GREAT DAY FOR BASEBALL.

NEW YORKS WIN TWICE FROM CLEVELAND AND ARE FIFTH.

Brooklyns Lose Two Games at Cincinnati and Drop a Peg—Boston and Pittsburgh Break Even—Louisvilles and Baltimores Win and Lose—Chicago and Philadelphia Defeat Each Other in Heavy Batting Games—Honors Even Between Washington and St. Louis—Thousands in Attendance—How the Amateurs Spent the Day.

The National League clubs celebrated Independence Day by playing twelve games, of which the Eastern representatives won six. The New Yorks surprised their fondest admirers by winning both games from the Clevelands and making the series three straight. They also leaped up in the percentage column, taking fifth place from the Philadelphias, and being but three points behind the Brooklyns. That the Cincinnatis are playing fast ball was demonstrated by their double victory over the Brooklyns, who were compelled to surrender third place to Pittsburgh. The latter broke even with Boston. Louisville's victory over the Baltimores in the afternoon was very one-sided, and served to cut the lead of Hanlon's men down to 24 points. Chicago and Philadelphia each won a game, as was the case with St. Louis and Washington. The games attracted thousands of spectators in every city. The results:

NEW YORK, 4; CLEVELAND, 3—MORNING GAME.

CLEVELAND, July 4.—Jouett Meekin was mainly responsible for winning his own game this morning. Three times he went to the bat and three times he made a three-bagger. The last one would have been a two-base hit ordinarily, but the ground rule gave him an advantage of another base. Cleveland could not hit him to any extent. Had they been able to do so they might have won the game in the sixth inning, when they had the bases filled with no one out. Outside of Meekin, Doyle did the best batting for the visitors. It is a queer fact, however, that had Meekin's hits not been three-baggers New York would have scored but one run during the game. Cuppy pitched excellently and was not hit hard except by two men. The Clevelands were weakened by the absence of Ewing and McAleer.

In the first inning Childs got a base on balls and was forced at second on Burkett's bunt, McKean beat a slow hit to first, Burkett going to third. Virtue was called out on strikes, although the third strike was a foul. McKean stole second and Burkett scored on Davis's poor throw to Farrell. In the third inning, with two out, Meekin hit for three bases and scored on a pop fly to left centre by Fuller. In the fourth, with one out, McKean got a base on balls and Virtue flied to Burke. Tebeau hit to left for a base, McKean going to third. Meekin made a wild pitch and McKean scored. In New York's half, with one out, Doyle made a three-base hit and scored on Doyle's single. Ward flied out, and so did Van Haltren.

In the fifth inning, with one out, Farrell reached first on McKean's fumble and scored on Meekin's beautiful three-bagger to centre field. Meekin was caught at the plate on McGarr's assist, and Fuller was forced at second. In the sixth, Burkett hit for two bases and went to third on McKean's single. Virtue got a base on balls, filling the bases. Tebeau flied to Burke and Burkett scored. The next two batters died easy. In New York's half, two out, Ward got a base on balls and scored on Van Haltren's single to right field. Tiernan was put out on a beautiful stop by Tebeau. The score:

NEW YORK, 12; CLEVELAND 11—AFTERNOON GAME.

CLEVELAND, July 4.—Mike Tiernan, the silent, woke up this afternoon and won the game for the New Yorks in the ninth inning with one out. He rapped the ball a mile, more or less, into left centre field and came home with ease. The game was the finest exhibition of batting on the part of both teams that ever has been seen in Cleveland. Rusie and Young were knocked out of the box and their substitutes knocked about as hard at times. The New Yorks played a grand up-hill fighting game and beat Cleveland after the home team started with a lead of five runs. There was only a small crowd at the afternoon game owing to the horrible potch made by a committee of arrangements for a Fourth of July parade. All the cars running to the grounds were stopped, and there was no chance to get there for two hours before the game began. Some of the spectators walked two miles to get an opportunity to see the game. The New Yorks are greatly elated over their success, as they deserve to be, for they won the games to-day on their merits, and no one in Cleveland begrudges the victory. John Ward's Little Giant Harper has created the utmost indignation here, for it was a contemptible perversion of truth.

In the first inning, with one out, Burkett rapped a line hit to left field and scored on McKean's beautiful drive over the right field fence for a home run. In the second Burkett hit to centre field for a base, and O'Connor put a grounder in the same place. Zimmer hit to left field for two bases and McGarr and O'Connor scored. A passed ball put Zimmer on third, and he scored on a wild pitch. In New York's half Doyle hit to centre field and Ward rapped a liner over McGarr's head. Van Haltren tooled out and Tiernan drove a grounder down the third base line for three bags, sending two runs ahead of him. Tiernan scored on Farrell's long fly to Virtue.

In the fourth, Ward made a hot grounder to first, and Van Haltren filed out. Tiernan reached first on a scratch single, and Burkett made a good catch of Farrell's long drive. Rusie hit to left field for two bases, and Ward and Tiernan scored. In the fifth, Childs hit to right for two bases and Burkett bunted safely. McKean's hit to left scored Childs. Virtue sacrificed. Tebeau hit to centre for a base, and Burkett and McKean scored. McGarr filed out and O'Connor's two-bagger scored Tebeau. In the sixth, Burkett got a hit on a bad bounding grounder and McGarr's double drove Cleveland another run. In New York's half, Van Haltren beat a bunt, Tiernan filed out, Farrell hit to left for two bases, and Westervelt's single sent Van Haltren and Farrell home. In the seventh Burke hit to centre field, Davis flied out, Doyle smashed a three-bagger against the fence, and Burkett scored. Ward hit to Tebeau, who made a quick return to the plate, but failed to catch Doyle. Van Haltren dropped a safe pop fly in right field. Tiernan got a base on balls, but Zimmer let the fourth ball get away, and Ward scored, the run that tied the game. Farrell struck out, and Westervelt died at first.

In the eighth, with two out, Childs hit for two bases and scored on Burkett's single to centre field. In New York's half Fuller began with a single, and got to second while two men were going out. Doyle's two-bagger sent him home. Tiernan made a home run in the ninth with one out. The score:

CINCINNATI, 14; BROOKLYN, 7—MORNING GAME.

CINCINNATI, July 4.—Nearly all of Parrett's troubles were accumulated in the first two innings, and after Brooklyn had pounded out four runs, the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a morning game in Cincinnati settled back to mourn over a threatened slaughter. Three Reds were on base in the first inning, but Canavan struck out. There were three more Reds on base in the second when Latham picked up his stick. Nobody was out, and the crowd went wild when Latham drove a fly over Tredway's head. It dropped into the terrace, and four Reds moved home, tying the score. Two more Reds were batted in before the team took the field. After that, whenever Brooklyn had a chance some phenomenal bit of fielding held them down. There were only two innings in which good hits were made at Terrott's expense. Some of them were lucky bounders, which jumped over the infielders' heads. The way that Smith destroyed base hits at short caused pangs of regret to settle all around Mr. Byrne's heart, and for the time he was sorry that he had ever let Cincinnati have "Germany." No team could have won against the Reds' clustered hits. When McPhee drove out his home run two men were on base. Hoy drove Latham in with his triple, and scored himself on McPhee's hit. Holliday was in two collisions. Once he bumped into Smith and turned a double play, and Germany held the ball. In the last inning he and Hoy came together, and Kinslow's fly was dropped. Kennedy made a great catch of Canavan's line drive and doubled Murphy. The score:
