HOT WORDS OVER SUMMONSES

THEY ARE HAWKED ABOUT, SAYS MAGISTRATE BUTTS.

Gives Magistrate House as His Authority for Saying So and House Confirms Him —"It's a Crime," Shouts Magistrate Whitman—Butts May Change His Views.

The Board of City Magistrates individually and as a board at an informal meeting labored for nearly two hours yesterday afternoon with the newest member, Arthur C. Butts, to convince him that he was in error and was doing injustice to the unfortunate by refusing to issue summonses and recognizing their validity in the procedure of the police courts. They labored in vain. In several impassioned specches Magistrate Butts declared that summonses were illegal and that his sworn duty required him to refuse to issue or to recognize them. He finally consented to serve on a committee to report on the matter on next Monday and as he did so made a slight reference to the possibility that he might change his views. That was the only comfort his colleagues got. They were unanimous in their stand against him.

President Whitman read the law on the powers of the Magistrates to make rules and then the rule which recognized the issue of summonses and warrants. He then called for an expression of views around the table. One by one the Magistrates got up and told Magistrate Butts that he was wrong in his views. All the Magistrates were present except Battery Dan Finn and Kernochan. All had the same story, that the summonses were absolutely necessary. Two of them said that they were as valid as subpœnas and then all the others agreed with them.

Magistrate Barlow said summonses were recognized in England, France and Germany, and he had a resolution of which he read the whereases only, setting forth the necessity for their use. He admitted that he agreed with Magistrate Whitman that the Criminal Code did not recognize them specifically. Magistrate Harris said that one-half of the cases that had come before him were on summonses. He said that if warrants had been issued many persons who were discharged would have had to submit to the degradation of a cell. He said that in civil suits no one could get another locked up unless he first gave a bond for $250, and he protested against the use of warrants indiscriminately.

Magistrate Cornell said that in his eleven years experience on the police bench the validity of the summonses had never been questioned before Magistrate Crane said they were of great value to the poor. "How often have we seen persons brought into court in that way make up their differences and go out of court friends?" he said. "These summonses are one of the greatest influences for good in the city."

Magistrates Steinert and Moss then said that they acquiesced in all that had been said Magistrate Wahle said that many of the documents sent out from the very beginnings of courts had no more justification than the present summonses. He went into the common law and into the practices of courts for more than two centuries and said that a search of all the old laws would reveal that subpœnas were not mentioned The custom of sending for defendants was one that the courts of right had always exercised He declared that when the old police justices were legislated out of office it must be assumed that the Legislature knew of the custom to issue summonses, and that when it granted to the Board of Magistrates all the powers of their predecessors it included the right to issue summonses. He cited how they were recognized in other States and said that Massachusetts had even gone so far as to make it punishable by a fine of $25 to disregard one. He said the whole trend of jurisprudence the world over was to avoid unnecessary arrests, and added that if a complainant lied to him he would prefer to have the lie uttered in a request for a summons than for a warrant.

"If we do not issue these summonses," he declared, "our police courts will cease to be a poor man's refuge and will become a means of oppression to the poor man."

Magistrate Breen deprecated locking up "prominent" persons, a speech which aroused bitter words later. Magistrate Walsh then coincided, and Magistrate House came along in support of Magistrate Wahle's legal argument. He said summonses had been abused and so had warrants and that there was an abundance of law for summonses.

"It seems to be admitted by all of you except two," said Magistrate Butts, "that these summonses are invalid and that there is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure for them. It is also agreed that there is no rule of the board on the matter which has the force of law. These courts are established for the administration of criminal justice in this city, not for the exercise of arbitrary power by the Magistrates. Each man must judge for himself according to his sworn oath what to do."

Magistrate Butts then referred to Magistrate Breen's speech about arresting prominent persons. He declared with great vehemence that the courts knew no prominent men, whether they had wealth or social position, and added:

"If you have established in these courts the practice of such recognition I for one dissent. The humblest man should receive as much consideration as any other before the law. You have spoken of the injustice of issuing warrants. I want to ask if you have considered the other side, the injustice of these summonses, when you have brought thousands upon thousands into these courts illegally?"

Then raising his voice Magistrate Butts shouted:

"I know where these summonses have been hawked about the streets for a price!"

A hubbub arose.

"Cite a case!" shouted Magistrate Whitman.

"They must have been signed by a Magistrate," shouted Cornell.

"I have been informed that they have been hawked about for a price," reiterated Butts.

"I think you ought to give your authority. It is your duty," said Whitman.

"I would not like to do it without the consent of my informant. He's a member of this board," said Butts.

"I give consent," shouted the Magistrates in chorus.

Magistrate Butts then turned to Magistrate House and asked him if he had not said the summonses had been sold. Magistrate House said he had.

"Who did it?" said Whitman. "It's a crime. It's a crime. Name the circumstances."

"Any Magistrate who would allow that to be done," shouted Magistrate Wahle, "should be driven from this bench!"

"It's a crime, a crime!" Magistrate Whitman kept shouting. Magistrate Butts said he did not care to go into that matter further and then said that he would not deal with a case where persons were brought into his court by a summons, referring to one of Magistrate Harris's cases which came before him. Magistrate Whitman read the law and said that he must deal with a case that was physically in his presence.

Whitman asked Butts if he would issue a warrant at night for a woman who had neglected to send one of her children to school. Magistrate Butts replied that the administration of criminal law was bound to work pain and hardship.

"Then you'd lock that woman up?" asked Magistrate Whitman.

"Put it that way if you will," said Magistrate Butts. "Then change your law and make these summonses legal."

Magistrate Cornell declared that he would not let pass Magistrate Butts's intimation that special consideration was shown to "prominent people." He declared, in angry tones, that no Magistrate in the courts had ever done such a thing. He said that it was an offensive remark and also disgusting. He declared that the splitting of hairs on the matter at issue was puerile.

Magistrate Butts then disclaimed any idea of being offensive and said that he must act according to his conscience. Magistrate Wahle then made an impassioned speech about the right to use summonses and referred to Magistrate Butts as one who had just come into the board with "pristine views and virgin industry," and declared that he did not propose to play into the hands of the grafters and liars by issuing warrants instead of summonses.

"We have got to deal with human beings in these courts," he said. "We are supposed to have mothers' blood in our veins and not water."

Magistrate Butts then promised full consideration of what had been said and guardedly referred to the possibility that he might change his views. He agreed to serve with Magistrates Steinert, Crane and Walsh on a committee to report on the matter on Monday afternoon.

In speaking of the matter after the meeting, Magistrate Breen said:

"I did not want to hurt Magistrate Butts's feelings, but I was tempted to say that we are all malefactors according to his views, and some of us are comparatively new at it."

When the meeting broke up there was a feeling that in time Magistrate Butts would be brought around. If not, it was said, the board would probably adopt some rule about summonses, and that if he then refused to abide by it a way would be brought about that a judicial ruling would be sought to determine their validity. Nothing was said at the meeting about the other changes that Magistrate Butts has made, such as banishing the clerks and keeping the line of prisoners out of the court room.

TRY TO GET BACK INTO PARK.

Newsdealers Backed Up by Politicians and the Central Federated Union.

Since Park Commissioner Herrman drove the bootblacks and newspaper sellers out of the City Hall Park there has been no end of wire pulling on the part of politicians to get them back again. The newsdealers have been exceptionally active in their efforts to get back the places in the park, from which the city derived no income. They had been allowed to do business there on permits issued by the Park Department. When they had to move off the city's property they found that they would have to take out licenses at $2 a year each, and many of them were also compelled to pay private owners for sidewalk space.

The newsdealers sought the aid of the Central Federated Union, and yesterday a committee from that body consisting of Delegates McStay and Debs called on the Mayor to discuss the matter. The Mayor being busy, Executive Secretary Willis received them. They asked that the newsdealers be allowed to return to their old stands in the park, on the ground that they were not a nuisance but a convenience to the people. Mr. Willis promised to lay the request before the Mayor.

The bootblack chairs and newsstands in the park, which had increased so greatly in number recently, were for the most part bits of Tammany district leader patronage.

After a meeting Tuesday night at which several hundred newsboys were present it was decided to send Sammy Einterz, one of their number, into the park yesterday morning to sell papers without a permit from the Commissioner. The boy was arrested and released at the Tombs in nominal bail while Magistrate Walsh looks up the ordinances.

HUGHES LOOMING

To the Eye of Nicholas M. Butler, Who Is Sure Roosevelt Won't Run.

Before sailing yesterday aboard the White Star liner Adriatic on a four months vacation President Nicholas M. Butler of Columbia talked about Republican Presidential candidates. He said:

"The most likely nominees are Taft, Hughes and Knox. Hughes is gaining strength every day. Great pressure will be brought on Mr. Roosevelt to get him to consent to run for a third term, but he never will accede. The candidate must have the support of the whole party to win, and President Roosevelt will heartily support the man who is nominated."

Charles W. Morse, head of the coastwise steamship combine, who also sailed by the Adriatic, said he was not thinking at present of buying any more lines. He said he had ten steamships building, the first of which would make her maiden trip on July 1 on the Boston-St. John route. By the fall he would have two turbines plying between New York and Boston.

FAST CANADIAN MAILS.

British Government Said to Favor Plan for New Atlantic Service.

OTTAWA, June 19.—A committee of British Government departments is now completing a report on the fast mail proposals submitted to the imperial conference by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is expected that it will be ready for Sir Wilfrid's return to London at the close of next week. A Canadian cable announces to-night that the report will be favorable to the most important aspects of the enterprise.

Sir Wilfrid is now at Geneva. Finance Minister Fielding is at Cannes and Mr. Brodeur is travelling to the Baltic to inspect a Russian icebreaker. All three are to return to London at the end of next week for Dominion Day celebrations, which this year will be on an unusual scale. Lord Strathcona will preside at the banquet in the Hotel Cecil. Sir Wilfrid is expected to make the most important speech of his British visit.

TRANSPORT CAPTAIN FINED.

Alleged to Have Brought In Dutiable Goods for a U. S. Army Officer.

NEWPORT NEWS, June 19.—Capt. Morrow of the United States Transport Kilpatrick, running between this port and Havana, has been sentenced to pay a fine of $720. Capt. Morrow, while technically guilty of smuggling, is not believed to have known that the dutiable goods were on his vessel.

On the trip of the transport previous to its last one a box labelled "used household goods" was broken open. Instead of household goods, dress goods, silks, laces, linens, towels, &c., from which the price tags had not been removed, were found.

These articles had been purchased in London, Paris and other foreign cities. Investigation, it is alleged, disclosed that the goods had been shipped by Major Slocum, U. S. A., from Havana, and on his representation Capt. Morrow had passed them on his vessel.

BOY DIES OF HYDROPHOBIA.

Three-year-old Child Bitten Six Weeks Ago by a Snapping Dog.

Arthur Heinz, 3 years old, died last night at his parents' home on Troutman street, Williamsburg. Two physicians say that he had hydrophobia.

Six weeks ago the boy and other children were playing on the lawn in front of the Heinz place when a yellow dog ran snapping among them. Trying to run away with the rest, Arthur fell and was bitten on the lip. His mother supposed the cut she found resulted from the fall.

A physician sewed it up and nothing happened until last Tuesday, when, Mrs. Heinz says, the child began to cry:

"Take the dog away."

Dr. George H. Leyh of 71 Jefferson street found him in convulsions and injected morphine. Last night Coroner's Physician Charles Wuest examined the body and agreed with Dr. Leyh that it was a case of rabies.

No Back Pay for Dubois.

Mayor McClellan vetoed yesterday the bill authorizing the payment of the claim of George R. Dubois of Brooklyn for services as janitor in the Justices Court in Brooklyn from March 1 to December 31, 1897, and in the Municipal Court in that borough from January 1, 1898, to August 12, 1903. The Mayor says Dubois stuck to his job for six years after his appointment had been declared illegal and took his own risk.

WOMAN NAMES HEAD BANDIT

OFFERS TO ACCUSE SAN FILIPO AS KIDNAPPER IN CHIEF.

After Her Own Trial Is Stopped She Refuses, and on Her Knees Before the Judge Makes Public Outcry That She Knows Nothing and Will Tell Nothing.

The District Attorney's office and the police began a search yesterday for Mimi San Filipo, believed to be the leader of a band of men and women that has made a business of kidnapping Italian children. San Filipo's name came out yesterday when Rosina Martinese was called for trial in General Sessions. The day before, in the same court room, Ignazio di Leonardo, who had been convicted of kidnapping seven-year-old Salvatore Siatta, was twice scared from confessing by the "death sign" given by Pietro Pompinellia, then on trial for the same crime and convicted a few minutes later.

Before the Martinese woman's trial began she sent word to Judge O'Sullivan through her lawyer that she wanted to confess. She said she would tell where San Filipo could be found and how the Siatta boy was kidnapped. District Attorney Jerome was sent for and he consented that the trial be stopped. A juror was withdrawn and it was declared a mistrial.

Then Mrs. Martinese was put on the stand and Assistant District Attorney O'Connor began her examination. The first thing Mr. O'Connor asked her was if she knew San Filipo. She shifted around in the chair for a moment and said:

"I know nothing."

The court room was crowded and there were a number of Italians present. Lieut. Petrosino, the Italian sleuth, and a number of his men were sprinkled through the room looking for any of the suspected Black Hand artists. They also wanted to pick out, if possible, whoever was making the "sign of death." If such a signal was made to Mrs. Martinese no one saw it, but in a second she was on her knees before Judge O'Sullivan making a great fuss.

"I swear by my God in heaven!" she screamed. "I swear on the sacred grave of my mother! I swear I know nothing and will tell no more!"

After a while she became calm, but she wouldn't say another word. Then she was taken back to the Tombs and Mr. Jerome ordered that she be put on trial again this morning.

Assistant District Attorney O'Connor got some information about San Filipo, but not where he could be found. He was anxious to get that information from Martinese or any of the prisoners, as San Filipo is said to have directed the operations of the band. He is the man who told Di Leonardo to kidnap the Siatta boy as he came out of Public School 151 in West 126th street on penalty of being killed like the Italian in the barrel murder.

NEW INSURANCE EXAMINERS.

Supt. Kelsey Appoints Two of the Three Authorized Under the New Rules.

ALBANY, June 19.—Supt. Otto Kelsey of the State Insurance Department to-day announced the appointment of Nelson B. Hadley of Lansing, Mich., as examiner of life insurance companies at a salary of $5,000 a year, and the appointment of Charles Hughes, formerly actuary and chief examiner of the Connecticut State Department of Insurance, as examiner of casualties and miscellaneous insurance companies at an annual salary of $4,500. The men appointed assume positions created for them in a rearrangement of the examining bureau of the State department made by Supt. Kelsey. Formerly the department examiners were all made through a chief examiner. The new system is to have an examiner of life insurance, another of fire insurance and a third of casualty and miscellaneous insurance companies. On the application of Supt. Kelsey the State Civil Service Commission exempted the position from examination because of the high and recognized attainments and qualifications for the duties required of the men to be appointed.

Mr. Hadley is the Deputy Commissioner of Insurance for Michigan and Mr. Hughes has recently been serving as managing director and actuary of the Crown Life Insurance Company of Toronto, Canada.

NEW POLICE CZAR FOR CONEY.

Capt. Pinkerton Loses Command at the Island—Lax About Excise Violations.

Capt. Alexander Pinkerton was removed from command of the Coney Island police station yesterday by Commissioner Bingham and sent to the Fifth avenue station, Brooklyn. He is succeeded by Capt. John Langan, who for several years was in the Detective Bureau.

It was said at Police Headquarters that Pinkerton's transfer was due to frequent visits Deputy Commissioner O'Keeffe made to Coney Island this season. The Deputy Commissioner noted that not a single excise arrest was made last Sunday, although not a few places were violating the law.

Capt. John W. Wormell was transferred from Prospect Park to the Hamburg avenue station, Brooklyn, to fill the gap caused there by the retirement of Adam Cross.

FAREWELL OF THE VAMPS.

Forty-seven Regular Firemen Appointed to Serve in Their Places.

Fire Commissioner Lantry appointed forty-seven new firemen yesterday, the largest batch since he assumed charge of the department. Most of the new men are required to replace the volunteer firemen of Richmond Hill and Jamaica, who are to go out of service on July 5.

These volunteers were to be mustered out on July 1, but they requested the Fire Commissioner to postpone the dismissal until after the Fourth, so that they might have one more fire muster and parade.

WON'T PAY SUSAN DAY PARKER.

She's Enjoined From Enforcing Judgment Which Dr. Parker Really Owes.

Supreme Court Justice Blanchard continued yesterday the temporary injunction obtained on Saturday by Webb & Prall, stockbrokers, restraining Mrs. Susan Day Parker, wife of Dr. Charles Thorndyke Parker, and Eliot Norton, Mrs. Parker's attorney, from entering or enforcing a judgment for $282,595, which Hamilton Odell, as a referee for the Supreme Court, found that Mrs. Parker is entitled to collect from the brokers.

Mrs. Parker carried an account with the brokers in the name of "Susan Day Parker, trust account," and the brokers also had another account on their books called the "Dr. C. T. Parker, special account." Mrs. Parker complained that in September, 1902, they transferred 500 shares of Union Pacific stock from the trust to the special account and then sold the stock for $55,750.

The special account, according to Mrs. Parker, consisted only of moneys and securities belonging to her, quite independent of the trust account, but the brokers, she says, acting without authority, in June, 1903, transferred all these moneys and securities, amounting to $226,664, to another account, called the "Dr. C. T. Parker general account."

On October 15, 1903, she says, the brokers closed out the general account and paid the balance shown by it, amounting to $792.44, to Dr. Parker. The balance showed the items transferred from the other accounts and Mrs. Parker demanded that she have judgment for the full amount of the items transferred. Mr. Odell reported in her favor. Incidentally Mr. Odell found against Dr. Parker on the ground that he alone had benefited by the error of the brokers. Mr. Odell reported that there was no charge or implication of any fraud or wrongdoing on the part of any one connected with the affair.

Martin W. Littleton, for Webb & Prall, told Justice Blanchard that all Mrs. Parker was entitled to enforce against the brokers was the difference of $2,875 between the judgment in her favor and the judgment against Dr. Parker. The brokers stand willing to pay this amount but no more, and have deposited the sum with the City Chamberlain. Mrs. Parker's action in seeking to enforce a judgment for the full amount against the brokers was inspired solely by a spirit of revenge, said Mr. Littleton.

Eliot Norton, opposing the application, said that it should be delayed till the Supreme Court had approved Mr. Odell's findings, but admitted that Mrs. Parker had agreed when the case was referred to Mr. Odell to demand from the brokers only whatever balance there should be in her favor between the judgment against Dr. Parker and that against the brokers. Justice Blanchard remarked that he thought this agreement should be lived up to, but that if Mrs. Parker was dissatisfied with the referee's awards she could apply to the court to have them rejected.

BROOKLYN CIVIC UNION.

New Political Organization to Purify Things Generally Begins Business.

The brand new organization in Brooklyn to bring about purification of the political atmosphere was launched last night at the Assembly in Pierrepont street. The gathering numbered less than a hundred men, and included men who have been identified with the Republican and Democratic parties and most of the outside political bodies.

Among them were Frederic W. Hinrichs, whose changing political career extends back more than twenty years; William Harkness, the ex-School Commissioner who used to be a Republican warrior; J. Warren Greene, long a close political associate of Edward M. Shepard and a leading member of the Brooklyn Democratic Club; Robert Van Iderstein and Frederick Heitmann, president of the German Hospital. Advance reports in reference to the new organization connected Edward M. Shepard and former Borough President J. Edward Swanstrom with the movement, but neither of them was on hand. Early in the day they announced that they were in no way associated with it.

Prof. A. G. Frankenberg of Adelphi Academy was chairman and Louis F. Burghard secretary. The business last night had mainly to do with considering a report of the committee of fifteen, which provided plans for the organization, which is to be known as the Brooklyn Civic Union. A county committee, to be composed of 140 members, is to be formed and the lines on which the regular party organization is governed are generally followed.

The report of the committee of fifteen recommended independent nominations next fall, but strong opposition was made to this proposition by Mr. Harkness and Mr. Tuttle and the report was amended so as to make such nominations discretionary.

Mr. Hinrichs, who said he had grown gray in political work, declared that Brooklyn was ripe for just such a movement and predicted a great future for the Civic Union.

The committee of fifteen recommended that a guarantee fund of a hundred subscriptions of $100 each be raised in preparation for any emergency and the secretary announced that already $1,000 had been promised.

At Mr. Hinrichs's suggestion a collection was made to defray all pending expenses.

Seaside Work for Poor Children.

The Sanitarium for Hebrew Children at Rockaway Park, L. I., was opened for the reception of inmates yesterday and 200 babies and children were taken to the seashore. A few sick infants were placed in the hospital wards, where they will remain and receive medical care until recovery.

Members of the board of trustees of St. John's Guild entertained their friends and members of the guild on the floating hospital Helen C. Juilliard and at the Seaside Hospital at New Dorp, Staten Island, yesterday afternoon. The regular season for patients will begin about July 1.

DENNETT PLEADS GUILTY

Of Receiving the Bonds Stolen by Trust Company Clerk Douglass.

Oliver M. Dennett, the broker who connived with W. O. Douglass, assistant loan clerk of the Trust Company of America, in stealing $850,000 worth of bonds from the company pleaded guilty yesterday in General Sessions to two indictments for receiving stolen goods. There were three indictments for grand larceny in the first degree, but he was allowed to plead to the others because there was some doubt as to whether there was sufficient evidence to connect him with the theft of the bonds. Some of the stolen bonds were found in Dennett's bed at the Manhattan Club. Assistant District Attorney Train told Judge Rosalsky that there was no doubt that Dennett had profited by Douglass's thefts. Douglass pleaded guilty some time ago. Dennett was remanded until next Wednesday for sentence.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Before Grand Jury.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., appeared before the Grand Jury yesterday as a witness against Costa Mears, who was a waiter at Sherry's when Mrs. Vanderbilt lost a jewelled vanity box. Mr. Vanderbilt was not able to identify positively the box found on Mears, but he thought it was his wife's. It is expected that Mears will be indicted to-day.
