MEEKIN PITCHES FINELY,

BUT THE NEW YORKS PLAY WEAK BALL AND ARE BEATEN AGAIN.

Errors in the Field and No Hitting Make Victory Easy for the Bostons—The Brooklyns Win at Philadelphia—Baltimore, St. Louis, and Cincinnati Also Win.

The New Yorks were beaten again by the Bostons yesterday for two excellent reasons. They played raggedly in the field and couldn't bat. There was no weakness in the pitching, for Jouett Meekin was in splendid trim, and with clean support would have won his game. The Brooklyns defeated the Philadelphians by a fine rally in the fag end of the battle, and the Baltimores captured the Washingtons because the latter couldn't hit Hoffer. Rain prevented the Cleveland-Pittsburgh game, but Cincinnati and St. Louis, by outplaying Chicago and Louisville, respectively, jumped into third place on even terms. The results:

Boston, 7; New York, 4.
Brooklyn, 6; Philadelphia, 4.
Baltimore, 4; Washington, 1.
St. Louis, 8; Louisville, 2.
Cincinnati, 9; Chicago, 3.
At Pittsburgh—Rain.

BOSTON, 7; NEW YORK, 4.

Although the New Yorks played poor ball yesterday and in spite of another downfall at the instigation of the Boston experts, Manager Irwin's heart was not entirely filled with sorrow. He was really chipper and seemed ready to slap somebody on the back. He was overflowing with a sudden joyous feeling that seized him unexpectedly and made him laugh. The cause of it all was the pitching of Jonett Meekin, who, up to yesterday, was looked upon as useless, because of an alleged crockery arm. Meekin, it will be remembered, went in against the Philadelphias last Wednesday and was forced to leave the box after a couple of innings because of the heavy hitting. At the time THE SUN remarked that he showed signs of regaining his old-time effectiveness, and pointed out that the errors behind him in that game were chiefly responsible for the bombardment.

When Meekin entered the box yesterday there were groans and howls among the cranks. The big New Albany twirler, with Charley Farrell to catch him, quickly demonstrated that he was himself, as the cranks knew him in 1894, and as he shot the ball over the plate with old-time speed and control the crowd became enthused and cheered to the echo. Meekin gave but three bases on balls, and worked the Boston batsmen so cleverly that of their seven runs only one was earned. Farrell caught and threw well, which drew forth the general comment:

"That $7,500 battery is as fine as silk!"

It was no wonder, then, that Irwin felt elated over the pitching, for he readily saw that if Meekin could keep up such work, with Dad Clarke and another man to help him out, there would not be such a frantic cry for Rusie. But Meekin's return to earth was temporarily offset by about the poorest fielding the New Yorks have done in a long time. Every man on the team, excepting Van Haltren, George Davis, and Farrell, made blunders until the 2,500 spectators howled in derision. Pfeffer was wofully weak in handling ground balls and moved about as if his legs were made of wood. Gleason and Connaughton fell all over themselves in attempting to complete the easiest kind of plays, Stafford muffed a fly, and so did Tiernan, which, taken altogether, was responsible for the defeat.

Van Haltren played in a style that delighted the crowd. His batting and base running were immense, but when it is noticed that he cracked out half of the New Yorks' hits, the work of Kid Nichols can easily be imagined. The Bostons didn't begin to play championship ball. Harrington at third was a mark, and with blundering base running by Hamilton and Duffy to be considered, the showing of the Beaneaters was such that the New Yorks, with any kind of clever work, could have beaten them.

Manager Irwin put on a uniform and coached his men from the lines. It was the proper caper, and, if continued, will bear fruit. Irwin knows the tendency of some men to quit, and, by being up where he can talk to his team, he will see to it that all the players have ginger until the fight is over.

The Bostons went to the bat first, and got a run which was a pure gift. After Hamilton had singled and had been thrown out at second, Tiernan made an excusable muff of Long's fly to right. Lowe grounded to George Davis, and Pfeffer fumbled Duffy's bounder, long scoring. The New Yorks, in their half, tied the score with two out on scratch hits by Van Haltren and Davis, and a wild throw by Long.

With one out in Boston's second Tucker singled and took second on Connaughton's muff of Ryan's fly. Nichols struck out, which should have retired the side, but Hamilton filled the bases with a scratch. Then Long put a base hit to centre, bringing in two runs, Hamilton being caught at the plate a moment later.

The New Yorks tied the score again in the fourth on Van Haltren's safe hunt, Davis's sacrifice, Stafford's single, errors by Harrington and Bannon, and a force. The Boston's took the lead once more in the fifth on errors by Pfeffer and Meekin and an out. But in the sixth Van Haltren got around on his two-bagger and steal of third and a force.

The Bostons won the game in the eighth on some more errors. With one out, Stafford muffed Bannon's fly. Tucker hit safely, scoring Bannon, and an error by Connaughton, coupled with Hamilton's single, carried Tucker across the plate. In the ninth Lowe's double and singles by Duffy and Harrington resulted in another run, although there should have been more but for a wonderful running catch and throw to the plate by Stafford. BROOKLYN, 6; PHILADELPHIA, 4.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—Brooklyn defeated Philadelphia to-day by bunching its hits in the last three innings of the game. Up to the seventh inning Taylor had the visitors well in hand, they securing but two singles. In the seventh, however, Mc'Carthy and La Chance made triples, and Shindle rapped out a single, two earned runs being the result. Brooklyn made it three better in the eighth, Jones, who batted in place of Abbey, being hit by a pitched ball, and Griffin, Anderson, and La Chance securing singles. Daly, who got a base on balls, scored the last run in the ninth. The home club batted Abbey freely in the seventh, Delehanty and Thompson making doubles and Clements and Cross following with singles. Kennedy, who pitched the last two innings, gave three bases on balls, but no hits were made off him. Attendance, 8,515. The score:

BALTIMORE, 4; WASHINGTON, 1.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Baltimore played superior ball to-day, and but for Bowerman's wild throw would have shut Washington out. McJames's four wild pitches were disastrous. Brown was hurt in the third inning attempting a steal of second. Lush taking his place. The weather was chilly and not the kind for ideal baseball playing. Attendance, 3,000. The score:

NEWARK, 8; METROPOLITANS, 3.

NEWARK, April 27.—Harry Davis of the Metropolitans was ordered out of the game with Newark in the first inning to-day for using insulting language to Umpire Sullivan. Sullivan had called a ball on J. Rothfuss which Davis, who was playing second base, declared was a strike. The Metropolitans failed to take Davis out in the prescribed time, and Sullivan gave the game, 9 to 0, to Newark. At the request of Capt. "Tom" Burns of the Newarks, who did not want to send the spectators away without seeing a game, Sullivan recalled his decision and the game went on with Irwin at second, in place of Davis. The Newarks outplayed their opponents at every point. The score:

Meeting of the Brooklyn Amateur Association.

The Brooklyn Amateur Baseball Association held a meeting last night at the residence of Secretary A. B. Waldron, 473 Sackett street, to make arrangements for the coming championship season. The Resolute, Long Island, and sidney clubs were represented, and applications for membership in the association were received from the Manhattan Field Club and the Trunk Line Association. Action was deferred until next week, as the association desires one more application, so as to make it a six-club league.

The Committee on Nominations was authorized to fill all vacancies. The Schedule Committee was instructed to have the opening games played on Saturday, May 23. Waldron, Hoffman, and Cahill were appointed a committee to select the official playing ball. The games, as in former years, will be played at Prospect Park. A final meeting of the association will be held next Monday night, and it is probable that the association will begin the season with six clubs.

Pfeffer to Be Released.

Fred Pfeffer will, in all probability, be released by the New York Club. After his work in yesterday's game it was apparent to the majority of spectators that he could not play his old game, and that for the best interests of the team, Gleason should be restored to the guardianship of second base. It will be remembered that Irwin declared that Pfeffer was not playing his game well in the South, but rather than have his friends believe that he had not received fair treatment, Irwin let him have another trial.

In to-day's game with the Bostons the infield will receive another shake up. Harry Davis will come back to cover first base, where he will remain. Gleason will cover second base, where he is much more at home than on third, and Connaughton will play short stop. The latter will be supplanted by Fuller, however, as soon as Shorty gets over a lame arm. The outfield will remain as it is, and the pitching will be done by Clarke, Meekin, and one other in regular turn. Bowen will try his hand against the Bostons this afternoon.

Freedman Will Not Trade Rusie.

President Freedman of the New York Club will not consent to the proposed deal for Rusie in exchange for McMahon and Hemming of Baltimore. Although, as THE SUN predicted, all parties concerned have entered strong denials, it can be stated that the Baltimore Club proposed the exchange, which was not considered for a moment by the local officials. Mr. Freedman said yesterday:

"I wish THE SUN would say for me that I will not consent to a trade, sale, exchange, or any transaction whereby Rusie leaves the employ of the New York Club. He will play ball with this club or not at all. He will not receive a concession from me, in spite of the abuse that is being heaped upon my head. He will not be traded to St. Louis for Breitenstein and $20,000 to boot, nor will he be exchanged if Hanlon offers the entire Baltimore team for him. When I say a thing I mean it. Rusie will play ball for New York at my terms or quit the business."
