PITCHERS' MISTAKES COSTLY

HIGHLANDERS LOSE TOUGH ONE TO WASHINGTONS.

Manning and Frill Between Them Toss the Game Away—Athletics Smother Bostons; Browns Smite Naps and Detroits Romp Away From White Sox.

The Highlanders dropped a game to the Washingtons yesterday and closed a not very profitable week. During the week they won two games, lost two and tied one. They lost ground in their efforts to head off the Athletics, as the latter smothered the Bostons and now lead by over 100 points. The ill starred Clevelands were done up by the tailend Browns, while the Detroits romped away from the White Sox. The results:

Washington, 4; New York, 3.
Philadelphia, 0; Boston, 3.
St. Louis, 5; Cleveland, 1.
Detroit, 9; Chicago, 1.

WASHINGTON, 4; NEW YORK (A. L.), 3.

The sins of their pitchers were visited upon the Highlanders yesterday, and they were beaten by the Washingtons. The Washingtons have been making things choke of late, and while their game with the Highlanders yesterday was a gruelling engagement, neither team showed form above the ordinary.

The Highlanders had a big lead to overcome, and with their usual sand came near doing it, for the Washingtons were entirely passive at the bat before the excellent pitching of Tom Hughes, but in trying to overcome Washington's lead the hilltoppers were compelled to take chances on the bases which didn't go through. Street's throwing knocked out base stealing, and two ripping line drives, which would have done the work for New York had they gone clear, whistled straight to opposing fielders. One of these was on a hit and run play and resulted in a double play that earmed the hearts of the Washingtons, but was a crusher for the big crowd.

In profiting by fortuitous circumstances, everything went Washington's way and nothing New York's. A small portion, but yet entitled to all credit, of Washington's victory was due to efforts of her own men, but a larger portion to two instances of poor work on the New York mound.

Manning and Frill between them tossed the game. A malign influence in connection with opportunities created by the spring home pitchers was an untimely two bagger by McBride. It swatted the balance of power into the hands of the enemy close on the heels of a costly wild throw by Frill. The Washingtons wouldn't have had a run in the third if Frill had accepted an easy chance to throw a runner out at third. The Washingtons held on to their lead, notwithstanding New York had men on the bases in each of the last four innings.

Manager McAleer's rabbit's foot exercised its psychic influence in the first inning. With two out Conroy made a scratch infield hit. All Connie had to do then was the do nothing and he pushed around. Manning couldn't get the ball over. Gessler, Unglaub and Killifer trotted down to first on balls and Conroy was forced home. That was a gift run, and those in the third inning also were presents.

Frill survived the second inning all right, but began the third by passing Lelivelt. Conroy splashed a single to centre, putting Lelivelt on second. Gessler hit to Frill, a hard grive on which Frill made a good stop. He had all the time needed to throw Lelivelt out at third, but threw wild and Lelivelt scored. Unglaub was thrown out by Austin and Killifer flied to Austin. McBride shot a two bagger down the left foul line and brought Conroy and Gessler home. McBride has helped the New Yorks on several occasions by his displays here, so maybap he was due for atonement.

Walker didn't get past the third inning without rough treatment. Austin doubled in the third and Sweeney's single to right scored him. Gardner died on a hard smash to Milan, Hemphill was passed and Wolter and Chase subsided on vitriolic clouts. Reisling did the pitching after that. McAleer wasn't blind and saw that Walker wouldn't do. Milan ran in on Laporte's hit in the fourth and the ball went past him for a three bagger. Laporte scored on Roach's whack to Lelivelt. The New Yorks never could get more than one hit an inning off Reisling, but appeared to be on the verge of a rally all the time.

The toughest break came in the sixth. Wolter opened with a hit. On the hit and run he started down and Chase banged the ball on the nose. It was a swift liner but Killifer ate it up and having performed said gastronomic feat threw to Unglaub and doubled Wolter. Lelivelt lost Laporte's fly and he took third on Conroy's high throw of Roach's grounder. The New Yorks tried a double steal and Laporte was caught at the plate, Street to Killifer to Unglaub to Street—neat handling.

