"WHITE SLAVE" CONFERENCE

WOMEN HEAR FROM PROF. JENKS AND J. B. REYNOLDS.

One Problem, Says Mr. Jenks, Is What to Do With Those Who Escape From the Life—Mistake, the Speakers Say, to Grow Hysterical—Much to Be Done.

More than a hundred women, among whom were Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, Mrs. Dunlap Hopkins, Mrs. Gilbert Jones, Mrs. Anna Garland Spencer, Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Mrs. J. Kennedy Tod, Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, Mrs. Mary Goldsborough and Dr. Rosalie Morton attended the conference yesterday afternoon at the Women's Municipal League, 19 Madison Square North, for the purpose of formulating plans to aid in the stamping out of the white slave trade.

Jeremiah Jenks described in some detail the efforts made by the Bureau of Immigration to prevent the international traffic, and James B. Reynolds explained the provisions of the bills now pending in Congress which deal with the local and interstate phases of the subject as well as with those connected with aliens.

Mr. Jenks said that there were many difficulties in the way of the immigration officers who tried to prevent women and girls brought over from foreign countries for immoral purposes from entering the port.

"Many of them come over with other women, who have promised to get them work at higher wages than they can obtain in the old country," he said, "and some are brought over by men who have pretended to marry them and who when they get them here send them out upon the street and then live upon their earnings. You may perhaps wonder why these girls do not leave their masters, but have you ever considered what they could do? These men tell them that if they attempt to get work anywhere they will tell what kind of a life they have been living and the girls are frightened and do not go.

"Would any of you ladies take one of these girls into your houses if you knew that she had been living that sort of life?" he suddenly demanded.

No one replied to his question, and he added: "Of course you wouldn't, and I don't say that you should, but the problem as to what these girls are to do if they try to free themselves is still unsolved.

"We must keep our heads," he continued, "and not do anything until we are sure it is the right thing. The social evil is as old as humanity, but there is no doubt that much can be done toward stamping out the white slave trade. When laws are proposed—national, State or municipal—much can be done by the mere pressure of public opinion, and much can also be done by giving the Police Department the backing of the citizens. It is our duty to support any sincere efforts that are being made in the right direction, even if the methods are not precisely those which we would choose ourselves."

Mrs. Edward Hewitt, who presided, remarked that whenever we got excited about anything in this country we immediately passed laws about it and let it rest there, but that she thought in this instance some additional legislation was needed.

After Mr. Reynolds had outlined the provisions of the bills now before Congress, Mrs. Wentz wanted to know why matrons were no longer sent down the bay to meet the incoming steamers and examine the women passengers.

"Why, I don't know exactly," replied Mr. Jenks, "but I think it was because the Commissioner decided that they didn't really accomplish anything."

"But the women of New York were behind that idea of the matrons," persisted Mrs. Wentz, "and I think it might have had a little longer trial."

"An idea struck me the other day," announced Mrs. Tod. "Have you ever noticed that cabs often go through the streets with drawn blinds? It is very possible that girls are being taken away in these cabs against their will and it seems to me that a law ought to be passed prohibiting the absolute closing of cabs in this way. Couldn't it be done?

Mrs. Hewitt frowned. Mr. Reynolds examined the bills which he held, and Mr. Jenks smiled slightly as he answered, "I am afraid not. You see a person might desire to have the blinds of a cab drawn because he was ill or for some other perfectly proper reason, and I am afraid that it would not be possible to pass a law interfering so much with personal liberty.

"There has been a great deal of talk here this afternoon about keeping immoral women out of the country," said Mrs. Frederick Nathan. "Does the commission suggest that immoral men should also be kept out? Furthermore I should suggest that women be required to show their marriage certificates before they are allowed to enter the country or if they are not married to show a certificate of good character from some one who knows them and who is a responsible person."

"The penalties for men who are connected with the phases of the evil we have been talking about are much severer than those for women," replied Dr. Jenks. "As for the question of marriage certificates, I am afraid it would be impractical for us to demand them. There are probably many women here who couldn't produce their marriage certificates at a moment's notice."

