FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY, April 11.

Undoubtedly the rank and file of speculative traders in Wall Street regarded the announcement that the Supreme Court had ordered a rehearing in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco cases as one bringing a certain fashion of relief to a more or less strained situation. It may of course be pointed out that a logical inference from to-day's action by the Supreme Court is that at least many members of the court are endeavoring to uphold the Government side of the present controversy over the anti-trust law, and it is still as true as ever that sooner or later a decision on the subject by the court must be made. It is also evident that pending this decision large business plans must still be in a species of suspense and overhung by contingencies that in no way can be described as pleasing. The Wall Street point of view, however, is in such matters that anything that has held over for an indefinite length of time and which cannot transform itself into an actuality within six months at the earliest becomes a somewhat vague influence in a stock market way and is as a rule forgotten for the time being. Therefore inasmuch as speculative pessimism has lately been widespread in the financial district and commitments for the decline correspondingly large, the news of the passing, so far as the immediate future is concerned, of the Standard Oil and American Tobacco decisions as stock market factors, the natural and inevitable tendency was for speculators for the fall to recover the stocks that they had sold. Previous to the announcement in the Supreme Court, which came shortly after midday, the stock market was firm, even if dull, many professional operators again following the course that they have usually pursued on Mondays for some time past of closing out their ventures one way or the other until the character of the day's news from Washington could be known. When the action of the court was known the market was for a time exceedingly confused, rallying at first very vigorously, then falling again and holding for a time steadily at the lower range. But in due course optimistic construction of the kind that has been described of the day's news from Washington began to exert its force and the market again rose sharply during the remaining hours of business. It closed in nearly all instances at the highest level of the day and at advances running between two and four points in the leading stocks.

There was the usual difference of opinion prevailing to-day as to whether the rise in the market represented a better class of buying than has lately been seen or whether it was once more only a covering of shorts for the fall. It is certainly open to a good deal of debate whether much breadth and substance for a sustained rise in security prices is afforded by the mere fact that the pronouncement by the Supreme Court in the important matter lately under consideration has been delayed until some time in the latter part of the present year. However this may be determined, a real influence affecting the course of prices for a long time hereafter will probably be matters of intrinsic financial and business interest other than those of legal controversies, such as news from the crops, rates for the use of money and the natural ebb and flow of foreign and domestic trade relations. It is therefore of especial interest to note that commodity prices to-day were all distinctly heavy on account of much more favorable weather and crop news over Sunday. Sterling exchange weakened a little and the situation in this regard became otherwise so altered as to induce an idea that gold shipments by next Wednesday's steamer might not be as large as were anticipated last week. The Bank of England is obviously increasing its gold reserve somewhat, although it only was able to purchase a little more than half of the £750,000 of South African gold offered for sale to-day in the open London market. Bankers here said that at the price now offering by the Bank of England for American gold metal remittances from this side were no longer profitable. In the main, however, the opinion is still expressed among bankers that gold shipments from this side in ensuing weeks will be considerable. A statement was denied that in addition to the $2,500,000 engaged for shipment on Wednesday a further engagement of $1,500,000 had been made. Such additional engagement is, however, believed to be pending. The Government's report of the country's exports of agricultural products in March was issued to-day and was notable in this, that there was an increase in the value of cotton exports during the month amounting to $5,711,000. On the other hand the total volume of the exports was $2,000,000 less than in March last year and wheat exports were the smallest in eleven months. Regarding the entire matter of our foreign trade, however, it was some time ago made plain that interest in it chiefly centres upon the volume of our imports rather than that of our exports. Our exports, although somewhat less than they have been in previous years, are still not greatly below these totals. The main trouble with them has been that they have not enlarged in such proportion to the increasing volume of goods and merchandise brought into the country as to maintain our old fashioned trade balance intact.

THE CURB MARKET.

Curb prices followed the course of values on the Stock Exchange yesterday and rallied briskly on the Washington announcement. The trading was fairly active. American Tobacco rose 30 points to 400 on moderate transactions and Standard Oil advanced about 10 points. The market for the copper shares was better than for some time past and substantial gains were made from the low levels of the first hour. Butte Coalition, Nevada Consolidated, Miami, Ray Consolidated and Giroux led the advance. Goldfield Consolidated at first exhibited a continuation of Saturday's weakness and sold down to 7½, but afterward recovered a fraction.

Transactions in detail in the market yesterday were as follows:
