CARNEGIE ON STEEL TRADE

HE TELLS WHY HE DECIDED TO REMAIN IN BUSINESS.

Says His Option Was Too Low but His Partners Decided Not to Buy Him Out—Next Year Will Be the Banner Year in Profits for the Manufacturers of Iron.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18.—In an interview today Andrew Carnegie told why he would not retire from business and why the Carnegie Steel Company would continue in the old lines. He said:

"It was very natural for my thirty odd young partners to be tempted by the seemingly high offer made for the business. When I was spoken to on the subject, my only question was whether the partners desired to accept it. I satisfied myself that they did. That was sufficient for me. I told them that I could have nothing to do with any stock speculation, but I gave them the option to take over my interests, so they could do what they liked.

"I believe the transaction was closed but circumstances arose which prevent it from being carried out. I also think that many of the partners had become less anxious for the sale than they were. At any rate the result was that the whole matter fell through and here we are again. That is all there is about it."

"Was not the price considered too high?"

"I don't know about that. Probably some thought it was and others thought it was not. I had a very decided opinion then. I have the same opinion now. It was not nearly high enough. I was asked what price I would take to give an extension of the option, and I declined to give it upon any terms. I knew that I was making great sacrifices of my interests. The next party that wants an option will have to take it at a greatly enhanced price, so far as I am concerned, and instead of giving me a million for the option I gave, I shall want five. The Carnegie Steel Company has just begun to grow."

"The Carnegie Steel Company is getting big competitors now that it did not have before. Is not that serious?"

"That may be serious, but not for the Carnegie Steel Company. A partnership concern, with such an organization as our company has, with thirty-two of the cleverest young men in the world, every one of them a partner because he can do something better than anybody else, has a great advantage."

"Do you think the country can continue consuming so much iron and steel?"

"This is not to be decided solely by reference to our own country," Mr. Carnegie replied. "I believe the world to be short of steel. The article is going into so many new uses, supplanting other articles, that it would be difficult to supply the wants of the world. Take steel cars, for instance, a wonderful success. The Carnegie Steel Company has to make 1,000 plates a day for the Pressed Steel Car Company, which takes 250,000 tons of pig iron a year."

"Then you think the present conditions will continue?"

"Oh, no, I don't. The iron and steel business is like the sea, a succession of waves and tides, high then low; but so far as next year is concerned, I cannot see any cause, short of a phenomenal one, which can prevent it from being a year with much more profitable results than this has been."

"Then you look for an advance upon present prices?"

"No, the manufacturers of iron and steel have profited little so far by the advance in prices. Some have even lost heavily, not being covered with raw materials, but most, if not all, of them have been largely oversold at the lowest prices. Any concern that had to buy pig iron to-day and sold finished steel at the low price prevailing a short time ago would lose $14 on every ton. Next year is to be the banner year for the manufacturers, barring the exception, the newspapers have published about our proposed new improvements. These are enough for one year's employment. What the next year's extensions will be time will show, but they will be, I think, as great as those of this year, which is the greatest year's extensions ever made in the history of the concern. I have not a doubt that Pittsburg is still to the centre of the steel industry. There are some things that I believe will be accomplished in three years that will prove me a true prophet. I have heard of some plans that give me much satisfaction."

Mr. Carnegie spoke of the Pittsburg orchestra, which is conducted by Victor Herbert. First thanking the newspapers for their encouragement of the Carnegie Institute, he said:

"I am glad the orchestra is going over to New York to perform in Carnegie Hall. Pretty rough on New York when Pittsburg can send a permanent orchestra to perform there and New York has not one. I like that. I will not be ashamed of the orchestra even in New York."

Mr. Carnegie was asked if he had dictated an article to one of the reviews regarding the Transvaal war when coming out on the train the other day. He replied: "Yes. I should like everybody to read it. My article will appear in January."

"As for home politics, I have just gotten home and my mind has been occupied with other matters. I have two friends sorrowing over sons killed in the Philippines; Gen. Howard lost his and I was Gen. Logan lose her son. Thousands of others have the same sorrow. I keep asking myself what is all this for, and find no satisfactory answer, nor have I seen one made."

Mr. Carnegie will leave for New York tomorrow morning.

BIG COAL STRIKE THREATENED.

