MADE IT THREE STRAIGHT.

THE NEW YORKS SHOULD HAVE WON, BUT THEY DIDN'T.

When Capt. Ewing Gets Into Condition Things Will be Different, for he is Badly Needed to Steady the Team—The Brooklyns Were Also Beaten—Ed Crane Goes on a Spree and is Arrested.

The results of yesterday's National League games were as follows:

Boston, 9; New York, 6.
Philadelphia, 8; Brooklyn, 5.
Pittsburgh, 11; Chicago, 8.
Cleveland, 6; Cincinnati, 5.

BOSTON, 9; NEW YORK, 6.

Wasted hopes took possession of 2,233 souls at the Polo grounds yesterday afternoon. They had been a bright ray of hope, sparkling in a dary gem, in the fondly nursed conviction that the New Yorks would turn around and throw the Bostons down with a thud that would shake the earth from its very foundation. That hope lasted for three innings. Then the ultimate came. The Bostons took the lead and every prospect of victory for the New Yorks was shattered to the four winds. The crowd wanted something to drown its sorrow, and we began to appreciate the Beaneaters. They tried hard to keep it up, but in the seventh inning they wheeled back into line and yelled for the New Yorks while they slashed the ball around in lively style, scoring two runs. Here the game ended, amid a dropped, and at the finish everything looked mournfully out of the ground everything looked.

Manager Mutrie's own vexation had changed to a deep red in his disappointment, but he tried hard not to show it, and succeeded in keeping up wonderfully well. At the end of the seventh inning he threw across the field with his coattails flying in the wind and hid himself in the club house. He dropped a tear which nearly filled the tank which the players bathe in, took some paper out of his pocket, and with his pencil penned some lines. As he spoke he shouted to himself: "Ahal we are the people yet!" Not a soul was near. As the crowd went through the exits he stood on the steps of the office, and this was his answer to everybody, the lines he had penned in the club house:

The longest inning they have their turning;
We women have our out December as surely as we have our May.

If ever a team had hard luck, the New Yorks had it yesterday. They should have won the game easily. The turning point came in the third inning, when "Orator" O'Hourke, who was evidently thinking he had just won a legal battle, stumbled over a pebble and fell headlong. His feet and arms were flying in the air, and while in this position the Bostons got two runs. Had he kept his balance he would have caught Quinn's fly, and nobody would have scored. But it was a mishap that will happen to any player. Still, had he not stumbled that he would take the fly, Tiernan could easily have taken it, even after he fell.

Just glance at the score and see how the New Yorks nearly killed Getzein's pretzel curves. They made seventeen hits for a total of twenty-five bases, enough to win ninety-nine games out of a hundred. One trouble was that they did not have much respect for Bennett's throwing, and they tried to steal bases only to be nailed, Richardson being the only one who made a good, clean steal. Clarke led off with a single off Clarkson. Nothing would satisfy him but to try and steal second. Although Capt. Richardson did everything he could to have him hold first base. But a rope would have been of no use. He started and was caught by two feet. The foolishness of it he realized when Gore made a safe hit.

The Bostons also played hard and earnestly, but for all that the only ones who did good work were Richardson, who made some really marvellous stops; Glasscock, and Connor. Tiernan was out of it, for he had nothing to do. Glasscock hit the ball as hard as anybody on the team, and yet only got one safe hit. Connor made the first home run for the home team on a nice drive to right centre field. Richardson got in three of the prettiest hits imaginable, while O'Rourke hammered the ball in great style, doing a splendid bit of batting in the third inning on an infield hit, which got him his base.

There is no question that had Buckley caught the New Yorks would have won. But his hands are swollen so badly that it was impossible for him to do duty, and, consequently, Capt. Ewing could do nothing else but put in Clarke. Clarke has been in Boston for a week and only arrived here yesterday, so that he was not in good trim. He cannot hold Rusie when the latter lets himself out, and this accounts partially for Rusie not making a better showing of himself. He pitched all right in the latter part of the game, however. The trouble with him just now is that he has not got good enough control of the ball. He gave five men their bases on balls yesterday, and, as luck would have it, three scored.

Clarke is usually a beautiful thrower to bases, but yesterday he was away off. O'Rourke showed poor judgement and let a run in by his throwing to Denny to hold Bennett on third base. Denny should wake up and show a little more life. The New Yorks got two runs at the start on a two bagger by Tiernan, and Richardson's single, O'Rourke's error, and Glasscock's sacrifice. For Boston, Long got his base on balls, got around to third on Clarke's wild throw to catch him stealing second, and scored on Clarke's second wild throw to catch Stovey at second.

In the third O'Rourke hit safely and then Connor made a home run. The Bostons, however, in their half kept space. After Rusie, Glasscock, and Connor had accomplished a double play, Tucker hit safely and stole second. Sullivan reached first on balls. Quinn's two bagger to left, which should have been caught, scored both runs for the visitors. A triple by Nash, a single by Bennett, and O'Rourke's error in throwing to Glasscock instead of to Denny gave the Bostons two more runs and the lead in the fourth. In the fifth the Bostons added three more on a base on balls, a sacrifice, a single, a double, a sacrifice, and Denny's muff of a thrown ball. On O'Rourke's and Connor's two baggers and Glasscock's single the New Yorks got two runs in the seventh. A single and a triple in the sixth gave the Bostons another run. At the beginning of the eighth, in order to make sure of the game, Clarkson was put in to pitch. The score:

PHILADELPHIA, 8; BROOKLYN, 5.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—The game of ball put up by the Philadelphia and Brooklyn teams this afternoon was of the eminently respectable stand order, in which everybody, barring Delahanty, who has not yet got the hang of first, did what was required of him in a workmanlike manner. There was but one sensational play during the game, and Shindle was the contracting party. Terry and Esper were the pitchers, and the latter had all the best of it. The Agents was woefully wild, sending six men to first on balls in the opening innings, while the Philadelphias supplemented with some hard hitting, and knocked out six runs—enough to win the game.

The Brooklynites played a sharp fielding game, but outside of a fly to centre, which Griffin pulled in in his usual finished style, they had nothing to do that demanded extraordinary attention. Brooklyn was to bat and Collins began hostilities with a fly to Delahanty. Griffin was sent to first on balls and went down to second on a passed ball. As Pinkney struck out Griffin stole third. Fouts sent a grounder to first, which Delahanty muffed without turning a hair, and Griffin scored on it. Caruthers was thrown out by Esper.

Hamilton began the Philadelphia's venture with a single to left, and Shindle reached first on balls. Delahanty sacrificed to Foutz, and Hamilton and Shindle moved up. Thompson received four bad balls, and the bases were filled. Myers pushed a double to right, and Hamilton and Shindle counted. Clements's grounder was cleverly captured by Collins, who threw to Kinslow to head off Thompson. The latter very properly turned back, and while he was being run down by Myers took third and Clements scored. Hayes followed with a corking single to centre, and Myers and Clements tallied, Hayes taking second on the throw in. Allen was sent to first on balls, but was left with Hayes, Esper being thrown out by Collins. Brooklyn was blanked in the second, but the Philadelphias added two more to their total. Hamilton was sent to first on balls, took second on Shindle's out, and came in on a double by Thompson, the latter scoring on a single by Clements. That ended the run getting until the fourth, when Young got around for Brooklyn on a misplay by Delahanty and singles by O'Brien and Daly.

Terry began Brooklyn's fifth with a double to right, took third on Griffin's fly to Thompson, and scored on Pinkney's single. The Philadelphia's made only its third run in the sixth on Daly's pardonable fumble of Thompson's grounder, a wild pitch, and Mayer's fly to O'Brien, and another in the seventh on Hamilton's single, Shindle's out, and Delahanty's double.

Brooklyn developed a batting streak in the eighth. Pinkney led off with a double to right centre, and came in on Foutz's similar drive down the right field foul line. Caruthers was thrown out by Esper, Foutz, who had reached third on a passed ball, came in on O'Brien's out. Allen to Delahanty. Daly hit to centre for two bases, and advanced to third on a wild pitch, where he was left, Kinslow flying to Mayer. Attendance, 2,475. The score:

PITTSBURGH, 11; CHICAGO, 8.