After a lengthy discussion as to whether or not a call should be issued to the women's clubs to send delegates to another conference and whether men should be invited it was decided that the matter should be left to the discretion of Mrs. Hewitt.

GRAND DUKE MICHAEL DEAD.

Brother of the Czar's Grandfather Had Much Sympathy With the People.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

CANNES, Dec. 18.—The Grand Duke Michael, granduncle of the Czar, died suddenly from paralysis of the heart this evening.

The Grand Duke Michael Nicolaievitch was born at St. Petersburg on October 13, 1832. He was the son of Nicholas I., grandfather of the present Czar, and brother of Alexander II. Michael married at St. Petersburg in 1857 Olga Feodorovna, the Princess Cécile of Baden, who was born in 1839 and who died in 1891. They had six children.

He was president of the Council of the Empire and in spite of his advanced age he made a point of being present at all the meetings of the Council. At one of these meetings when Alexander Narishkin, one of the principal dignitaries of the court, put forward the plea that the aristocracy was "entitled to special prerogatives and privileges" the Grand Duke Michael angrily interrupted him and said:

"If I had been in the place of Alexander Alexandrovitch I would not have ventured to speak of the services of the nobility to the empire. Where are the services? The nobles have bled the peasantry to the very marrow without giving them anything whatsoever in return, not even the slightest attempt to improve their condition or their education. It is perfect nonsense to talk of the services of the nobles to the empire."

Wants $50,000 for the Death of Her Husband.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 18.—An action for $50,000 has been begun by Mrs. Dora Miller of Warwick, Orange county, against the Pennsylvania and Lehigh and Hudson railroads for the death of her husband, Harry B. Miller. The latter was a trainman in the employ of the Lehigh and Hudson Railroad. It is claimed that the telltales which notify trainmen of the proximity of a bridge were defective.

THREE FATAL RUNAWAYS.

Well Known Men of Westchester, Richmond and Suffolk Die of Their Injuries.

WHITE PLAINS, Dec. 18.—Arthur G. Holland, a former Alderman of White Plains, whose skull was fractured when his horse ran away yesterday afternoon, died to-day without having regained consciousness.

Mr. Holland would not use automobiles. When asked why he did not buy one he said he could not afford to risk his life, as he had too many business matters on his shoulders. "Give me a trotter every time," said he, "and I will have no fear." He had several fast horses and took great pleasure in riding and driving.

Mr. Holland was a Mason, an Elk, a member of the Republican Club of New York city and of several clubs in White Plains. He was 42 years old. He is survived by his wife.

BAY SHORE, L. I., Dec. 18.—Caleb T. Smith, well known throughout Suffolk county, a real estate and insurance broker with offices at Islip, was killed here to-day by being thrown from his carriage in a runaway. He was 51 years old and was not married. He is survived by his aged mother, Mrs. Aaron Smith, and two sisters, Mrs. N. O. Clock of Islip and Mrs. C. P. Pipinbrink of Albany.

Marcell Kahle, president of George Borgfeldt & Co. of this city, who was injured in a runaway accident while driving near the St. George Ferry, Staten Island, on Friday, died yesterday in the S. R. Smith Infirmary Hospital. Mr. Kahle was born in Germany in 1858 and he came to this country in 1873. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Deutscher Verein, the Richmond County Country Club, the Staten Island Club and the Aldine Association. He is survived by his wife and seven children.

GAUDICHAUD IN RESTRAINT.

Last of a Once Wealthy Brooklyn Family Under Observation as to His Sanity.

William Gaudichaud, 45 years old, the only survivor of a well known and wealthy family in Brooklyn, has been forcibly removed from his solitary home at 842 De Kalb avenue to the observation ward of the Kings County Hospital.

His aged mother, with whom he had lived in the house for two years, was buried last Sunday, but he did not go to the burial. On the departure of the hearse he locked himself up in the house, drawing down the curtains, fastening the shutters and bolting the doors. He declined to admit any of the neighbors, and one of them notified the police. On Friday an entrance was forced. There seemed to be no qustion of the man's insanity and he was taken to the hospital. There was not a spark of fire in the rubbish filled house and a few raw potatoes and some flour were the only articles of food to be found.