Mine Owners Ordered to Pay Union Wages or Take the Consequences.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 18.—The Executive Board of the United Mine Workers to-day voted to order a strike of all the miners in the Southwest if the companies employing them did not immediately agree to pay the union scale of wages, said President Mitchell sent telegrams to the presidents of the companies, acquainting them with this action. The companies notified were the Central Coal and Coke Company, Kansas City; Missouri Pacific Fuel Company, St. Louis; Kansas and Texas Coal Company, St. Louis, and the Southwestern Coal and Improvement Company, Parsons, Kan. These companies are owned and operated by the Missouri Pacific, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Cotton Belt and Iron Mountain Railroad companies. The mines involved are in Indian Territory, Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri.

The contemplated strike affects all coal miners working for operators shipping coal over the railroads named. There are now 6,000 miners idle in these mines, owing to the trouble between the men and the coal companies.

"The companies will not pay the union scale," said President Mitchell, "and we have decided to bring the trouble to an end. If the presidents to whom I send telegrams ignore my messages—that is, refuse to answer them, or decline to meet us in conference—I shall at once order a strike, and it will take 15,000 men out of the mines.

RULES FOR DISPENSARIES.

Report of the Special Committee of the State Board of Charities.

The Special Committee of the State Board of Charities appointed to formulate a new lot of rules for the government and licensing of dispensaries has made its report. Nine rules are laid down for the dispensaries after they shall have been licensed according to law. The first one provides for the posting of a notice to the effect that the dispensary is for the treatment solely of persons too poor to pay for medical attendance, and any other persons applying for or receiving treatment is guilty of a misdemeanor. The second rule requires the employment of a registrar, who will be the manager of the dispensary. The other rules are all relating to the treatment of patients that come to the dispensary for relief. Clinical, secular and religious instruction may be given in the institutions, but no inmates are to be required to submit to examinations or operations for any other purposes than medical or surgical treatment.

Clarkson for Secretary of the Senate.

The Hon. James S. Clarkson, formerly of Iowa, chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1888 to 1892, and President Harrison's "headsman" is a candidate to succeed William R. Cox as Secretary of the United States Senate.

Gen. Clarkson's campaign is supported by some of the strongest Republicans in the nation, and the opinion last night was that he would get the place.

2,500 More Males Sent to South Africa.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18.—The British steamship City of Manchester loaded here to-day with 2,200 mules for the British army in South Africa. As it has been rumored that Boer sympathizers might sail off on the steamer and poison or otherwise get rid of the mules, there will be an organized force of marines on the steamer.

AN INDIAN PRINCESS.

Ida Wering Took That Part and Julius Fischer Was the Boy Indian Slayer.

One delight of childhood has gone out from the life of thirteen-year-old Ida Wering; she will never again play Indian, although she will have the make-up for the part for some weeks, thanks to the lively imagination of seventeen-year-old Julius Fischer. The two youngsters work in a tailor shop at 176 Humboldt street, Williamsburg. On Tuesday afternoon the tailor went out goose hunting and left his two assistants to run the shop as best suited them. No sooner had he disappeared than Julius turned to Ida and suggested that play was more fun than work, setting forth the specious argument that they could work any day, whereas the boss seldom left them a chance for amusement. Ida fell in with this view and said if she had a doll she could make beautiful dresses out of the scraps of a frock coat which Julius had been converting into a bicycle jacket by a vigorous use of the shears.

"Dolls! pooh!" said Julius with masculine scorn. "How'd you like to be a princess?"

"What kind of a princess?" asked Ida dubiously.

"An Indian princess."

"I don't know," said Ida. "I never was that kind."

"It's easy," said Julius. "All you have to do is to make your face the right color. Walnut juice is the best" (Julius had been reading dime novels), "but this'll do."

He got a vial filled with a brown, gluey sort of mixture used by tailors on some seams, and, after stirring it up with a brush, proceeded to daub it over the girl's features. She started to protest but got a taste of the mixture and wisely concluded that it was better to keep her mouth shut. When the process was over, Julius set her upon the fitting box and draped her in a flannel-lined ulster with the flannel outside.

"Now," said he, "you're a regular squaw and your name is Wanna-go-whoopee."

"I don't like that name," said Ida. "I thought you said I'd be a princess. What does a squaw do?"

Julius considered the matter for a while.

"She squalls, he finally said, in a burst of inspiration. "Jump up and down and waggle your hands and yell 'wah-wallah!'"

"I won't," said Ida. "I won't play any more. I don't like this game and my face feels horrid."

"You won't, won't you?" cried Julius. "Then I'm the boy Indian-slayer and I am going to shoot you."

He got his putty blower from the corner where he had left it and dented Ida's face with well-directed shots until she fled from the shop crying and made her way through a scandalized neighborhood to her home on 7th McKibbin street, where her mother received her with loud weeping under the impression that she had a dire mixture of scarlet fever (represented by the glue) and smallpox (exemplified by the marks of the putty shots). When the true state of the case was explained to her Mrs. Wering took the princess to the hot-water faucet where she scrubbed, rubbed, polished, scraped, curried, and all but peeled her, with the result that the girl's face looked like a compromise between a checker-board and a boiled lobster. Then Mrs. Waring went to the Ewen street police court and got a warrant for Julius Fischer, charging him with assault. The Indian slayer was arraigned yesterday and was in a very meek frame of mind. He said that he only did it for fun and that Ida had wanted to play doll, this after being a line of defence which so impressed Justice Goslin that he repeated it three times. He was paroled for a further hearing on Monday, when Mrs. Waring is to report further upon the facial condition of the Princess.

AWARDS FOR THE NEW CRUISERS.

Townsend & Downey May Protest Against the Rejection of Their Bid.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Townsend & Downey of New York will probably protest against the rejection by the Naval Board of Construction of that firm for the construction of one of the six protected cruisers of 3,500 tons displacement authorized by Congress at its last session. A member of the firm was at the Navy Department to-day making inquiries about the board's report. On account of the injunction of secrecy placed on the members of the Board on Construction concerning their recommendations the reason for their action has not been disclosed.

The bid of Townsend & Downey was $4,564,500, and the next lowest, that of Trigg & Co., of Richmond, Va., one of the fortunate bidders, was $4,027,000. The other bidders included in the board's recommendations are Neafie & Levy of Philadelphia, Lewis Nixon of Elizabethport, N. J.; the Fall River Engine Company of Massachusetts, the Union Iron Works of San Francisco and the Bath Iron Works of Bath, Me. If the board's advice is followed each of these firms will get one cruiser.

There will be a minority report advocating the granting of contracts to firms which proposed to furnish vessels of greater speed on their own plans than that required by the Department plans.

AMERICAN ART EXTOLLED.

A Largely Attended Lotos Club Dinner to John Elderkin.

It has been the practice of the Lotos Club for some time to do something each year for the encouragement of American art. This impulse has found expression in the purchase of three or four thousand dollars' worth of paintings by American artists each year, which productions adorn the walls of the clubhouse. It has also been the practice to give a subscription dinner each season to some member of the club who has been conspicuous in furthering the interests of American art. The dinner last night was in honor of John Elderkin of the Art Committee. It was attended by about fifty members of the club and their guests, among whom were J. Q. A. Ward, Charles DeKay, Catholina Lambert, Col. George C. Briggs, Walter Logan, J. N. Raffaelly, Homer Lee, George W. Iness, Jr., George E. Schenck, Samuel Untermyer, John E. Ladd, H. Durandruell, George H. Bogert, H. B. Wilson, George H. Daniels, Dr. W. W. Walker, William T. Evans, William Henry White, Horatio N. Fraser, H. H. Harrison, W. J. Ives, H. G. Fiske, H. J. Davis, and others. President Frank R. Lawrence presided, and very many of those present made speeches in favor of American art, John Elderkin and the Lotos Club.

WILL HAND OVER HIS SALARY.

Candidate to Succeed Congressman Owen Offers to Help the Bereaved Family.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 18.—Representative John T. Hinton of Paris one of the best known politicians of the "Ashland Seventh district" to-day announced that if the nomination for Congressman is given to him and he is elected to Congress, he will give every dollar of his salary as Congressman to the widow and family of the late Congressman Evan Settle. Mr. Hinton is wealthy and has twice represented Bourbon county in the Legislature. He was one of Col. Breckenridge's staunchest supporters in the Owens-Breckenridge race. Mr. Hinton was a supporter of ex-Senator Blackburn in the famous Senatorial fight of 1896 and has always trained with the Bryan Democrats, although it has been charged he was a gold man. Mr. Settle left his family in needy circumstances and the proffer is calculated to give Hinton much strength. Ira Julian, James Andrew Scott of Franklin, Judge Cantril of Scott, Jim Mulligan of Lexington, W. B. Moody and William Thorn, Henry and Emmett Orr of Owen, are probably candidates.

WOULDN'T GIVE HIM HIS CHILD.

Hinson Abandoned It in a Surface Car and Now He Can't Get It Back.