PITTSBURGH, April 24.—The local team turned loose today and did some slugging. They thumped Gumbert to the Queen's taste, and Maul was also batted in a merry way, but Chicago was outslugged. Amid the terrific hitting the fielding on both sides was good. The score:

CLEVELAND, 6; CINCINNATI (N. L.), 5.

CINCINNATI, April 24.—Cleveland made its little "block of six" this afternoon, and they were sufficient to win. The day was bleak and dismal, yet 1,200 grip-bearing members of the grip car service chipped in the Reds cost them a victory. It was a beautiful game of a fly, and it netted two runs. The score:

Connor knocked a foul fly over the right field fence.

Denny is the slowest runner on the team. He should get some of his extra fat off.

Capt. Nash did not want O'Rourke's hit in the second inning. He jumped out of the way of it.

Great preparations are being made to take care of the crowd anticipated at Eastern Park on Monday.

The Cuban Giants play the West Havens of the Connecticut State League at the Long Island grounds tomorrow.

Constant Reader.—The Bostons played their last championship game in 1889 with the Pittsburghs at Pittsburgh.

The Eastern Association will begin their championship season to-day, and success will undoubtedly attend the organization.

Tickets for the Brooklyn-New York game at Eastern Park will be on sale to-day and Monday at Kilfe's on Fulton street, Brooklyn.

Hard luck in the fifth, by Rusie's putting out his hand and changing the course of Quinn's hit, gave Boston a run, as Glasscock would have taken the grounder.

Tucker would have made a good side partner for the Goddess of Liberty, as he stood and posed with his arms folded when Umpire Lynch called Clarke safe in the sixth.

Umpire Lynch would have declared Stovey out in the first inning, any way, when trying to reach Rome on Sullivan's infield hit, as he threw up his arm to intercept Clarke.

W. E. H.—It is said to be $6,500, but this is an exaggeration. Nobody outside of himself and the club officials knows the exact salary. It would be safe to say that $4,000 will cover it.

Tucker will not stand on the base line and try to block any New York player again. Man throw wildly to him, and he tried to block Gilmartin from getting to the base, and received a bad tumble.

An interesting game of ball was played on Thursday, on the Columbia tire and rubber school grounds, 110th street and Seventh avenue, between Columbia Grammar and Seventh and the Vicar Club of the Sacred Heart academy, Westchester, the latter winning by a score of 16 to 7.

Two games will be played at Mosher Park, Woodhaven, to-morrow. The Locomotive and Excelsior will play at 1 o'clock and the Atlantic and Gerhard Clubs immediately after. All clubs wishing to use the grounds for Saturday afternoon should address C. F. Murphy, 301 Avenue A.

John Ward reported to Mr. Byrne at Washington Park, yesterday, at 11 A. M., and the club's physician soon found that the man's done to the great capacity in Philadelphia was exaggerated. He will be in shape after a two days' rest to fill his position and certainly be home in the opening game with New York on Monday. He returned to Philadelphia yesterday noon.

The Spree Cost $100.

LOUISVILLE, April 24.—Little Willie McGillis's parents are not in Louisville last night, and little Willie went out on a spree some of Kentucky's staple product. He was accompanied by Ed Crane and the two Cincinnati ball players imbibed rather freely, and just before the break of day this morning they started for the Galt House. They were hilarious. They wanted fun, and an ash barrel at Second and Main streets was the first thing to afford them amusement. They dumped the contents of the barrel and rolled the barrel into the street, and a passer by made some remark about their athletic ability, when they turned their attention to him. When they had finished him he pronounced the ball players the strongest armed pitchers in the profession, for they came near relieving him of his nose.

Two policemen appeared about that time, and the ball tossers took a ride in the patrol wagon to the Central police station, where Crane gave his name as "Jim Jeanessey" and McGillis as "Jim McCormick." King Kelley soon appeared with Malvo Hughes, chief of the Fire Department, and a lawyer was secured to defend them. Each were fined $10 and costs in the police court, which Kelley paid. He promptly added an additional $50 to the amount of each, which made the aggregate cost of the spree just $140.