The Gaudichaud family once owned much property about what is now Bergen Beach.

A STRAIGHT TIP TO CONFESS

AND NOT SUFFER FOR "HIGHER UP" SUGAR MEN.

Convicted Checkers Have From Now to Jan. 8 to Think About It—Spitzer's Bail Doubled, but the Rest Still at Liberty on the Bail They First Gave.

Sentence on Oliver Spitzer and the checkers Coyle, Boyle, Kehoe and Hennessey, who are under conviction for sugar frauds in the United States Circuit Court, will not be passed until after January 8, on which date Judge Martin will hear arguments on the motion of counsel for a new trial for the convicted men. Henry L. Stimson, the Government prosecutor, agreed to the enlargement of the defendants in the interval on the bail which they originally gave except in the case of Spitzer, whose bail bond was raised from $5,000 to $10,000. The bonds are returnable on January 8.

The men convicted got a strong tip yesterday that if they have been shielding their employers they have not much time left in which to help themselves by telling who prompted the underweighing frauds. Judge Martin said yesterday from the bench:

The Court in pronouncing sentence will try to give due consideration to the recommendation of the jury to mercy. Men who are led to do wrong by the influence of stronger minds which control them are entitled to the benefit of mercy. The Court is bound to say, however, that the conduct of some of these defendants since the action which the jury has found to have been a conspiracy is more questionable even than their conduct in the commission of the acts passed upon by the jury, for if men are moved by minds stronger than their own to commit offences they should not afterward when brought before the Court attempt to shield those who are primarily responsible.

A COUNT IN JAIL.

As Plain A. E. Goreff He Is Accused of Forging a Gilsey Guest's Name.

Adolph E. Goreff, who says that he is 58 years old, a Russian riding master, and that he lives at the Gilsey House, and who is known sometimes as "count" and as "colonel," was arrested yesterday on charges of forgery and larceny. The complainant against him is Lorimer A. Cushman of the L. A. Cushman Baking Company, 615 Columbus avenue, who charges Goreff with forging the name of J. B. Sperry, a guest of the Gilsey House, to a check for $80 on December 24, 1908.

The check was drawn on the Corn Exchange Bank and was cashed by Cushman.

Headquarters Detectives Conroy and McIlhargy, who made the arrest, say that Goreff has been in Boston since the transaction and only recently returned to New York. They say he has professed to be a Russian count with the prospect of large inheritance and that he was at one time Colonel of a Russian regiment. The detectives say also that he has represented himself as having been the attorney of Baron Rosen in certain matters. He used to work, they say, at the Knickerbocker stables, 230 West Fifty-fourth street.

The police say Goreff is wanted for passing a check for about $27 on Abraham Levine, a newsdealer in Columbus avenue, near Ninety-first street, another on a grocer in Eighty-second street near Amsterdam avenue for some $20 and a third on a barber in the Hotel Astor for $40.

MORE PAY FOR ENGINEERS.

Lehigh Valley System Said to Be About to Increase Wages.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 18.—It was said here to-day from sources believed to be official that the engineers of the Lehigh Valley Railroad will receive a substantial increase in wages and will work under better conditions.

The board of adjustment representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has been having a conference with J. F. McGuire, general manager of the Lehigh. Although nothing official is known here yet it is known that Mr. McGuire has consented to many of the requests of the engineers. It is understood that in the future ten hours is to be considered a day's work and overtime is to begin after that number of hours of service.

It is further understood that the engineers are to receive a substantial increase in wages, bringing the Lehigh Valley almost up to the plane of such roads as the Lackawanna, which pays the highest rates to engineers. It is understood that it will mean about $10 a month increase to engineers on the through passenger trains and will mean more to men employed in freight service.

CHICAGO M. D. WINS OUT.

