FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY, Oct. 21.

Prices of stocks to-day reflected promptly, as they were bound to do, the relative clearing up so least of those unfavorable local conditions which developed with such surprising suddenness in the closing days of last week. The statement of the investigating committee of the Clearing House Association, issued yesterday, that the financial institutions whose standing has recently been called in question were solvent was perhaps characterized by a certain degree of reticence, but it was nevertheless unquestionably reassuring and led from the very outset of trading on the Stock Exchange to-day to the purchase of a very considerable quantity of stocks for the purpose of retiring "short" contracts. During the day there were no further unpleasant developments and a sense of relief over the great change for the better in the situation rapidly gained ground and resulted in a larger and larger buying movement. Certain securities, such as the American Ice Securities stock, and on the curb market the Consolidated Steamship bonds, were, for reasons that needed no explanation, particularly weak. Aside from this, however, the market was universally strong and the upward movement in prices was especially assisted by purchases for London account, which it was estimated reached 50,000 shares. In London, too, as in our own market, a considerable speculative interest for the decline in American stocks has been created, but there was no doubt that much of the buying by London houses to-day represented the execution of investment orders. In the early part of the day the market here, after its initial rise, hesitated more or less, and no little nervousness continued to be exhibited over various aspects of the financial situation, but the urgent desire to buy stocks was renewed later, and it carried prices before the close to net advances in most instances of between two and five points in the active shares, which, although they were not wholly retained up to the close of the day, still gave to the market an atmosphere of strength such as has not been imparted to it for a month past.

Fundamental reasons for the recovery in prices to-day were of various sorts. Whatever may be the aftermath of recent difficulties, the effective job of financial purging that has been successfully completed by the managers of the Clearing House Association is cause for general and deep seated thanksgiving. A danger in the bank situation which if it has been latent has been at all times present in the minds of the city's substantial banking interests has been the "chain of banks" establishment that has grown up here under the control of a certain group of individuals. This has been a system whereby control of one bank was purchased by money borrowed upon the stock of another bank and so on until a number of banks were consolidated under a single ownership by means only of speculative purchase, the sum of money paid for the stock of the original bank being the sole margin. It has not been so easy, however, to find remedies for this state of affairs. As long as no one of these banks was placed in a position where it had to apply to the Clearing House for assistance the Clearing House was forced to keep its hands off, but the day of reckoning, howe er long postponed, at last came and is now apparently passed, with its work fully done with a minimum of discomfort to the financial community. Again to-day the market reflected the presence of a "bear" account in stocks extended to a degree almost as extreme as that of the inflated speculation for the rise two years ago. It should be said, on the other hand, that among conservative people in the financial district and especially among those who are best informed regarding the exact conditions that have been uncovered there is no disposition to encourage any extended buying of stocks for the rise at the present time. There are sequelæ to recent occurrences that remain to be dealt with, and there are plain limits to the extent of Clearing House assistance and forbearance. Although the general bank reserve here, as disclosed in the weekly return last Saturday, stands at a comparatively high figure, there is no doubt that this was a result achieved by main force in view of an emergency and that the showing made is one in every way abnormal. The range of call money rates to-day was a better guide to the true facts of the situation in this regard, while the continuing large shipments of money from Chicago to the interior of the country attest that the climax of the demand for funds to move the crops has not yet been reached. A reassuring incident of the day was the decline of nearly half a cent in the pound in the price of sterling exchange, which removes all possibility of gold exports in the near future. Saturday's export of $1,500,000 was, as is well known, conducted at a decided loss and solely represented the pressure of German needs for money in an especial instance.
