AFFIDAVITS ON THE SPOT.

COPARE WAS IN THE CROWD WHEN A CAR CLEARED FIRMLY.

Witnesses Offer to Testify That the Accused Was Expropriated, Two Swear to That Right There and Sign Their Statements—Parsons Locked Up on the Same.

William Parsons, a clerk in a grocery store in 84th avenue, was locked up in the Fourteenth precinct last night charged by Patrolman Earl Brown with interfering with him in the discharge of his duty. Patrolman Brown said that the patrolman assisted him without provocation, and he is backed up by seven witnesses, two of whom made affidavits before a notary public in the room.

The trouble started over an intoxicated woman who was riding in the street at Bergen, nearly every car that passed. Patrolman Brown was in the street against the woman when the patrolman pushed her into the car. The Parsons ran for the patrolman and the woman when Brown ordered the car back. The crowd then hooted and the patrolman let loose his club and struck a Parsons right on the jaw. Then the patrolman turned a patrol wagon, handled the women into it and took Parsons along. On the way to the station the crowd was hooting the patrolman, calling him names and telling him that Parsons was in the right. When Parsons was locked up the patrolman went back to the place and found Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kell, Mr. and Mrs. William Kell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles
