SATTERLEE CONSECRATED.

OVER A DOZEN BISHOPS TAKE PART IN THE CEREMONY.

Two Thousand Persons Go to Calvary Church to See Its Rector Made Bishop of Washington—Bishop Coxe Acts as Consecrator—Bishop Huntington Preaches.

In the presence of 2,000 persons, including Bishops, priests, and choristers in their vestments, and a great company of the laity, the Rev. Dr. Henry Yates Satterlee was consecrated yesterday morning the first Bishop of Washington, in Calvary Episcopal Church, of which he has been the rector for many years.

It was exactly 10:30 o'clock when the vested choristers marched from the robing room down the north aisle of the church to the music of the processional hymn. When the choristers had reached the doors leading to the main aisle, they were met by the rest of those who were to join the processional march. Slowly the long line moved down the aisle toward the chancel. First came the verger, followed by the choir and the students of the General Theological Seminary, in black caps and gowns. Then came the vestry of Calvary parish, clergy of the diocese of New York and neighboring dioceses, the clergy of the diocese of Washington, the Missionary Board, the Bishop elect, the officiating Bishops, and the presiding Bishop.

At the chancel the choristers, the Bishops, and the Bishop elect separated from the rest of the clergy, moving inside the chancel rail and grouping themselves about the steps of the altar. Just outside the chancel rail and on each side of the chancel stood the clergy took statutes in iron, venerating all that it finds true in the past, awake and alive to all that is religiously sound and strenuous in the present, determined to know and do only the will of God in the enlarging national life that is to come."

After the singing of the hymn, "Thou dulst leave Thy throne and Thy kingly crown," the consecration ceremony followed. Bishop Coxe of western New York acted as the presiding Bishop. The assistant consecrators were Bishop Potter and Bishop Paret, Bishop of Maryland. The presenters were Bishop Leonard of Ohio and Bishop Dudley of Kentucky. The attending priests were the Rev. Dr. Randolph H. McKim, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, and the Rev. Walter A. Mitchell. The Registrar was the Rev. Dr. J. Livingston Keese.

When the Bishop elect, vested with his cassock and rochet, was presented by Bishops Leonard and Dudley to the presiding Bishop, sitting in his chair near the altar, every eye in the large audience was turned upon him. After the presentation the presiding Bishop demanded the testimonials of the person presented for consecration. The certificate of election by the Convention of the Diocese was read by the Rev. Dr. J. Livingston Keese. The Canonical Testimonial was read by the Rev. Walter A. Mitchell. The Consent of the Standing Committees was read by the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Hutchins, and the Consent of the Bishops by the Rev. Dr. Alfred Hart, Secretary of the House of Bishops. The Bishop elect, having promised conformity to the requirements read to him by the presiding Bishop, the Litany was intoned by Bishop Rulison of central Pennsylvania. Then followed the examination of Dr. Satterlee, at the conclusion of which he put on the rest of his Episcopal habit, which consisted of the chimere.

The anthem, "Alleluia! O Zion, that bringest good tidings!" and the "Veni, Creator Spiritus" were then sung, after which the presiding Bishop and the officiating Bishops gathered around the Bishop elect, placing their hands upon his head while he knelt before them, the presiding Bishop repeating the words of consecration.

Only the officiating clergymen received communion. The offertory was appropriated to the seats. On the south side of the church the Seminary students found seats, and in the first dozen or fifteen pews on each side of the main aisle the representatives of the clergy and laity of the Washington diocese.

The two processional hymns, "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun" and "When Morning Gilds the Skies," which the choristers had been singing as they marched down the aisle, gave place to the Kyrie of Tallis and the Gloria Tibi and Credo of Eyre in E flat, when the consecration exercises began. In the next hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," the great congregation joined and swelled the air into a mighty anthem. At the conclusion of the hymn Bishop Huntington of central New York delivered the sermon. Bishop Huntington's theme was "The Power of the Church in the National Life," the text being Luke, i., 30-33.

In the course of his remarks he said:

"The Bishop of Washington will be a patriot. What mixed and motley multitudes will come and tarry and go—guests from many lands, professors of all religions and of none, outlandish theorists, captains of enterprise, dreamers, destructionists, reformers, some seeking spiritual rest and finding none! Whether they seek or not, our part is to provide that if they seek they shall find what He, who knew all that is in man, has provided, not a propaganda of occult strata-gems, but an open ministry of righteousness and truth, a ministry patterned after the evangelists and Apostles, having a legislative plan outlined in the republic itself joined in the faith confessed with the great communions abroad and in sacraments ordained of Christ, abiding by His appointment in word and act, anating nothing in its worship from the earliest and scriptural devotion, borrowing nothing from the pageants or embellishments of barbaric spectacles, too jealous of the primitive purity not to protect it against superstition. Not true to catholicity to violate its sympathies or cast its Bishop of Washington's fund. After the chanting of Psalm xci. and the Sanctus, the prayer of consecration was offered by Bishop Potter. The services were brought to a close with the singing of the "Gloria in Excelsis" from Eyre and the Recessional hymns, "The Son of God goes forth to war" and "O Mother, dear, Jerusalem," the congregation joining in the singing. At the end the Recessional march was taken up in the reverse order from the Processional.

