HILO'S LOSS DUE TO A VOLCANO.

Her Consuls Affected by Kilauea's Eruption—Narrow Escape from Sharks.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—News from Honolulu, brought by the brigantine Geneva, shows that the recent loss of the barkentine Hilo was probably due to derangement of the vessel's compasses by volcanic action. When off the coast of Hawaii recently the compasses of the Geneva varied considerably, and Capt. Neilson was at a loss to account for the phenomenon. When he heard that Kilauea was active he came to the conclusion it was the volcanic disturbance that had affected his compasses. Lieut. Pearson of H. M. S. Sappho a few years ago noted the same fact. The chances are that the volcanic disturbances affected the compasses of the Hilo, so that the captain got in shore in the fog without knowing it. When he discovered his whereabouts he set his course, but his compasses again played him false, and his vessel went ashore.

Capt. Neilson, when off the Hawaiian Islands, spoke the American steam whaler Belvedere, which reported that she had lost one man, and had another badly hurt by a wounded whale. Capt. Smith of the Belvedere visited the Geneva, and, in returning, he had an exciting adventure. The waters were swarming with sharks, and the boat header fired a harpoon into one. In its agony the fish drove its dorsal fin through the bottom of the boat and came near sinking it. Capt. Neilson at once lowered a boat and went to the assistance of the Belvedere's men. When he reached them the boat was only a few inches above water, and the sharks were swimming around, awaiting a feast.

A Raritan Bay Pirate Caught.

PERTH AMBOY, March 17.—Edward Cooper, 50 years old, a junkman, was arrested early this morning on a charge of bringing stolen property into this State. The crime was really petty larceny. Cooper went to Tottenville, Staten Island, last night in a small boat with a companion, and filled the boat with plunder at Brown's shipyard and Hopkins's lumber yard. Policeman Cole surprised them, got another boat and chased them over to this city, where he arrested Cooper. The other man got away. Charles Warren was arrested for receiving some of the stolen property. Both men were held for trial. The police think that Cooper belongs to a gang who have been robbing shipyards and vessels on Raritan Bay recently.