Berlin Court Dismisses Charges Against American Practitioner.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—The case of Dr. Harold More, alias Rosenthal, was decided during the week in a manner which will not improve the estimation in which American medical degrees are held in Germany, where already they are hardly taken seriously. More was charged with breaking the German law against unfair competition by posing as an American physician although he was not entitled to do so, and also with breaking another law against using a title without the written consent of the German authorities.

More produced a large illuminated parchment with a gorgeous gold seal signed by the entire faculty of the "Independent Medical College of Chicago." It was alleged in court that this college was founded some years ago by two men who obtained a State charter, which was afterward annulled by the Illinois courts on the discovery that the purpose of the institution was not instruction in medicine but the sale of degrees.

More, it was alleged then went to Texas, where he registered for practice on the strength of the degree. The German Judges decided that he was entitled to call himself a doctor and was not guilty of unfair competition.

CLEVELAND'S STREET CAR WAR

END OF EIGHT YEARS' STRIFE OVER RATE OF FARE.

Judge R. W. Tayler of Federal Court, Arbitrator, Decides for Three Cent Fare With the Possibility of a Four Cent Fare if It Becomes Necessary.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 18.—The end of the eight years traction war in Cleveland came to-day by the arbitration decision of Federal Judge R. W. Tayler, to whom the city and company referred the questions of valuation, rate of fare and liability for stock guarantees of Mayor Tom L. Johnson through the Municipal Traction Company. The City Council to-night is balloting on the passage of an ordinance incorporating the features outlined.

Judge Tayler late this afternoon announced that he had fixed the value of the Cleveland Railway property and franchises at $21,127,149.56. To this he added $1,805,600 as the value of the Forest City Railway Company's property and grants, combined with the Cleveland Railway, and on the total of $22,932,749.53 the proposed grant is to permit the earning of 6 per cent.

Judge Taylor recommends the charging of 3 cents fare with a cent charge for transfers until such time as it may be shown this rate cannot earn the 6 per cent. the company is entitled to earn. After that period the maximum fare which may be charged is to be four cents cash fare with a cent transfer charge and the sale of seven tickets for 25 cents.

The total of valuation of the Cleveland Railway's property and franchises is put by Judge Tayler at more than a million dollars less than the valuation agreed on by the city, and F. A. Goff, as mediator for the traction company, in negotiations which preceded the awarding of a grant to the Cleveland Railway under the condition that it lease operation to the Municipal Traction Company on a quarterly rental basis.

This franchise was defeated by the voters in a referendum following the costly attempt of the Municipal Company to operate a three cent fare while its men were on strike. The rejection of the franchise reopened the traction battle, with complications brought about by the sale of Cleveland Railway stock through the Municipal, and under a guarantee by the Municipal of its redemption with interest. Judge Taylor holds the stock in the hands of the original guaranteed purchasers must be redeemed, fixing the interest which shall be paid.

Reference of the two disputed questions of valuation, the basis of the proposed grant, as it determines the rate of fare and of liability for the guaranteed stock, was made by the city and the company when the Council had reached a deadlock in its negotiation of a new grant. The Council pledged itself to pass whatever grant Judge Taylor recommended.

The Council kept its pledge, passing the franchise by unanimous vote after listening to its reading. Petitions for referendum will be circulated before to-morrow night. Burr Gongwer, Mayor Johnson's secretary, announced after the Council meeting a favorable vote of the people is required to legalize the franchise.

MILLION BARRELS LESS BEER

Drunk in Two Years in This Country—Less in Wet States as Well as Dry.

The United Brewers Association has issued a statement containing a comparison by States of the beer sales for the last two years which shows that the decrease in sales in local option States for the last year varies from 2.29 per cent. in Connecticut to 7.79 per cent. in Ohio, and that it is indicated by the decreases in wet States that more than half the decrease was caused by industrial conditions. The association estimates that the loss from both State and local prohibition was not more than 1,000,000 barrels. Citizens of Florida, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Carolina and Texas drank more beer in 1909 than in the previous year, while all the other States consumed less. The Hawaiians, however, got away with 1,376 more barrels this year than in 1908.