The first thing that Bishop Satterlee did after the consecration was to hold a reception in the rectory to the visiting clergy and laity of the diocese of Washington. During the reception a buffet luncheon was served. Of those over whom Bishop Satterlee will preside in the new diocese there were between 200 and 300 present.

In the processional march there were 480 persons, besides the choir. Among the Bishops who took part in the services, besides those named, were the following: Bishop Scarborough, New Jersey; Bishop Nelson, Georgia; Bishop Cheshire, North Carolina; Bishop Rulison, central Pennsylvania; Bishop Whitehead, Pittsburgh; Bishop Dudley, Kentucky; Bishop Talbot, Wyoming and Idaho; Bishop Leonard, Ohio, and Bishop Penick, Mission Bishop of Cape Palmas.

Among the clergymen present were: Dean Hoffman of the General Theological Seminary; the Rev. Dr. Greer, St. Bartholomew's Church; the Rev. Dr. Brown, St. Thomas's Church; the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, Trinity Church; the Rev. Dr. Rainsford, St. George's Church; the Rev. Father Ritchie, St. Ignatius's Church; the Rev. Dr. Prescott Evarts, Wappinger's Falls; the Rev. Dr. F. W. Tomkins, Providence, R. I.; the Rev. Dr. F. A. De Russet, Cairo, Ill.; the Rev. Dr. H. M. Scudder, Brooklyn; the Rev. Dr. J. S. Gasser, Delaware City, Del.; the Rev. Dr. J. Nevett Steele of Trinity parish, the Rev. Dr. Lewis Cameron of Orange, and the Rev. Dr. Ladd of Wilmington, Del. The Rev. Churchill Satterlee, Bishop Satterlee's eldest son, of Morganton, N. C., acted as Bishop Coxe's chaplain at the consecration services.

The diocese of Washington was created in December. It includes the District of Columbia and four counties of Maryland—Prince George's, St. Mary's, Charles, and one other. Bishop Satterlee will assume the duties of his office at once.

BIG SALE OF DRY GOODS.

Dress Ginghams Bring Unexpectedly Good Prices at Auction.

An important sale of dry goods was held yesterday at the auction rooms of Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, at 64 and 66 White street, and the 194 lots disposed of brought about $200,000. The goods were dress ginghams, which represented the entire output of the Westbrook Manufacturing Company in this line. The goods, for which a large demand has come from the West and South, were staple designs in light and dark work, and the lots numbered 2,000 cases. The auction room was crowded, and the prices paid are regarded as liberal, compared with the figures as quoted by the manufacturers, and there was some surprise at the result, in view of the expectation that there might be an extraordinary break in the selling prices. But the steady demand served to stimulate the bidding.

The goods were sold on four months' time from April 1. The prices on the light work ranged from 3½ to 4¼ cents.

Many prominent dry goods firms were represented. The buyers from the jobbing houses bought chiefly prints and dress goods. Among the bidders were the following firms: The H. B. Claflin Company, Dunham, Buckley & Co., C. B. Rouss, T. Rothschild, Hartley Bros., the Dry Goods Exchange, Schenfield & Co., Ferdinand Ehrlich of New York; James V. Farwell, Chicago; Burke, Fitzsimmons, Hone & Co., Rochester; J. E. Hurst & Co., Baltimore; G. V. S. Quackenbush & Co., Troy; the Alms and Doepke Company of Cincinnati; J. H. Weir, Beugher & Co., St. Louis; Sly-Walker Dry Goods Company, St. Louis; Dwyer Bros., New Orleans; L. Brandeis & Sons, Omaha; Roddy & Gaylord, Wilmington, N. C.; R. H. White & Co., Boston; Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, and John Wanamaker, Philadelphia.

They Say She Drank Whiskey by the Quart.

Relatives of Elizabeth Ellis, who died at her home, 185 Adams street, Brooklyn, a few months ago, are trying to convince Surrogate Abbott that she was a drunkard and unable to dispose properly of her property. She left an estate of $25,000 to friends in England, completely ignoring her relatives in this country. Testimony was given yesterday to show that three quart bottles of whiskey were taken to her room every day.

Mrs. Davidson Acquitted.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Pastor Brown of the First Congregational Church was called as a witness this morning in the case of Mrs. Mary A. Davidson, whom he accused of extorting $500 from him. He testified that it was not fear of her that caused him to pay the money. The Judge thereupon said there had been no extortion, and ordered the jury to acquit her, which they did at once.

Preparations for cotton planting are well advanced. Houston, Tex., March 24.—In a great portion of the State a good deal of corn has been planted, and in the south and Southwest some progress has been made towards cotton planting. Farmers are in preparation for cotton planting has been done over a great portion of the State, but there is ample time yet for planting cotton and securing a good crop with a favorable season. We care nothing to say on the acreage question. Some contend that the lateness of the season will have a further tendency to reduce the cotton acreage. Much of the cotton acreage, this may be so in some instances." The future trading was as follows:
