SHOT POOLROOM MAN BETTER.

NO COMPLAINANT AGAINST DETECTIVE WHO SHOT HIM.

Jerome Won't Complain and the Poolroom Men Have Not Produced an Accuser—M'Coy's Ante-Mortem Statement Disposes of Bogus Eye Witnesses

James McCoy, the poolroom man who was shot by County Detective McLellan in the raid of Monday, rallied yesterday at Bellevue. One of the surprises that Dr. Voight, who has had charge of McCoy's case, got yesterday was when the man declared that his eyesight was returning. On Tuesday McCoy was blind and it was given out that the bullet had severed the optic nerve.

Early yesterday morning he began to get stronger and he saw and talked with his son George, aged 12 years, and his sisters, Mrs. P. J. Donohue, Mrs. J. W. James and Miss Alice McCoy. McCoy expressed great bitterness against the man who shot him and said that if he ever got well he would seek vengeance. In the afternoon he made a statement to Coroner Jackson.

McCoy said that his home in New York was at the Vanderbilt Hotel and that on Tuesday afternoon he was in the poolroom operated in the rear of the Sherman house. At the first sign of confusion, he said, he realized that a raid was being made, and he hurried to get away because the bankroll, something over $2,000, had been intrusted to his care.

He got through a window, he said, and was making for Forty-first street through an alley when he heard a shot and knew from the sharp pain in the back of his neck that he had been hit. He had no pistol at the time and the man who was running with him had none. He felt certain, he said, that the only shots fired were those fired by Detective McLellan. McCoy said he knew McLellan by sight and described him as a "small, miserable man."

"I believe that I am going to die," said McCoy, in conclusion, "but I am going to try and get well. I am very sure that when I was shot I was running through the alley."

This disposes of the bogus "eyewitnesses" statements that McLellan shot McCoy through a hole in the door leading into the "office" of the poolroom.

Magistrate Crane told District Attorney Jerome at the Centre street court yesterday that he ought to produce McLellan in court. Mr. Jerome had McLellan come over in the afternoon. Lawyer McManus of Abraham Gruber's firm was there waiting. Then ensued a three-handed discussion, of which the following is a part:

McManus—We have no complaint here but believe that the District Attorney is prosecuting officer of the county, should take some steps to insure this man being held sound McCoy die of his injuries.

Jerome—The man will be forthcoming at any time the Court wants him.

McManus—I have a short affidavit to be taken and that the District Attorney be ordered to make it.

Jerome—This man McLellan is absolutely innocent of any wrongdoing. A short affidavit is out of place in form of law and does not recite any facts showing a crime.

Magistrate Crane—I would suggest Mr. District Attorney, that you as prosecuting officer of the county take a short affidavit in the case. You state that the man is innocent but that is not for you to decide. You should make this affidavit to relieve Mr. McManus and he from prosecuting another complaint. You should not be shielding this man because he is in your office.

Jerome—I am emphatically not shielding him.

Magistrate Crane—I did not mean to say that you are. Still, I think you should make this affidavit.

Jerome—And I to understand that you take this position, that I having made a careful investigation and come to the conclusion that this person is innocent of a crime should take an accusation of crime against him?

Magistrate Crane—Oh, now, wait a minute, Mr. Jerome. I cannot be made to accuse an innocent man.

Magistrate Crane—I don't want you to. You say the man is innocent. It is not for you to say whether he is or not. When you take that stand you usurp the prerogatives of the court.

Mr. Jerome—I do not assume to take the place of the court. That is why I have McLellan here now. If anyone here wishes to make a charge against him he is here now to answer it. If McManus or anyone else wants anyone subpoenaed here, let him lay a complaint on information and belief and then his witnesses can come here and be examined.

McManus refused, saying that in the event of the thing going no further he would be open to an action by McLellan. Mr. Jerome said McLellan would sign a general release for McManus or any other citizen who would lay a complaint against him. Even this wouldn't induce McManus to make the affidavit. The case was then adjourned until this afternoon. Mr. Jerome said after the proceedings:

If any evidence is produced to show that McLellan was in the wrong I will suspend him at once, put him under arrest and ask for the appointment of a special Attorney-General to prosecute him. But so far there has not been a scintilla of evidence produced to show that the shooting was not entirely justified. Some people think that because this man is in my office I should hasten to lock him up. Would that be wise? To lock up a citizen who had committed no crime, nobody has found. McManus won't make a complaint. No one else comes on the plaint. No one seems to want to although there's a lot of talk. If people want to put this matter in the hands of the courts, this is the way to do it. The complaint of any citizen will suffice.

McLellan made this statement to an intimate friend yesterday:

I shot McCoy because my own life was in danger. I have never said that McCoy shot me. He didn't. I don't know the man who shot. I hope that McCoy lives. I do not want the life of any man on my hands, but whether he lives or dies I shall always have the feeling that I did what I could in this matter. I am willing to take my chances of my act. I am satisfied that in time the truth will come out, and the people will see that I did what any man would have done under the circumstances.

Crop Bulletin for New York State.

The New York section of the Climate and Crop Service of the Weather Bureau, in co-operation with Cornell University, issues the following crop bulletin for the week ending June 2:

The week was generally cold and wet, but warmer weather was felt on the last two days. Snow flurries were general on the 26th, except in the southern and east counties, occurred on the morning of the 28th, killing some tender vegetables and cutting down corn. On that morning the Adirondack Mountains were covered with snow. Heavy frosts followed during the first of the week and greatly benefited wheat, rye, grass, oats, but vegetation generally was checked by low temperature. Plowing for buckwheat and beans is progressing, with prospects for a large average. Pastures are backward, but grass is making better growth, and the prospect for hay is improved since recent copious showers. Corn and potatoes are coming up, and cultivation has begun, but the weather was too cold and wet for corn, which is turning yellow. Tobacco plants grow slowly. Fruit prospects become more promising with the advance of the season and it now appears that apples and pears are fairly promising, but peaches have been largely killed, as previously reported. Grapes are in good condition.

Business Troubles.

Charles Hillebrand, contractor at 128 Lexington avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $94,937. Of the liabilities $60,525 are secured by bond and mortgage.

A creditors' petition has been filed here against J. Samuel Jacobs, manufacturer of white lead, paints, &c., at 31 to 35 Broadway, Brooklyn.

Judge Adams in the United States District Court has granted a discharge in bankruptcy to Louis Heim, formerly of the Columbia restaurant, 48 East Fourteenth street, whose liabilities were $42,169.

Charles R. Sickels, a stockbroker formerly at 19 Wall street, allowed judgments to be taken against him yesterday for $1,600 for losses on stocks in the panic of May, 1901. The judgments are in favor of Charles A. Jacobus, $4,880; W. Jenks Merritt, $3,934, and Lynes A. Mataer, $2,627.

MARITIME ASSOCIATION TO BUILD

Will Buy a Broad Street Site for $200,000 and Put Up a $75,000 Home.

The Maritime Association of the Port of New York, at a special meeting held yesterday, authorized its committee on building to buy the property at 78 and 80 Broad street. The price agreed upon with the owner, Edward F. Searles, by the committee is $200,000.

The property consists of a five-story building on a plot about 55x95 feet, and is situated in the rear of the Produce Exchange building, where the association now occupies leased quarters. These quarters were not long ago rented over the Maritime Association's head to the New York Central Railroad, and will have to be vacated by next May. The Broad street property is in the centre of the shipping district, a few doors from Marketfield street.

Real estate values at this point have increased considerably within the last two years. Mr. Searles bought the parcel in April, 1900, and the revenue stamps on the recorded transfer indicate that he paid $150,000 for it. On the opposite side of Broad street the City Real Property Investing Company has purchased a site for a skyscraper and is now buying up the leases that incumber it, so that construction work may be begun next May.

