LAWYER HARDENBROOK ARRESTED.

The Only Criminal Proceedings So Far in the Continental Bank Case.

Frank M. Hardenbrook, brother-in-law and counsel of Percy M. Harris of the Consolidated Exchange firm of Harris & Co., which is supposed to have shared in the $53,000 B. G. Sanford stole from the Continental Bank, was arrested yesterday at his office in the Equitable building. His arrest was on a warrant issued by Judge Martine. He is charged with being accessory after the fact to the scheme by which Sanford swindled the bank. It is charged in particular that he has concealed important evidence and tried to defeat the ends of justice. His concealing the books of Harris & Co., in spite of his subsequently surrendering him to Receiver Milbank, is made part of the charge against him.

He is also said to have assisted Harris to escape. He is liable to the same punishment, if convicted, as if found guilty of the original offence. No criminal proceedings have yet been begun against the principal offender, Sanford.

Hardenbrook was arraigned before Judge Martine, who put him under $7,500 bail pending examination next Wednesday afternoon. Being unable to secure bail, after trying all the afternoon, Hardenbrook was locked up in the Tombs.

S. W. Milbank, receiver of the firm of Harris & Co., said yesterday that he had found the books of the firm very mystifying. There were evidences of considerable contributions of cash, but there was no capital account, and, therefore, no proof that the money had come from Sanford. The books showed a large and profitable business, but gave no indication of the disposition made of the profits.

Mr. Milbank said that the accounts had been kept in a very mysterious manner, and it looked as though they had been manipulated. It will require an expert accountant to analyze them thoroughly, but Mr. Milbank was uncertain whether the Continental Bank would care to undergo the expense of such an examination.

MURDERED A RAILROAD MAN.

Tramps Kill a Watchman in His Shelter Box and then Steal His Money.

ANSONIA, Conn., Nov. 4.—Another mysterious Connecticut murder was committed up in the northwestern part of the State/in Chapinville, early this week. The victim was James Lawrence White, and he resided when at home on North Bridge street, Poughkeepsie. He was formerly a fireman on the New York Central road, but was discharged, and for two or three months has been a signalman on the Philadelphia and Reading road at Chapinville. His body was found on last Tuesday in the little watch box which he occupied, two miles from the station. His head was crushed in with a big stone, and there were several severe bruises on his body. Beyond the discovery of this stone and an evening newspaper of Oct. 30 on the floor of the watch box, not a thing giving a clue to the perpetrator of the deed has been discovered.

Coroner Hagdon of Litchfield county has charge of the case. An autopsy shows that White was killed by a blow on the bridge of the nose and the forehead. In the watch box is a bench on the north side of the building, which White used as a cot. During his leisure moments, and those they were many, he lay down on this cot to read. He was probably so engaged on the evening of his death. It is thought that a tramp walked in and asked for shelter or food. A quarrel may have followed and the murder resulted. The autopsy showed that White's stomach was empty and that he had not eaten any food on the evening of Oct. 30. His dinner pail was found in the watch box, but its contents were gone. The theory which the officers are working on is that a tramp or tramps entered the watch box while White was making his rounds. They may have wanted to burn the bridge. White had received his month's pay on that morning, but not a cent was found on his body.

MAYOR SANFORD'S PET PUGS.

They Frightened Away Three Burglars Who Broke Into His House.

Two pet pug dogs owned by Mayor Horatio S. Sanford of Long Island City frightened away three burglars who forced their way into the basement of the Mayor's residence in Ravenwood early yesterday morning. They had hardly gotten well into the basement when the sagacious little brutes began to protest loudly against their intrusion.

In vain the thieves attempted to cajole them by coaxing and threats. The pugs knew their business and barked themselves almost into fits. The uproar finally aroused the household and the thieves bolted out of the open window and escaped. Mayor Sanford says he will match his pug dogs against any watch dogs in his city.

BIG WHALE OFF CAPE MAY.

It Got Out to Sea Before the Fishermen Could Tackle It.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 4.—A big whale sported off Cape May within shooting distance a good part of the morning. Being a strange sight for these waters, crowds flocked to the board walk along the beach front to watch its antics.

An effort was made to capture it, but it went off to sea before the fishermen could get to it.

No Reductions in B. and O. Wages.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—There have been no reductions in wages on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and there will be none. All danger of a strike in consequence is, therefore, over. Vice-President King made this announcement to-day. Several weeks ago the company proposed to cut all wages 10 per cent., and the men refused to accept it except under certain conditions prepared by them, which were in turn objected to by the company. To-day Vice-President King said there would be no cuts.

Legatee Bathgate's Creditors Alert.

Frederick J. Bimble and Edward A. Van Wagenen have begun suit in this city against James E. Bathgate, James E. Bathgate, Jr., and John B. Bathgate of Newark, to recover $9,421, balance due on a judgment obtained against them in the New Jersey Supreme Court, in April, 1885. The plaintiffs hope to get their money out of a legacy of $10,000 to John B. Bathgate, under the will of millionaire Charles B. Beck.

David Cohn Dies of Hydrophobia.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—David Cohn, a well-known citizen of New Orleans, died last night of hydrophobia. He was treasurer of the old Fire Department and an organizer of the Firemen's Benevolent Association. Nine months ago, while playing with one of his pet dogs, he was bitten in the hand. The wound healed, but a short time ago it began to be inflamed, and soon developed an acute case of hydrophobia.
