SECOND ANNUAL FARM BUREAU MEETING HELD

Geo. A. Mansfield, President of the temporary Oregon State Federation County Farm Bureaus, made the chief address of the day. His topic was the American Farm Bureau Federation. After discussing the economic conditions of the country, and proving to his audience that it is important that the farmers of the United States organize to preserve American Agriculture, he told of the principles upon which the American Farm Bureau Federation is founded. Mr. Mansfield stated that the strength of the Farm Bureau lies in the welding together of communities, counties, and States into one great organization, all of which rests upon the community program. Mr. Mansfield set forth some of the problems which face the farmer today, showing that the marketing problem is at present the most urgent. He told of many interesting experiences of his own in this connection. He emphasized the necessity of counting the cost of production, and urged that the farmer consider not only the value of his own labor, in the summing up of accounts, but also include the value of the work done by his wife and children. He spoke of work of the Boys and Girls in counting the cost, and stated that many an old farmer had been made to realize the value of farm book-keeping, thru the reports given by boys and girls in connection with their club work. He ended with a plea to the farmers to get together and organize in a business-like way, and recommended the Farm Bureau as the best and most promising organization that has ever been brought into existence.

A. A. Gutteridge chairman of the nominating committee made the report of nominations as follows: President, V. V. Hickox, Cairo; Vice President, A. A. Gutteridge,
