FOUGHT OVER CIGARETTES,

And One of Them Died from a Fall Under a Knock-down Blow.

Walter Phillips, a youthful night watchman, was committed to the Tombs without bail yesterday morning by Coroner Schultze for causing the death of John Farrell, the young brass finisher who died in Bellevue Hospital on Monday night.

Phillips watches a building at Ninth avenue and Thirty-third street, and carries a heavy club. Farrell, who was an acquaintance, was helping him watch on Saturday night, when, as the police say, they came to the last one in the box of cigarettes they were smoking. In a quarrel as to who should smoke it, Farrell knocked Phillips down, and the latter when he arose returned the compliment, using his club instead of his fist. Farrell's head when he fell struck the pavement, and he became unconscious. He died without regaining consciousness. Death was due to fracture of the skull, the result of contact with the pavement, which caused interanial hemorrhage.

Phillips acknowledges striking Farrell, but declares the quarrel was not over a single cigarette, but over a box of new ones which he got at a neighboring restaurant after Farrell had smoked the last of the old box. Farrell grabbed most of the fresh ones, which Phillips thought was an outrage, so he struck Farrell. The fatal fight followed.

JUST BEFORE THE FIRE.

Malloy Says Kuster Woke Him and Told Him Kramer Was Coming.

William Malloy, a bricklayer, who lives at 554 West Forty-fifth street, says he knows something about the incendiary fires that were started on Saturday night in Anton Kramer's saloon at 439 West Fortieth street. Charles Kuster, the bartender in the saloon, is locked up charged with starting the three fires. Malloy says he was drinking in the saloon on Saturday night when Mr. Kramer appeared and said he thought wanted to have the place closed. Kuster told Malloy to come back later and he would give him a bottle of whiskey. Malloy came back got his whiskey, and accepted Kuster's invitation to sleep in the saloon that night. According to his story, Kuster awakened him about 2 o'clock and told him to get out quickly as Kramer was coming. Malloy left, and a few minutes later Kuster rushed into the street and yelled fire.

Malloy was taken to the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday and remanded until the examination in the case.

The Kayaderosseras Club House Sold.

SARATOGA, July 19.—The Kayaderosseras club house and land at Saratoga Lake have been sold to a private purchaser. The club was composed of forty gentlemen, most of whom were members of Tammany Hall. The house was originally known as the Schuyler mansion. The Kayaderosseras Club was intended to have been a sort of Saratoga political headquarters, but as such or as a club house it has not been a success. Now it will again be used as a private residence.
