The report was greeted with applause and promptly adopted as presented.

The following was afterwards adopted as an additional resolution, on motion of Jero Gehon:

Resolved, that we, the delegates of the Independent convention, do hereby pledge ourselves to vote and work for the nominees of this convention.

After this the placing in nomination of a full county ticket was then begun, with the result given at the heading of this article.

The convention was harmonious throughout, and the best of feeling predominated among the delegates:

No nominations were made for county judge, surveyor and coroner.

BELOIT BUBBLES.

School commenced last Monday. Several of our boys attended the circus at Canton, last Saturday.

Lightning, last Friday, struck the barn of Mr. J. J. Craft. The barn caught fire and was burned, also several other out-buildings. Mr. Craft managed, through hard labor, to save his horses and cattle. Barn was full covered with insurance.

Prof. Chas. Lingo, of Norwich, Iowa, arrived last Thursday, to take charge of our public school for the ensuing year.

Mrs. James Jones, of Larchwood, is visiting friends and relatives this week.

Wm. Donohoe did business at Hull, Monday.

The people are wondering why Duncan never comes up town now-a-days. It is all on account of "that baby of mine." It is a boy, 16 ounces to the pound, and ten full pounds.

Al. Payne is doing up Inwood this week.

A good many hogs are being marketed here at present.

Messrs. Lowell, Herman, Bremer, Helder and Kornder were called to Orange City last week, as witnesses on the Boesen murder case.

Mr. N. Noble and Father Butler of Canton, held services in the M. E. church last Sunday.

Hon. Fred Keep came down from Huron, Saturday, to spend Sunday with his family.

The first car of grass fatted cattle was shipped from here last Saturday, to Chicago, by D. J. Carpenter.

Miss Anna Keep, who has been visiting relatives the past few weeks, returned to her home in Beloit, Wis. last Monday.

Rob Dixon was here last Friday, purchasing rye and potatoes for the Crow Creek agency.

DELAWARE DOINGS.

The lumber has arrived for the bridge across the raging Saddle creek near Jerry Hillions, when this is done it will be the sixth and last bridge to be built over that stream in the township. Thanks be to the taxpayers.

G. M. Burney will soon commence the building of a grainery 18x24, 10 feet high. G. Gerber of Worthing furnishes the lumber.

Peter Dray is having a well drilled and at last accounts they were bumping away on the wall of China, but he is bound to have water if he has to go clear through.

William Huffsmith is threshing again and is happy, judging from the sound of his whistle.

A. B. McFarland, when last heard from, was sick in bed but we hope he is better now. What was the matter Mc was it too much mellow, or too much work or too much Gifford delegation, that troubles you?

The rattle of the festive mower is almost a thing of the past and now 'tis the hum of the greedy thresher, and soon it will be the peculiar thump of the merry corn husker from out the leafy cornfields, and then a few snow storms and a few days of rest and then, hurrah boys! and at it again. We are going to adopt Benjamin's plan of farming next year and get there sure, and then you will see a sign on every gate post which will read thusly: "Money to loan at reasonable rates of interest." But alas! there will be none to borrow. Oh Benjamin! where did you get on to this new way of farming? Did Nash tell you how, or did you stumble on to it while you were traveling over the country or writing up his wonderful prosperity. Now, are you really sure that it will work? For it is evident that you have never tried it and the proof of a puddin' is in the eatin' you know. There I came very near getting poetical, but Mr. B got ahead of me, but no matter, every man can't be a poet, no more'n a sheep can be a goat.

MR. JOHN IMLEY, Beresford, S. D.

My Dear Sir:—Noticing your article in the Sioux Valley News of Sept. 9, 1890, in regard to the independents and the open and broad challenge the same contains, I would respectfully request your presence at the Lincoln Center school house, in Lincoln township, Lincoln county on the evening of Sept. 13, at eight o'clock at which time and place you will have ample opportunity to convince the people of this vicinity that they should cling to the old parties. Assuring you that every effort will be made to procure a large attendance and make it exceedingly interesting.

I am, respectfully yours,

HENRY BRADSHAW.

countries. Reader, laying aside all party bias, are you not a little startled that the fact becomes so plain, that instead of its being English free trade, it is American protection that has reduced wages in both countries? Are you not just a little surprised that you have wasted so many years under the influence of a great delusion.