Belford Hinson of Elmer, N. J., called on Superintendent Blair of the Out-door Poor Department yesterday and said he was the father of the two-year-old child found in a surface car on Sunday night at Fortieth street and Eighth avenue. He said that his wife died two weeks ago and that he came to this city to place his child in the care of a married sister. He had several drinks, he said, after which he forgot all about the child.

Superintendent Blair sent to Randall's Island for the child and Hinson identified it. The Superintendent finally decided that Hinson was not a fit person to have the child and he sent it back to the island.

Princeton's Exhibit at Paris.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18.—President Francis L. Patton of Princeton University to-day appointed, as a committee to prepare and oversee the exhibit which Princeton will send to the Paris Exhibition, M. Taylor Pyne, Prof. A. F. West and Prof. William Libbey. Only small space will be given to American educational work, and the committee will economize the part reserved for Princeton by putting the exhibit in a specially prepared cabinet. It will include among other objects of interest, photographs of the buildings and equipment, and charts illustrating the history and organization of the university.

WOMAN HELD FOR FRAUD.

MRS. H. J. O'NEILL OF CHICAGO ARRESTED IN MONTREAL.

Charged with Securing Valuable Goods at Various Stores and Then Fleeing to Canada—Amount of Goods Involved Said to Be Fully $50,000—She Will Contest.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Henry J. O'Neill of Chicago, wife of the man who was formerly known as the "Barley King" of Chicago was arrested here to-day on a charge of attempting to defraud her creditors to the amount of about $50,000. The arrest was made on a warrant sworn out by Jacob Ringer of Ringer & Wilhartz and Fred D. Silber of Wheeler & Silber, Chicago attorneys, representing Marshal Field & Co., Mandel Brothers and other Chicago merchants. Mrs. O'Neill, after getting all the goods she could on credit to the amount of many thousands of dollars filed a petition in bankruptcy and left Chicago suddenly about five weeks ago, taking with her ten large trunks filled with valuable articles.

Mrs. O'Neil took the train for Montreal, coming by way of Baltimore, where she left two of the trunks. On her arrival here on last Tuesday she went to the Windsor Hotel and on Thursday she engaged the bridal chamber on board the Dominion liner Dominion, which was scheduled to sail for Liverpool on Monday. Meantime the Chicago detective firm of Mooney & Boland had communicated with Detective Joe Kellert of this city telling him to be on the lookout for the woman, and she had not been many hours in the city when Kellert found her. Attorneys Ringer and Silber arrived here last night and this morning went before Judge Lafontaine in the police court and applied for a warrant for Mrs. O'Neil's arrest.

The Magistrate at first demurred to issuing the warrant, saying that such a case very seldom stood a chance of a true bill before the Grand Jury, and he considered a civil procedure would have been more efficient. It was pointed out, however, that a capias could not be taken out in the civil courts against a woman, and Judge Lafontaine then issued the warrant.

Deputy High Constable Lambert went to the Windsor Hotel and arrested Mrs. O'Neil, who was taken before Judge Lafontaine. Her lawyer offered bail, and finally the Magistrate released her on a bail bond of $1,200 to appear on Tuesday next. Mrs. O'Neil has engaged the services of the Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Attorney-General of Canada, besides several local lawyers, and intends to make a big fight for liberty. All the trunks were placed under seizure this afternoon and an inventory of their contents made. The two trunks which were left off at Baltimore were also seized on a telegraphic order from the detectives.

Mrs. O'Neil was indignant over her arrest and declared she was entirely innocent of any wrongdoing and was being persecuted. She said she would fight the proceedings to the bitter end. She has engaged the best legal talent in Canada to represent her and has also secured the services of Detective Gross, the Montreal representative of the Thiel Detective Agency, to protect her. The representatives of the prosecution say that Mrs. O'Neil's profession of innocence is ridiculous and that her operations in Chicago were well known, and that she secured large quantities of goods and left the city without meeting her obligations. It is also said that she has in her possession bonds and securities to the amount of many thousands of dollars. The New York firm of Isaac Bloom & Co. has a claim against Mrs. O'Neil for $12,000.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The Chicago police were informed to-day of the arrest in Montreal of Mrs. Evangeline Claire O'Neill, wife of Henry J. O'Neill, formerly a prominent speculator on the Board of Trade, named by his associates at one time as the "Barley King," on account of his huge deals. Mrs. O'Neill's arrest is said to have been caused by creditors, who alleged that she was about to leave the country owing them more than $150,000. Thirteen of the woman's trunks, it is said, were attached by legal representatives of the creditors. The trunks are supposed to contain $145,000 worth of jewelry bought by Mrs. O'Neill during the past three years.

