea," and as he repeated impressively each verse before singing, the tears which had flowed steadily through his sermon flowed faster than ever. In conclusion he prayed that some of his hearers might live to become happy as Christian wives and mothers.

Each Magdalen shook hands with him, and he blessed them when the service was over.

Say the Captain Put Them Ashore.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 23.—Three destitute dredgers who had been picked up on an island on the Virginia side of the Chesapeake Bay asked the Mayor here to-day for transportation to Philadelphia. They had been shipped there a few days ago on the schooner W. Elisha. Capt. Wesley Lewis. One of them said: "The Captain said his prayers regularly every night and morning, and we were treated fairly well for a time. When we got down the bay the trouble began. Last Saturday night the Captain called us into the cabin. There were seven in the crew. He owed us different amounts, ranging from $12 to $33. Instead of paying what was due us he gave each man who would accept it $5, and then told us to go ashore. We had to obey him. It was 12 o'clock that night. The island to which we rowed had only a few houses on it, and at that time of the night we could get no shelter. We were in the woods all night, and at daylight hailed a passing boat." The Mayor told the men he could not help them, and so they started off this afternoon to beat their way to Philadelphia on a freight train.

Complains of the Blasting Next Door.

Mr. J. A. Blair, who lives on the top floor of the Palisade flat house at 325 West Fifty-sixth street, has written to the Mayor about the blasting in the lot to the west of the house. He says there was nothing unusual about it until yesterday afternoon, when there was a shock that affected the foundations of the flat house, and brought nearly every woman in the neighborhood to a window. He says that, for economical reasons, the contractor who has the job of excavating for the foundations of St. Timothy's Church is using excessive charges of dynamite. A Mr. Brooks has charge of the excavating.

Killed the Girl and Himself.

FORT WAYNE, Dec. 23.—Wesley Tullis, a young business man of New Corydon, forty miles south of here, shot and instantly killed Miss Verona E. Travel this morning and then committed suicide. Tullis has for a long time been paying attentions to the girl. Her mother objected to the match. This morning he entered the grocery store kept by Mrs. Travel and asked the girl to marry him. She referred him to her mother, who ordered him out of the house. He drew a revolver and shot Verona through the heart. He then turned upon her mother, firing at her twice without effect. Tullis then blew out his brains and fell lifeless upon the body of the girl.

CACTUS BLOOD CURE

Keep Your Blood Pure.

The heart propels six ounces of blood at each stroke 70 times a minute, 4,200 times an hour, 100,800 a day, all your life. Correct digestion, nutrition, and exercise, together with the healthy action of every function, depend upon the purity of the blood. The heart cannot stop for repairs, but must be set right as it runs. The Brazilian "Cactus Blood Cure" is the only thing known that will do this safely, quickly, and infallibly.

Pleasant to take, applicable to diseases of infancy or old age. Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price to any part of the United States. Price, large size, $2.00; small, $1.00.

A YOUNG WOMAN'S MISFORTUNE.

She Confesses that She Was Led by Drink and Bad Companions to Become a Thief.

Mary E. Rossetter, a comely young woman, who had pleaded guilty of stealing $250 from her former employers, S. T. Gordon & Son, dealers in pianos in East Fourteenth street, was called yesterday before Judge Cowing, in the General Sessions, for sentence. She appeared to be utterly overcome by her position. Affidavits were submitted to Judge Cowing to the effect that she had previously borne an excellent reputation. The affidavits also detailed her history.

She is the daughter of Nathan T. Rossetter, formerly County Judge of Schoharie county, and held until recently a clerkship in the Sub-Treasury in this city. Among the affidavits were those of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Pickering, Miss Rossetter's brother-in-law and sister, expressing the opinion that Miss Rossetter, in their judgment, is not altogether sane. She had been induced to rob her employers, they believed, by an adventuress, whose acquaintance she had formed at a mission. Judge Cowing asked Miss Rossetter what she had to say in her own behalf.

"I confess, Judge," she replied, "that I am guilty of this crime. When I committed this crime I was still under the influence of liquor, which I had drank the night before. I was not then accustomed to the effects of excessive drinking, for I had not drank to excess for a long time before that. At that time, when I was least prepared to resist it, I had bad advice, I yielded to it, and became a thief. I went to Philadelphia, but, as soon as I realized my offence, I returned to this city several days before my arrest.

"I confessed my sin to the Rev. Dr. Mingins of the Union Tabernacle and Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman of the Boulah Mission. After my arrest, as your Honor knows, I pleaded guilty. I throw myself upon the mercy of the court. Whatever my punishment may be, I am determined to make restitution as soon as possible, and to lead a new life, when I have paid the penalty of the law. I promise your Honor now, most solemnly, that I will never again touch a drop of intoxicating liquors, and that I will avoid bad advisers and associates."

Judge Cowing sentenced Miss Rossetter to the penitentiary for six months—the extreme penalty under her plea, being imprisonment for one year and a fine of $500.

GEORGIA'S "CLIFTON OF CHATHAM."

A Congress Candidate who Secured Notoriety in a Peculiar Way.

SAVANNAH, Dec. 23.—The premature agitation for the election of "Clifton of Chatham" as Congressman at large from Georgia brings to the surface quite a character in Georgia politics. Clifton is now serving his second term in the Georgia Legislature from this city, where he has made hosts of friends by the familiar manner in which he greets every new acquaintance. He first came into prominence about four years ago through an incident that was widely heralded through the press.

Tatnall county is forty miles inland from the nearest railroad station. A negro murderer was sentenced to be hanged on a certain day, and Clifton was his attorney. The story as given to the press was that the murderer was on the gallows, with the black cap on his head and the rope around his neck, when the attention of the Sheriff was attracted by a cloud of dust in the distance. He paused until a horseman was discerned, and Clifton could be seen waving a paper in his hand. As the rider reached the gallows he fell fainting to the ground from excitement, but the paper was in the hands of the Sheriff, and proved to be a respite from Gov. Gordon of one month for the doomed man.

Later the story was spoiled a little when it was learned that Clifton had reached the place at about daylight, had watched all the proceedings to the point indicated, and bowed his head in response to the final prayer before he made known the fact that he had in his pocket the respite from the Governor. When asked by Gov. Gordon subsequently for an explanation, Clifton declared that he was anxious to ascertain the sanity of the negro, and thought the best way to do it was to make a physiological study of him while the preparations for death were going on.
