The Realty Auction Market.

Last week's auction market was a noteworthy one, both in point of volume and on account of the success that attended the sales. The offerings, thirty-four in number, consisted chiefly of vacant lots, flats and tenements in Harlem and The Bronx. The week's business represented a total investment of $626,175. The Crane estate sale was of course the most important. The property comprised 150 lots, of which forty-three were bid in. The buyers were not of the class that has figured conspicuously in recent Bronx sales, but speculators and operators attracted by low prices and central location of the property. Another big lot sale was that of the Andrew estate, comprising 100 lots in the Fleetwood section of Mount Vernon. These lots brought $42,625, a higher total than was expected. The buyers were mostly Mount Vernon and Bronx investors.

The schedule for the present week contains twenty-eight sales, nine of which are by order of the court. On Tuesday Peter F. Meyer will sell a seven story business building at 284 and 286 Pearl street, a five story building at 163 Bowery and two dwelings and a tenement. George W. Bard has a sale of sixty-one lots in the Wakefield section for the estate of Charles Park. The longest list is down for Wednesday, when fifteen parcels will be offered by Bryan L. Kennelly, Joseph P. Day and Parish, Fisher, Mooney & Co.
