PLANS FOR NEW BALL PARK.

TO BE BUILT BY A LOCAL SYNDICATE OF CAPITALISTS.

It Is Situated on Manhattan Island and Is 600 by 400 Feet, With No Intersecting Streets—Seating Accommodations for 18,000 Spectators—Other News.

President Johnson of the American League left for Washington yesterday afternoon to fix up some matters relative to the American League club of that city, but he will return here to-morrow and will probably be able to make public the much-looked-for information in regard to the new grounds here. President Johnson had several conferences with members of the $300,000 syndicate late Friday night, and after going over the situation thoroughly an agreement was practically signed by which the local capitalists will back the new club without assistance from the outside. This syndicate controls the property on Manhattan Island which, according to indications just now, will be turned into a fine ball park before the 1st of April, for as soon as the lease has been signed and the American League has turned over the franchise for New York, work will begin at once with a vengeance. According to the plans that have been discussed, the work will be carried on night and day by a large gang of laborers. As soon as the fences have been put up and the surface of the field has been levelled off, the carpenters will start building the huge stands, which will seat 18,000 spectators.

The location of this property is known to THE SUN, but it cannot be divulged until President Johnson says the word. It may be said, however, that it is on Manhattan Island, and when the subway has been completed it can be reached by express trains from City Hall in 20 minutes. Three surface lines pass the gates, while the elevated road is not far away. The property is 600 feet long by 400 feet wide and no streets have been cut through it, even on the city map. The grand stand, which will seat 7,500 spectators, will face the east, with the bleachers back of third base seating 5,000 and those back of first base accommodating 6,000, extending far into the outfield. It has not yet been decided whether there will be a 25-cent stand or not. On the Polo Grounds this stand, located in left field, will not accommodate more than 1,200 persons. At the last moment the American League may decide to build a 25-cent stand in order to rival the National League in this respect, but the new club will cater to 50-cent patrons and will have room on big days for nearly 10,000 standees.

The grandstand will be a double decker, built of wood and steel, with the uprights so located that they will not interfere with the view of the spectators. The upper tier will be devoted almost entirely to reserved seats and private boxes, as there has been a big demand for such accommodations in all of the American League cities. Under the grandstand there will be several rows of seats behind a wire screen where patrons can be within easy reach of the café. This is an innovation in the East which has grown very popular in several Western cities. The club house for the players will be located in deep centre field. It will be a two-story affair, with baths of various kinds and lockers. It will contain a room which will be devoted exclusively to physical exercise so that the players, on stormy days, will be able to keep lively. A long carriage shed will adjoin the clubhouse, capable of providing shelter for coaches and all sorts of equipages. The offices of the club will be situated in a separate building at the main entrance.

A rough estimate places the cost of the new park at about $60,000. The surface of the field will be large enough for not only a diamond, but also a regulation football gridiron. A running and bicycle track may be built around the edge of the field if there is a demand for it. The new club management intends to make a bid for intercollegiate events of different kinds, including the football games to be played by the leading colleges, including Columbia University. President Johnson says that if the club has plain sailing the grounds can be finished inside of four weeks from the time that ground is broken.

The American League men have been willing all along to bear the entire expense of the new proposition, but the local syndicate will defray all expenses. C. W. Somers of Cleveland, who was instrumental in organizing the American League clubs in Boston and Philadelphia, put up all the necessary funds in those cities and then succeeded in disposing of both clubs to other owners. Mr. Somers has been willing to float the New York club in the same way, but with the present deal effected, his assistance will not be needed.

President B. T. Powers of the Eastern League and William Murray of the Jersey City club saw President Johnson yesterday with regard to the act of Manager Barrow of the Detroit club in taking First Baseman Carr from Jersey City, in violation of the reserve rule. President Johnson said that the American League would respect the reserve rule and that Carr would be returned, thereby setting at rest the absurd story that the Eastern League would declare war on the American League by putting a rival club in Washington.