The Maritime Association will spend $75,000 in remodeling its building. It will occupy the first floor and let the other floors, from which it expects a gross rental of $14,000 yearly. The association has been paying $9,000 in the Produce Exchange Building. It has a reserve fund of $75,000, an annual income of over $47,000 and a membership of 1,072. The building committee consists of President C. R. Parsons, Louis T. Romaine and John A. Cornack.

PROSECUTE MEYER CROWD?

Criminal as Well as Civil Proceedings Proposed to Creditors.

This anonymous statement was given out in Wall Street yesterday:

Delay in appointing a protective committee for Webb-Meyer issues, due to unwillingness of Stock Exchange houses and trust companies to act, and to the unfortunate financial conditions shown in the stockholders' committee report, has resulted in an effort on the part of some holders to secure general co-operation in bringing before District Attorney Jerome the facts of the creation and manipulation of the issues.

It is the purpose of those organizing the movement to explode the ablest criminal and civil lawyers to prosecute under the penal and civil code of New York and New Jersey against the prominent people, officers, directors, &c., of the various Webb-Meyer properties, to prove as much as possible of the profits of the promoters and to test the legality of the issues which largely participated in the creation and manipulation of false reports, conspiracy, &c.

District Attorney Jerome said that nobody had come to him about it.

P. Chauncey Anderson, chairman of the committee which recently investigated the Webb-Meyer properties, said that he did not know who was behind it. It was talking in the street to have the matter put to Jerome, to find out if the projects and are if they would back such a proceeding.

SETTLEMENT FELLOWSHIPS.

Two to be Awarded for the Investigation of Social Conditions.

The College Settlements Association has established two fellowships of $400 each for the year 1902-03, and invites application therefor. One of these fellowships may, at the discretion of the committee, be changed into a scholarship of $300.

The object of the fellowships is to open to a well-qualified person the opportunity afforded by settlement life for investigation of social conditions. The object of the scholarship is to give training in philanthropic and civic work. There are no requirements beyond residence in a settlement during the academic year and the pursuit of some clearly defined line of work, scientific or practical, under the general guidance of a committee of the association and of the head worker of the settlement selected. The basis of award will be solely promise of future usefulness. A college education is regarded as desirable but not essential and qualifications being equal a woman applicant will be preferable to a man.

Applications should be sent before July 15 to Mrs. Herbert Parsons, 112 East Thirty-fifth street.

WON BET WITH FORGED TICKET.

A Poolroom Defrauded by Erasure and Substitution of Numbers.

A gang of sharpers who alter poolroom tickets made their appearance in a poolroom on Eighth avenue yesterday. When Little Master was returned a winner in the fourth race at St. Louis one of the first tickets handed in was 823 calling for $12. The number and amount tallied with the sheet and the money was paid the ticket being kept. Near the end of the race was another man who called out "823 Little Master."

"That's been paid, see if you haven't another ticket," answered the cashier. The man was sure his ticket was genuine and the clerks examined both tickets. Then it was found that the big black figure in the centre of the ticket that was first presented did not correspond with the small red numbers in the corners. The red numbers were six while the black ones had been changed to 823. There was nothing for the cashier to do but to pay out another $12.

$500 Reward for Mary Quinn's Murderers.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 4.—A negro is suspected of having been the principal in the assault and murder of Mary Quinn in a lonely field on Twenty-fifth street on Monday night. The police have learned that a negro was seen crossing that field about 11 o'clock, and they have made no arrest upon suspicion. The negro, taken into custody proved beyond question and was allowed to go. The county of Lackawanna today offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the murderers.

Union Pacific Improvements.

The directors of the Union Pacific Railroad and the Oregon Short Line met in this city today and it is expected that E. H. Harriman will submit important recommendations for extensions and improvements. Detailed estimates for the immediate expenditure of about $10,000,000 on the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific lines have been prepared, and the Union Pacific directors will be called upon to act upon Mr. Harriman's plans at once.

