They have their cow in Washington, and I had some of her cream for breakfast every morning. It was fine. Mrs. Taft who, by the way, hasn't been feeling at all well of late—poor Helen—engaged a chef in New York. I said to her: 'Helen is your chef a man or a woman?' and she said, 'Oh, a woman. I could never get along with a man in the kitchen!' And that's the way I'd feel about a man cook, too. Still, there are a great many who have them, and have good things to eat, too. Read how two men make $12,000 a year raising eggs

FOUR years ago the Cornings, father and son, both in poor health and without experience, began egg-raising at Bound Brook, N. J., with only 30 hens.

To-day they have one of the greatest egg-producing plants in this country, and a business that, with 1953 hens, paid last year a profit of more than twelve thousand dollars.

When the publishers of the FARM JOURNAL learned what these two inexperienced men had actually done, they decided at once that their subscribers should know all about an operation so important. They saw that any one with "gumption" could raise eggs by Corning methods, which had succeeded both on a small and on a large scale. So these practical egg-raisers were induced to describe their experiences and methods fully in the

CORNING EGG-BOOK

(entitled "$6.41 per Hen per Year") which tells just HOW they made their splendid success. It will interest every one who wants a safe, paying business, that can be built up without large capital or long training, and also the million families who need plenty of fresh eggs for table use.

Fifteen hundred hens confined in one house. Turning out eggs by the bushel

There is a great demand in all cities for "near-by, selected fancy eggs," and the few who can furnish an unfailing supply, winter and summer, get very high prices. This is one of the most precious of the Cornings' secrets. The book tells the whole story, where they find their market, why they raise only white-shelled, sterile eggs, how they keep hens laying regularly in winter, when they hatch chicks that are to do their best work in December and January, how to mix the feed that produces the most eggs, how to prevent losses, how they found the best breed for egg-producing, and how their whole system works to that one end—eggs, EGGS, EGGS. It gives photographs of their plant, and complete working plans of their buildings, which can be made in sections, large or small as needed.

Next year the Cornings expect to have twice as many hens,—that is, 4000. Will they make twice $12,000?

The FARM JOURNAL publishers believe that thousands of poultry raisers, both amateurs and professionals, will want to learn how two novices could in four years make egg-raising pay a profit of $12,000 a year; so they have arranged to sell the Corning Egg-Book in combination with the FARM JOURNAL to increase its subscription list to ONE MILLION for next year.

Farm Journal is the standard farm and home paper of America; made for fruit-growers, truckers, poultrymen, stock-men, dairymen, suburbanites, village people, housekeepers, boys and girls. It is clean, brief, bright, "boiled down," intensely practical. "Cream, not skim-milk," is its motto. It is thirty-three years old, and known everywhere. Its poultry department is famous for the practical value of its contents. It is well printed and illustrated. It has now more than 650,000 subscribers, but won't be happy until it gets a million, which it expects in 1910. More than half a million of its subscribers pay five and TEN years ahead, which shows rare confidence in a paper. It never prints a medical, fraudulent, or trashy advertisement.