About three weeks ago, after vainly attempting to collect large amounts due them for goods obtained by Mrs. O'Neill from them on credit, several State street merchants filed a petition in the United States District Court asking that the woman be declared a bankrupt and that a receiver for her property be appointed. After the petition was filed, several New York firms filed claims against Mrs. O'Neill, one being for $12,000 for dresses made for her. About this time Mrs. O'Neill disappeared, and it is presumed that she took her valuables with her.

The receiver appointed by the court levied on $15,000 worth of goods stored in a local warehouse in the name of one Tomlinson of Pontiac, Mich., said to be the woman's father. Detectives were employed to trace Mrs. O'Neill and last Monday they found her in Montreal.

When it was discovered that she had taken passage for Europe her arrest followed.

REV. DR. ALLEN GETS A DIVORCE.

Decree That His Wife Secured in Newark, N. J., Considered in Court.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Nov. 18.—The Rev. Dr. William A. Allen of the M. E. Church, well known in New York and elsewhere in the East, to-day secured a divorce in the District Court here from his wife to whom he was married at Asbury Park, N. J., while he was pastor there in 1893. Mrs. Allen did not accompany the doctor to Colorado Springs when he came here two years ago. It was not known generally that their marriage was unhappy until the doctor began suit for the divorce here last June. Three weeks later Mrs. Allen begun like suit at Newark, N. J. Both alleged cruelty and desertion. Mrs. Allen's suit was heard on Nov. 6. She secured a limited divorce. Dr. Allen was prevented by sickness from attending the trial.

The case was given to the Jury to-day without trial, the counsel for defence, Attorneys H. R. Gillispie of Boston and Samuel Patterson of Asbury Park, agreeing. Dr. Allen's counsel agreed to two conditions. The Rev. Hubert V. Porter of Jamestown, N. Y., signed an acknowledgment of illicit correspondence with Mrs. Allen carried on to injure Dr. Allen's married life. Mrs. Allen gave a waiver against alimony and all other benefits granted her by the Chancellor at Newark.

PLEADING FOR A YALE MAN.

President Hadley and the Faculty Asked to Revoke an Expulsion Order.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—The Rev. Father Coyle, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church of this city, is interceding with President Hadley and the faculty of Yale University for the reinstatement in Yale of a student who was expelled from college a few days ago. The student gives his name as Harry Smith and he is a member of a New York City family. Smith and another student, Harry E. Goss, were arrested early this week for attempting to strike one of the Rev. Father Coyle's assistants at a church fair. Their conviction in the police court was immediately followed by their expulsion from the University.

Smith's family have also enlisted Mayor Driscoll of this city to labor with the Yale Faculty to revoke the expulsion order. It is President Hadley's policy to severely discipline students for disorderly conduct and this is about the first case that has occurred since he became president.

DWIGHT L. MOODY IN ST. LOUIS.

The Evangelist Says That He Expects to Be at Work in Two Weeks.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, arrived in the city this morning from Kansas City, where he had been compelled to abandon evangelical work owing to heart trouble. He was pale as he stepped from the private car provided for him by his admirers in Kansas City. He was accompanied by Dr. R. M. Schauffler. "A man is liable to break down when he gets along into the first half of the sixties," said Mr. Moody. "I am 63, and this is my first real sick spell.

"I am sure that a few days of perfect quiet will restore me. I expect to be at work again in two weeks. The reports that I am on the verge of retirement from my work are unfounded. Death alone can make me do that."

The special car was abandoned here, and Mr. Moody and his friends went East on the "Knickerbocker" special.

PTOMAINE POISONING.

Four Members of a Family Made Ill by Eating Sausages.

FLUSHING, Nov. 18.—The family of Frederick Bowne, one of the wealthiest in Flushing, was poisoned yesterday by sausages. The family consists of Mrs. Bowne, her mother, Mrs. John Baxter, and two daughters, Miss Charlotte and Miss Ruth.

The sausages were eaten for breakfast. About noon every member of the family mentioned above felt ill and Dr. Fox, the family physician, was sent for. He at once determined that they were suffering from ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Bowne, who had eaten more heartily than the other members of the family, was dangerously ill. Dr. Fox called in another physician, and they succeeded in relieving the sufferers. Dr. Fox reported to-day that all the members of the family are out of danger excepting Mrs. Bowne.

Adams & Co. to Build a New Store.