New Line of Transatlantic Steamers.

Contracts have been signed by the Kansas City Southern Railroad and the shipping firm of C. T. Salov & Co. of Liverpool for the establishment of a new line of steamships between Port Arthur, Tex., and English and Continental ports. The Kansas City Southern is to spend more than $1,000,000 in improving its terminals at Port Arthur.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois.

CHICAGO, June 4.—The annual meeting today of the stockholders of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad was purely formal. Charles W. Hillard, Richard H. Rice, Joseph G. English and Frederick S. Power were reelected directors for three years. The directors reelected all the officers of the company.

Witness Who Took Bribes Disappears.

PORTLAND, Me., June 4.—Former Deputy Sheriff Arthur B. Leach, who recently confessed to accepting bribes and who was to be used to-morrow as a witness for the State in the trial of Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Plummer, has disappeared. Members of his family admit that they know where he is and say he is out of the State.

SLANDERED GIRL A SUICIDE.

LOUISE VOSS COULDN'T STAND BEING CALLED A THIEF.

Shopmates Asked Her Where She Got Her Finery and Her Sweetheart Smashed the Gossip—Then She Went Far Away From Home at Night and Drank Poison.

Louise Voss was only 16 years old, but she had been engaged a year, and on Tuesday night she killed herself because some gossips had told the young man to whom she was engaged that she was a thief. Her body was identified yesterday at Kunz's morgue in Orange, N. J., by her father and Andrew J. Sexton, her fiancé. To-day is Sexton's twenty-third birthday.

Miss Voss lived with her father and mother at 770 Twentieth street, Hilton, a suburb of Newark. Up to last Saturday night she was employed as a salesgirl in Klaussner Bros.' drygoods store at Springfield avenue and Boyd street. Last week she was allowed to take some dress trimmings and imitation pearls on account. The bill for the things, which she took home from the store came to $1.14, but by an oversight that amount wasn't deducted from her pay on Saturday night.

On Sunday she learned of a better job in a felt buckle factory, so she went to work there on Monday morning. That night a representative of the drygoods store went to her house to find out why she had not been to work. She told him about the other place, she also told him that she would come round on next pay day and pay her bill of $1.14. But the store gossips learned of the unpaid bill and by the time the story reached Sexton it came in the shape he reported it yesterday while standing by the body of the girl in the Morgue.

"A fellow that works in Klaussner's came up to me on the street last night and he said no wonder my girl could dress well, since she swiped her things. I told him he was a liar and then smashed him. Then I went to meet Lou and walk home with her, as I did every night after work. She was crying. The lie had just got round to her shop and when she was leaving the factory some girl asked her where she got the pearls and why she left Klaussner's. Then a lot of 'em guyed her and some one yelled 'Thief.' The poor little thing ran five blocks to our corner where we always meet. She took the pearls off as she came along and came up to me all out of breath crying, with the pearls in her hand.

"I ain't a thief, Andy. They lie. The boss let me have the se things and charged 'em and I'm going to pay, she said before I had time to ask what the matter was. Then she asked me if I had heard any stories about her. I told her I'd only heard how low lie about her and she hadn't smashed big one but wouldn't tell me. That let her know that I didn't think she was a thief and it seemed to cheer her up. She told me all about it and wound up by crying again.

"I told her I'd go right down to Klaussners then and pay the bill and for her to go home and not to father. She said she would and kissed me good night. That's the last time I saw her. I went down to the drygoods store and fixed things and then went to Lou's house, but she wasn't there.

"I waited most all night with her father and mother and then we set out looking for her. The first we heard was that a girl with a ring with three opals in it had been found lying by the road in Bloomfield and that she died at midnight in the hospital. We knew that was Lou on account of the ring. It was her engagement ring. I gave it to her just two months ago on her sixteenth birthday."

