LURE OF THE LIZARD.

Many Ships Sight and Pass the Famous Headland Daily.

If the Lizard (Lizard point, Cornwall, England) could see as one-half believes it can from that one piercing eye, Cyclops-like, in its forehead, what sights it could report—Phoenician and Roman galleys; the ships of Hawkins, Drake, Frobisher and Raleigh; the Mayflower after its final release from detention at Southampton, Dartmouth and Plymouth; the broken winged armada and the Titanic on that first voyage, so confidently and cheerfully begun, which, ending in the unforeseen ice, was also its last.

All the ships of the famous lines between American and English and European ports come within a mile or two of it, eastbound and westbound, those of the North German Lloyd, the Atlantic Transport, the White Star and the Red Star, the Canadian branch of the Cunard, the Holland-America, the Hamburg-American and the American, most of them making their passage so punctually that you know to an hour when to look for them.

Just beyond the light is Lloyd's signal station, and close to that a Marconi station, subsidiary to the most powerful of all, that at Poldhu, to the west, where the swish, sparkle and crackle of the four high lilted towers can be heard at a distance of all but a mile.

Man's ingenuity and benevolence have turned the dreaded headland from a menace into a dispensary of safeguards. During fogs two horns, each with a mouth six feet in diameter, blare across the cloaked channel, and a submarine bell at the foot of the cliffs tolls its number within a range of sixteen miles to every listening vessel provided with a receiver. Both light and sound have vagaries in fogs, however. If we can believe the masters of ships which have come to grief on and near the Lizard there are times when the 15,000,000 candlepower of the lighthouse is invisible, and the belching of these enormous trumpets inaudible.—William H. Riding in Scribner's

BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

Eugene, with a population of 15,000 people, had but one arrest for drunkenness during the whole month of November.

The sixth annual exhibition of the Oregon Poultry & Pet Stock association opened in Portland Monday and will continue until Saturday night.

The annual meeting of the Oregon Sportsmen's league, of which practically every rod and gun club in the state is a member, was held Monday in Portland.

Eugene sportsmen have gone on record as favoring the killing of female Chinese pheasants during the month's open season from October 1 to November 1 each year.

In annual convention the Oregon Electrical Contractors' association met in Albany Wednesday. Between 60 and 75 delegates were present from all parts of the state.

A petition for the recall of M. J. Gersoni, prosecuting attorney of Tillamook county, signed by over 800 legal voters, has been filed with Secretary of State Olcott.

Labor Commissioner Hoff says in his biennial report that reports he has received indicate that the production of gold, silver and lead will exceed that of the previous biennium.

The kidnaping charges against W. J. Mitchell, a Portland detective; Joe Coach, John Herron and Bud Noeler, were dismissed at Marshfield on the grounds that the evidence was not convincing.

The Washington county court has prohibited the hauling of heavy loads on rock roads, either by automobile trucks or wagons. The order followed the discovery of damage from heavy traffic on newly-made macadam roads.

Warning has been issued by Secretary of State Olcott that owners of motor vehicles may find themselves without license tags and subject to arrest after December 31, unless they apply immediately for the 1915 license plates.

The state normal school at Month earned during the present biennial period $14,000, according to a report made at a meeting of the board of regents. The school received through tuition $5500 and through dormitory fees $3000.

The progressive party has ceased to exist in Oregon as a result of the vote cast in the election of November 3. The law requires that a party must receive five per cent of the vote cast for candidates for congress in order to retain its identity.

That the tax laws be amended so that 60 per cent of the state tax will be payable on or before April 1 and the remainder payable on or before October 15 is a recommendation in the biennial report to the legislature of State Treasurer Kay.

The Oregon State Horticultural society, at its annual convention at Medford, adopted resolutions favoring uniform legislation by all states west of the Rocky mountains governing spraying, quality of nursery stock and other important fruit topics.

Mrs. Molly Irwin, postmistress at Austin, pleaded guilty before Judge R. S. Bean in the federal court at Portland to a charge of embezzling $1600 of government money, received from the sale of money orders. She was arrested May 12 after an investigation by postoffice authorities.

The Oregon commission of the Panama-Pacific exposition has asked that students of the Oregon Agricultural college be furnished to act as guides for the Oregon building throughout the entire period of the exposition. All expenses, including transportation, will be paid by the commission.

The convention of the State Dairy-men's association, State Holstein club and State Jersey club has been postponed to the first week in February, at which time it will be held in connection with the farmers' week at the Oregon Agricultural college. The Willamette valley branch of the State Press association will hold its convention at the same time.

Although the voters of Klamath county at the November election defeated an initiative measure providing for a special tax levy for advertising Klamath county, the county is to be well represented at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The Klamath chamber of commerce has issued a call for $1500 for the maintenance of the exhibit already secured, and donations are pouring in from all parts of the county.

In his annual address before the Oregon Wool Growers' association, which met in convention at Pendleton, President Robert N. Stanfield said that the European war and the world shortage of wool had advanced prices to an extent that has made the year prosperous. He predicted that next season would bring equally large returns to wool growers. President Stanfield declared that the upkeep of flocks was of more importance to the association than the tariff problem, as the northwest looked to Oregon for the foundation of its flocks because of the purity of Oregon breeds. He urged the maintenance of a well organized association to meet foreign competition.