Reisling slapped Austin on the wrist with an inshoot in the seventh. As Killifer went over to second to head off Austin's steal Sweeney hit through the unguarded avenue and Austin galloped to third. He came in on Hughes's long slam to Lelivelt. Laporte singled in the eighth with one out. Alas, he tried to steal. He was nipped by the pernicious accuracy of Street's peg. Bases on balls were issued to Roach and Cree, and when Austin lofted to Milan the home team's followers wept as they thought of what might have been if Laporte hadn't tried to steal. But the milk was spilt, and Laporte was playing the game.

Passing on to the next inning, we find Jack Knight, first batter, the recipient of four balls. Mitchell hit a line drive to deep left, which the ubiquitous Lelivelt collared. Hemphill flied to Conroy. Knight tried to steal, the proper thing to do, though a slim chance.

He either fears his fate too much
Or his deserts are small
Who dares not put it to the touch
And win or lose it all.

On McBride's clever handling of Street's high throw Knight was out.

GIANTS WIN CLOSE GAME

CLOSE GOOD WEEK BY BEATING THE PHILLIES.

Brooklyns Come Out First Best in a Twelve Inning Fight With the Bostons—Pirates Tackle Cubs and Get a Hard Knock—Reds Down Cardinals.

For the last week the Giants have been going at a greatly improved pace. They won from the Phillies yesterday, making four victories and one defeat during the week. The Brooklyns scalped the Bostons in a fight twelve innings long, and the poor old tottering Pittsburgs visited Chicago and were brutally trounced by the revivified Cubs. The Cincinnatis whitewashed the Cardinals, who have fallen down hard since their recent spurt. The results:

New York, 3; Philadelphia, 2.
Brooklyn, 5; Boston, 4.

NEW YORK (N. L.), 3; PHILADELPHIA (N. L.), 2.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—Both Mathewson and Maroney were batted briskly this afternoon, but there was some spry fielding in support of Mathewson, and the Giants grabbed the game. The scoring, which was not heavy, began in the first inning, Bates circling the bags on a single, a sacrifice and a one bagger by Magee. The Giants retaliated with a count in the second, made on Seymour's double and Devlin's single.

The Giants grouped three hits to good purpose in the fifth inning and plucked two runs. Merkle lined safely to centre, Meyers rapped safely to right, Mathewson sacrificed and Snodgrass sewed up the game with a rousing two base clip that drove home the brace of wanderers from the bases. The Phillies made a run in the sixth on a hit by Bransfield, a pass, a force and a wild throw by Doyle.

BROOKLYN, 5; BOSTON (N. L.), 4.

Not only did Barger pitch well and field his position like a major for the Brooklyns yesterday, but in the twelfth inning he bore home the run that beat the Bostons. Parsons, the Boston pitcher who had relieved Mattern in the seventh inning, grew unsteady in the twelfth and passed Barger, the second man up. Burch made a scratch hit, Daubert drew a second pass, and Bob Wheat, the big hitter of the Brooklyns, landed for an infield single that brought Barger across.

It was a scrappy game, the Bostons tying the score in the ninth inning on a two bagger by Sharpe, a single by Beck, Sweeney's force of Beck, after which Sweeney stole second, a pass to Graham and a hit by Getz gave the Doves two runs. They made their other two in the fifth inning on hits by Beck and Graham, a pass to Sweeney and a fumble by Lennox.

Burch scored for Brooklyn in the first inning on a scrach hit by Burch, Daubert's sacrifice and Wheat's thump to right. Wheat, who was in three of Brooklyn's scoring rallies, singled in th third inning and came in ahead of Hummel when the latter tripled, Hummel reaching the plate on poor work by Beck. Hummel's triple in the sixth and Lennox's single earned a run for the Brooklyns.

Harry Lumley has been released by the Brooklyn club. There is a provision that if Lumley goes with another National League team this season Brooklyn is to receive the purchase price. Lumley's wife died recently and he wants to get out of baseball until next season. He has hopes of buying or managing a minor league club.