It was about 7 o'clock on Tuesday night that Sexton said good-night to Miss Voss. Instead of going home she went into a nearby drug store on Springfield avenue and bought two ounces of carbolic acid. Then she boarded a car for Bloomfield, and after an hour's ride got off at a cross-road, where she went into a grove near the Berkley School and drank the poison. She was found dying at 11 o'clock by two boys, who called Dr. Wolfe. The doctor took the girl to the Mountainside Hospital, where she died an hour later.

GIRL WIFE JUMPS FROM FERRY.

Mrs. Mary Denner, 17 years old, who lived at 381 Freeman avenue, Long Island City, committed suicide yesterday morning by jumping into the East River from the stern of the Thirty-fourth street ferryboat Long Beach. She had quarrelled with her husband a short time before and ended her life in the presence of a number of friends.

She was married five months ago to Charles Denner, son of a neighbor. Before her marriage the girl was employed in the factory of the American Cigar Company at Fifty-second street and First avenue, this city. She kept her place after marriage and her husband worked in a factory in Long Island City. Denner is only 18 years old and seemed very fond of his wife, according to the neighbors.

The couple lived on the first floor of a house owned by Mrs. Mary Pannack, who occupied the upper floor. She said yesterday that the lovers had had a young man visitor the night before and quarrelled while he was there and after he had gone. Mrs. Pannack said the couple passed her parlor yesterday morning and the young wife left the house acting as if angry. She reached the ferry at the usual time and boarded the boat with some young women friends.

Near her as the boat started were Miss Mary Burke of 197 Crescent street and Miss Maude Meeks of 531 Vernon avenue. Suddenly they and others saw her slip through the gates which she had opened and throw herself into the river. The women on the boat by the women brought the passengers to the stern. One young man, whose name was not obtained, pulled off his coat and dived overboard to the rescue. He came up empty handed and paddled about for several minutes but no trace of the young woman was obtained. A ladder was put down, the young man hauled on board and the boat proceeded. The body has not been recovered.

When the young husband was informed of his wife's death it was almost impossible to convince him. He finally said that they had had a quarrel about a trifle and he could not believe that she had killed herself for that alone. Mathias A. Kuka, father of the suicide lives in Dutch Kills near her home. He was formerly in the cigar business in this city. His wife worked in the same factory with their daughter.

TAYLOR HOFFMAN A SUICIDE.

Wealthy Eccentric Man of Jersey City Sends a Bullet Into His Brain.

Taylor Hoffman, 40 years old, committed suicide yesterday morning in the cellar of a flat building which he owned at 212 Second street, Jersey City, by shooting himself in the temple with a revolver. His body was found by Mrs. O'Connor, the janitress, and her daughter, lying alongside a log chopping block on which he had seated himself to fire the fatal shot.

Hoffman was well-known in the downtown section of Jersey City as an eccentric character. He lived on the income from the estate of his father, Samuel M. Hoffman, a wealthy coal and lumber merchant, who died many years ago. He was extremely fond of good clothes and almost invariably wore a Newmarket coat, a silk hat and immaculate cuffs which almost covered his hands. He was popularly known as "Cuffs."

Until recently Hoffman boarded with a sister in Newark street, but of late lived in a furnished room and ate his meals in restaurants. He was usually accompanied by a dog, for which he always selected a meal from the bill of fare. He could not be induced to talk about himself and did not seek acquaintances.

Hoffman visited the office of Henry T. Nugent, his real estate agent, on Tuesday and obtained the rents which were due him for the month of June. He was apparently cheerful and gave no indication that he was tired of life.

YOUNG WOMAN KILLS HERSELF.

Had Been Discharged From an Insane Asylum Four Months Ago.

Catherine G. Barber, who had suffered from nervousness and mental derangement, committed suicide yesterday in the bathroom of her home in the apartment house at 320 West 112th street, by shooting herself through the heart. Miss Barber, who was 31 years old and good-looking, lived with her father, James F. Barber, and her aunt, Mrs. Martha Simpson.

Sixteen years ago her mother, to whom she was greatly attached, died. The girl began to act queerly. She often talked of suicide, but said that she didn't want to kill herself, because she feared what would happen in the next world.

A year ago on the complaint of her father and her aunt she was committed to the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane. She was discharged on Jan. 28 last, as cured.

Miss Barber's body was embalmed last night by Mrs. Robert Howison, the wife of an undertaker in West 125th street. Mrs. Howison was one of the first women to get license to do embalming. Mr. Barber did not want a man to touch his daughter's body.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

August Wolf Shoots a Woman Who Wouldn't Elope With Him, Then Kills Himself.

BUFFALO, June 4.—Two years ago August Wolf, a New York Central switchman, saved Mrs. Hugh McGivney from being run down by a train at the Hudson street crossing, a few rods from her home. Afterward, he became a frequent visitor to her house, although both were married. Last week Wolf asked the woman to elope with him and became so importunate that she called on the police to warn him away.

At noon to-day when Mrs. McGivney's sixteen-year-old son came home from work he found the doors locked and forced an entrance. Wolf and the boy's mother were dead in the parlor. The switchman had shot Mrs. McGivney through the temple and then put a bullet into his own brain. Hugh McGivney, the woman's husband, has been in Los Angeles, Cal., for five years.

Morse Controls Mercantile National?

Charles W. Morse, Vice-President of the National Bank of North America, has increased his holdings in the stock of the Mercantile National Bank and it was believed in the financial district yesterday that he and his friends now control the bank. In answer to questions Mr. Morse yesterday said: "I have bought another block of Mercantile National Bank stock."

"Do you and your friends now control that bank?" "I won't say as to that, but I will say that there will be no change in the management of the bank." Mr. Morse declined to state what price he had paid for the new block of stock. He will sail for Europe to-morrow.

$200,000 Telephone Exchange to Be Built.

Plans have been filed with the Building Bureau for a new six-story telephone exchange with shops, 92x100 feet, to be built for the New York Telephone Company on the four lots at 346, 348, 350 and 352 West Seventeenth street. It will have a façade of brick trimmed with limestone, and will cost $200,000.

Notes From Wall Street.

The National City Bank has made application to the New York Stock Exchange for listing the new certificates recently authorized.

A working traffic arrangement has been agreed upon between the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad Company and the Chihuahua and Pacific Railroad Company, covering a period of ten years and giving to the trains of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad Company full rights over the tracks of the Chihuahua and Pacific Railroad. The papers were executed yesterday.

ROCK ISLAND'S GOOD YEAR.

Annual Meeting Reelects Old Officers and Hears of Increased Earnings.

CHICAGO, June 4. At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad here all of the old board of directors were reelected. Since the Moore brothers secured control of this road, about a year ago, there have been persistent rumors that R. R. Cable was to be retired as chairman of the board. Mr. Cable was President of the road for more than twenty years, and has been chairman of the board for two years. At to-day's meeting it was made clear that Mr. Cable would be retained. W. B. Leeds was reelected President.

The Rock Island stockholders approved the increase of capital stock from $90,000,000 to $75,000,000 recently voted by the board of directors. The annual report for the last fiscal year which was submitted by President Leeds showed an increase in gross earnings of $3,021,000 and an increase of nearly $2,000,000 in net earnings. The passenger traffic increased 25 per cent. and the freight traffic showed an increase of about 2½ per cent. Operating expenses increased $1,100,000, or 6¾ per cent., due largely to expenditures for terminal betterments.

During the last year nearly $5,000,000 has been added to the Rock Island's surplus.

In addition to the decision to increase the capital stock of the corporation from $90,000,000 to $75,000,000, there were adopted amendments to the articles of consolidation giving the road unlimited power to purchase, build, lease or otherwise acquire other lines of railway and fixing the limit of the indebtedness to which the company may subject itself at $200,000,000, exclusive of the bonds issued for the acquisition of additional property. It is generally supposed by the action taken that plans have already been virtually adopted for the enlargement of the system in a number of directions.

A quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared, payable on Aug. 1.

LOW TO N. Y. CENTRAL.

Suggesting a Conference of Engineers Over Forty-second Street Terminal.

Replying yesterday to President Newman of the New York Central Railroad, Mayor Low wrote that it would give him pleasure to cooperate with the company in settling questions which have been raised with reference to the proposed improvements of the Grand Central terminal. The Mayor suggests a conference of engineers. He writes:

I think it would be the best plan to see first whether the city and the railroad can agree on the details of the plan to be carried out. If the agreement can be reached on the physical aspects of the problem, the work of the lawyers will be reduced to a minimum. As I told you last winter, when we were discussing this question, I have never felt sure that the proposed widening of Park avenue is the best way to relieve the situation. The disadvantage of it to the city is obvious, and I should hope very much, through a consultation between the city and the railroad, that some plan may be devised which will be mutually acceptable.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WEDNESDAY, June 4.

To-day's stock market was largely a duplicate of yesterday's. It was exceedingly dull, and fluctuations were narrow and without significance. The strike of the anthracite coal miners, while it has not resulted in materially lower prices, has not only checked speculation, but caused important interests to hold their plans in abeyance. This condition of affairs is explained by the fact that the issue in the anthracite strike involves not only that industry, but means the determination of the question whether employees or owners shall control the enterprises in which enormous amounts of money have been invested. In the present campaign the labor organization has unquestionably made a serious mistake in endeavoring to damage the properties upon the operation of which the members of the United Mine Workers depend for their livelihood, by seeking to dissuade the engineers, firemen and pump hands, who have no grievances or any claims for shorter hours or additional compensation, from discharging their duties. This step has strengthened public sentiment in favor of the mine owners and operators and dissipated whatever sympathy may have been indulged in for the miners.

It is fortunate for the entire business community that the strike has taken place at this time, since it works a minimum of hardship to the consumers of anthracite, and even the miners themselves will suffer less severely than they would if the strike had been ordered in the autumn or winter season. The crucial point in the present campaign will probably be reached when the strikers look to their various organizations for relief. At present they are living upon whatever savings they may have accumulated since the last strike, eighteen months ago, and upon such limited credit as may be extended to those of them who have assets in the shape of real property. Before long the strikers will look to their organizations for disbursements, and, according to the best information obtainable, the resources of those organizations are not large. As soon as the strikers find that they cannot indulge in idleness at the expense of their unions the process of disintegration will begin, and discontent will be followed by the imperative necessity of going to work again. This condition of affairs will probably take place in the next few weeks. In the meantime the leaders in the movement are evidently trying to court public opinion in their favor by making strenuous efforts to restrain their followers from acts of violence, which apparently they are only too ready to commit. The labor situation is aggravated by the outbreak at Chicago, which has been encouraged to an extent by proceedings of the Federal Government against the alleged Beef Trust.

Although the dealings in stocks were a little larger than yesterday, the transactions in only two issues, after reducing those in Reading common to full stock, were in excess of 10,000 shares. These were in Canadian Pacific and in Union Pacific. The first named led the list in respect to activity and sustained a net loss of nearly 2 points, closing at about the lowest price. The indications are that all of the favorable developments and prospects that have been utilized in advancing the price of this stock have been pretty thoroughly discounted in the stock market. The fluctuations in Union Pacific were extremely narrow and the final sale was at figures only a shade below those of yesterday. The speculation in the local traction stocks, which was a feature yesterday, came to a halt to-day. The anthracite coal shares, on very moderate transactions, closed fractionally lower in common with the majority of the list. The few exceptionally strong features were American Smelting common, Detroit United Railways, Missouri, Kansas and Texas issues, St. Louis Southwestern preferred and Southern Railway common. The great majority of the dealings were obviously of a professional character.

For the first time since the present stagnation began there was a falling off in the dealings in bonds. Profit taking in Georgia Central income issues resulted in materially lower prices for them. Consolidated Tobacco 4s,
