UTAH'S APPEAL FOR HOME RULE.

Charges Made Against Gov. Thomas and the Utah Commission.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A petition praying that amnesty be granted members of the Mormon Church convicted for practising polygamy in violation of the Edmunds-Tucker act, has been sent to the President. It is signed by Gov. Thomas, the President and members of the Utah Commission, Judges of the Territorial courts, and other Federal officials. This piece of news became public today at a meeting of the Senate Committee on Territories to hear argument in favor of Senator Faulkner's bill providing local self-government for Utah. The hearing was very interesting and spicy by reason of the charges made against the Utah Commission and the Governor of the Territory, A. L. Thomas.

The first speaker, C. C. Richards, a prominent young lawyer of Salt Lake City, was positive in his statements concerning the alleged unfitness of the Federal officials in Utah to administer the laws of the Territory. Lack of responsibility in the officers of the Government, he contended, had caused many wrongs. The Federal officials were not responsible to the people of the Territory, and because of this they did not perform their duties fairly and honestly, having no restraining influence to bear on them. Gov. Thomas was referred to as a petty tyrant, who had an absolute power of veto. Mr. Richards cited an alleged instance where the Governor was asked how he would act on a certain legislative measure, and had informed his questioner that a certain gentleman was considering the question for him.

"I am satisfied," said Mr. Richards, referring to the Utah Commission, "that the presence of the Commission in Utah during the past ten years has done more toward prejudicing the people of the United States against the people of the Territory of Utah and delaying the solution of the unfortunate condition of affairs that has existed in that Territory than all other things combined. The Commission has lost no opportunity to speak falsely of the people of the Territory. It has lost no opportunity of irritating them and making them feel that the officers appointed by the Government of the United States were their enemies, rather than their friends. It has lost no opportunity of misconstruing the motives of the people and of accusing the innocent with the guilty; of making the people of the country believe the condition of things in the Territory to be much worse than it ever has been, and of keeping up such an unwarrantable and unprofitable agitation of the situation that Congress should feel justified in not continuing them in office."

"Do you mean to say," interrupted Senator Davis, a member of the Committee, "that Gov. Ramsay and Senator Paddock and others, who were members of the Utah Commission, have been engaged in that kind of work?"

"I do, most decidedly," answered Mr. Richards.

J. W. Jutt, an ex-District Judge of Utah, protested earnestly against the present method of government in the Territory. It was, he said, a system that was wrong. Men who did not live among the people, who did not understand them or their ways, were no more capable of administering the laws justly than was Pontius Pilate capable of administering the laws of Judea, or English officials, however honorable and just they might be, of administering English laws in Ireland. Gov. Thomas, he alleged, vetoed everything that did not suit him. Concerning the members of the Utah Commission he said he believed they were all honorable men, but they did not live enough among the people, and, therefore, frequently acted ignorantly through prejudices. He believed that the Utah Judges were honorable, but the fault of their administration lay in the fact that they were not responsible to the people of the Territory, and could not resist the prejudice put in their minds. The people were bearing with this bad government patiently. They had been kicked and cuffed so much that they did not resent it any more. The people of the United States, he contended, would not be afflicted with polygamy any more if local self-government were given to Utah. Congress, he said, ran no risk in giving the people of the Territory home rule.

Judge Jutt informed the committee that the amnesty petition had been laid before the President. "When the Federal officials of the Territory," he said, "signed this paper, how can it be said that the people were not ready for self-government?"

Missouri Republicans Said to Favor Alger.

SEDALIA, Feb. 13.—The Convention of the League of Republican Clubs of Missouri adjourned sine die at 5 o'clock this morning, after an all-night session of the stormiest character. The main cause of contention was over the majority report of the Committee on Credentials which favored the admission of Filley delegates in contested districts. James B. Harkless, Filleyite of Kansas City, was elected President of the League, by a vote of 503 to 457 for Bothwell of Sedalia. The impression is strong, however, that the Filley faction is opposed to President Harrison for another term, and it is believed Filley will control the election of delegates to the National Convention and give the vote to Gen. Alger.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER'S SUCCESS.

Rebellious tresses prove a strong element in the success of "Miss Helyett."

One of the first evidences of the rebellion of the woman toward holding her attractiveness is evinced in the display and attention of the hair. Mrs Carter captivates the audience nightly when she relieves from thraldom that magnificent wreath of hair which is the envy of her less fortunate sisters.

Note what she says of the Seven Sutherland Sisters' remedies:
