Two houses side by side—same plan, both brick; but different architects.

One architect is making the best building he knows how to; employs a good builder, uses honest material. The other is making money—or thinks he is—and buys the cheapest men and material he can get hold of; the house may tumble in a year for all he cares.

Clothes may be—are—just as slipshod or just as good as houses.

Which kind do you want?

If you buy our kind you may bring back what you don't like and get your money. Well-built clothes are always worth their cost.