The whole theory, at its very best, that American protection promotes the wages of American laborers, is based on the doctrine, that it is perfectly right to rob the poor toiling Peters of Europe to pay the laboring Pauls of America. This is a pretty doctrine, for a Christian nation that profess that we should do unto others as others do unto us. In view of this fact that nearly all the duties on foreign goods are deducted from the wages of foreign laborers, this is the light in which the theory of protecting American labor by tariffs must appear. But how much worse the practical reality, where, as shown, the money robbed from the laborers goes right into the pockets of rich manufacturers, where it is never seen again until it turns up in the form of a mortgage on some laborer's little home, or some farm out west. What do you think of protection that don't protect, laborers of America? A FORRESTER, Sr.

A TALK TO INNOCENT AT HOME.

BY ASA FORRESTER, Sr.
 My Innocent at home: You was abroad the other day, you remember, and asking information I suppose, why combinations of capitalist to control the prices of productions, were called "Trusts?" Now, innocent if you are so child-like in ignorance, allow me to post you on the true etymology of this recent, popular importation. They are called "Trusts" (at first, probably, by some man with a genius for naming things) because the men who thus combined in schemes to rob the people, have such perfect trust, that this great "government of the people and for the people," will allow them the fullest liberty to do so; because they have such unbounded trust, that the amiable and amiable people who are their victims, will continue to send men to congress and state legislatures who will provide with every desired legal facility to carry out their purpose; because they have such a peaceful trust in the cringing attitude of the plundered poor and that they will continue, until the day of doom, the idiotic expedient of electing their enemies, the cheaply bought hirelings of social buccaniers, to congress and legislatures, and their getting down on marrow bones and praying to, and petitioning such "honorable bodies" for friendly legislation. You will observe, if you have an instinct of observation equal to an oyster, which I doubt, that the business is one of unwavering confidence and trust. Nothing can be less alloyed with doubts than the simple faith and trust of these combinations, that the great statesmen of "county towns," will continue to hold, that trusts are only private affairs with which government cannot interfere, but combinations by the robbed and plundered people to boycott these pirates, are conspiracies, treasonable, anarchic and dangerous, and at such times the courts will bristle all over with newly deserved points of legal justice.

My unsophisticated innocent, do you know that the writer nourishes an unflattering trust of his own, viz., that unless "heart failure" or the fool-killer cuts you off early, you will go right along as in the past, voting and shouting, until the north winds rot your teeth, just as the tools of trusts shall dictate, accumulating only a store of denser ignorance as you again and again insult a freeman's ballot? From my knowledge of your past conduct, innocent, I have no other trust.

As much as such a thing might be wished for, innocent, you are not an isolated idiot. Your political equivalents are legion. Our body politic is deformed by the scars, while your prototypes have clustered like magots, and dying off, have left the discolored cockatrice as evidence of their visitation. The writer is after you and your crowd, innocent, and when he has raised your hair, he will not hesitate to sift pepper and salt on the smarting wounds. If you are near-sighted, and fail to recognize your photo in the above, and hence delude yourself with the idea that it is some other fellow that I am after, let me explain that the living damned fool I am reaching for may be either a laborer, mechanic or farmer, but he is one who has totted all his life for a living, and paid 40 per cent of all his earnings and productions to enrich trusts and feed a swarm of social bandits, and yet goes, regularly, to the polls, year after year, and votes only for those, or the pliant tools of those, whose only interest is to reduce him to a more degraded dependence, and does his level best, so far as political policies can affect the welfare of American industry, to drag to ruin, with himself, all whom fortune or inclination has placed in the ranks of labor. This is the chap whose necessary tracks I am following, and whose scalp I am after.

Innocent, I belong to the ranks of labor (whether from fortune or inclination, cuts no figure) and have endeavored to learn, in politics, what policies of government were most to the interest and welfare of the class to which I belong, while you have spent your time doing the bidding and dirty work of any cheap, gimlet-pointed politician who would compliment your worth and intelligence (too high a compliment, by the way) by the occasional proffer of a five cent, "stinker" or a sociable allusion to the beauties of your ill-favored canine. You and your class are a load that intelligent labor cannot carry on its shoulders longer, and as you cannot be enlightened, you must be scalped. I used to think that your class, or clan, might be educated into an instinct of self-preservation, equal, at least, to a sightless angleworm; but after thirty years wasted in such a humane effort, I am utterly discouraged. I have no more use for such as you, only as a subject of prayer, that the club of the fool-killer may fall, with a "sickening thud" on your calabash. There have been too many extra hardships piled upon the shoulders of industry by the ignorant use of the right to vote, on the part of your clan, to merit my respect or humane treatment at the the point of my sabre, No. 2. I will see you some more, later on.
