CREE'S BATTING CINCHES IT

SOX OUTHIT HIGHLANDERS, BUT THE LATTER WIN.

All Four of Their Runs Driven in by Left Fielder's Cannonading — Athletics, Bostons and Detroits Other Victors in the American League—Results.

The Highlanders won a game from the White Sox yesterday in which a few hits at the right time and of the right length more than offset a goodly number of hits. The victory brought New York's number of straight wins up to nine. No Western team except Detroit has been able to down them. The Athletics put the tailenders away, and the Clevelands, who are making a poor trip record indeed, faded away before the Bostons. The Detroits won in Washington. The first sectional series closes to-day. The results:

New York, 4; Chicago, 3.

Philadelphia, 6; St. Louis, 3.

Boston, 7; Cleveland, 3.

Detroit, 5; Washington, 1.

NEW YORK (A. L.), 4; CHICAGO (A. L.), 3.

Several men of the hour were produced by yesterday's ball game between the Highlanders and White Sox, a rip snorting clash of the gripping kind and won by the New Yorks, although they were outbatted more than two to one. New York's six hits did more for their makers than Chicago's thirteen for the Sox, because one of the men of the hour, Prof. Cree, forester and geologist, did some useful and heavy cannonading. The erudite outfielder lacerated right field with a home run and a three bagger and batted in all four of the home team's runs.

Old Cap Chase was another who was around and about with an occasional heroic feat. Chase made a fielding play the like of which comes once in a long while, a truly wonderful stop of a jumping ground hit, and by so doing shut off a Chicago run. As the White Sox made only one run less than the New Yorks the value of Chase's amazing stop is apparent. Then there was a throw apiece by Criger and Sweeney which caught runners nodding at second and broke up Chicago rallies. Those throws hadn't the glamour of the Chase and Cree performances, but they were invaluable in saving the game.

While the New Yorks made their runs by simple, straightforward slamming, the White Sox hit Quinn a good deal harder than Scott was hit and it took keen work to keep them from scoring oftener. In this quality of keenness, guarding closely against every avenue through which a hostile run might come, they played baseball of the most effective type, high class baseball which allowed them to quite outmanœuvre the Chicagos. The latter's game was excellent mechanically, including clever playing at short by Blackburne, but it lacked the fine touches and aptitude of New York's defence.

A double play quieted the Sox in the second inning after Dougherty had led off with a hit. In the third inning the visitors reeled off five hits, four in succession, but made only two runs. The first four men up hit safely too. Blackburne singled as a starter, Block dumped a safe fly in right and Scott jammed a hit along the right foul line and brought Blackburne home. Two on bases and nobody out was the way it stood when Criger, seeing that Block had a long lead off second, whipped the ball to Roach and Block was collared between ports. French singled, Gandil hit feebly to Chase and Zeider barked Quinn's shins with a smoking rap which brought Scott in. Dougherty flied to Hemphill.

Cole, the first man up in the third inning, hit to the fence for three bases. Quinn shut down on the next two hitters, Cole being held at third while Purtell and Blackburne died on infield outs. Block made a more pronounced effort. He drove a grounder between Chase and Laporte. It was a hit by rights, but Chase has ideas of his own on such things. The latter made a run for the ball and crossed its line of flight at an acute angle. He turned and faced the way the ball was going and brought his bare hand around like a hook. With the hand pendant from the wrist he pinioned the ball. Next he checked his momentum, pivoted and threw straight to Quinn, who covered the bag in good style. Quinn, incidentally, is no slouch as a fielding pitcher. The rooters arose and whooped it up for Chase.

There were two out in the second half of the fourth when Laporte let fly with the first of two long hits that put the New Yorks in the game. It was a lawn mower to right for three bases that Laporte unfurled. Roach was passed and stole second. Cree brought his college education into play for a home run and cleared the bases. The ball struck safely, bounded over French's head and went to the boundary. Cree surely did make tracks, and he reached the plate long ahead of the ball and to the music of a cresendo uproar from the hilarious stands.

French tried to stretch a single in the fifth and was thrown out by Cree. With a man on first in the sixth and none out Cree dropped Dougherty's fly, but his throw to Laporte forced the man on first. There was some luck in that play. A pretty pickup by Chase of a low throw from Roach ended the inning. The Sox rocked Quinn for three hits in the seventh and tied the score. Blackburne singled to short and made the round on an out and a hit by Scott. French lined a safety to Austin, but was doubled with Gandil on the hitter's grounder to Roach.

The Highlanders couldn't touch Scott in the fifth and sixth, but in the seventh Cree again took a firm stand and asserted himself. He laced a three bagger over the French roof to right and batted in Roach, who had opened with a single. Nobody was out, but Cree was left at third. Austin, Gardner and Quinn all picked the ball for easy infield outs.

The Sox continued hitting in the eighth, but it didn't do them any good. Zeider singled and was put on second by Dougherty's liner, which was beaten down by Austin. Here for the second time the Sox threw away a ripe opening. Sweeney and Roach caught Zeider napping. Sweeney made a perfect throw, and Roach at the other end blocked Zeider off and touched him, the two being all tangled up with each other. The remaining five Chicago batters couldn't make any impression on Quinn.

Cubs Beat the Phillies and Bostons Overcome the Pirates.

While the Giants and Brooklyns were resting yesterday, the former having returned from the West, the other teams locked horns, and the retrograding Pirates got another jolt. The Bostons, who did pretty well in the West, topped off in Pittsburg and bumped the world's champions. The latter came back to within eight points of the Giants. The Cubs shut out the Phillies in a game conspicuous for its skimpy hitting, while the Reds drubbed St. Louis in a game of prodigious hitting and went to third place. The results:

Boston, 4; Pittsburg, 1.

Chicago, 2; Philadelphia, 0.
