FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, June 11.

The condition of affairs inside the walls of the Stock Exchange and Wall Street offices to-day was thoroughly typified by the discouraging weather outside. In the stock market, although yesterday's declining movement was not continued as vigorously as on the former occasion, yet prices sagged slowly and despondently. They rallied at the close, but still left off at general net losses. The London market was distinctly weaker than it lately has been, not only for American stocks but for consols and other English investment securities, and the exact reason for this did not appear altogether plain. In our own market the Chicago and Alton common shares recovered most of their loss of yesterday on a single transaction, and Amalgamated Copper was also firmer, presumably by reason of the buying in of shares sold by "bear" operators yesterday. Nearly all the stocks were weak and the decline was led by a special drop in Chesapeake and Ohio. The grain and cotton markets were heavy, and the weekly bank statement although it was accounted favorable still did not show to the degree that might have been expected the results of the recent liquidation in stocks. Under the average figures of the return loans decreased only $4,151,000, which with a gain in cash of somewhat less than $2,000,000 added $2,500,000 to the bank surplus. The actual figures reported an even smaller decrease in loans but a larger increase in cash and therefore a proportionately larger increase in the bank surplus.

Undoubtedly one cause for the recent depression in the stock market has'been the cold and unseasonable weather that has in the main prevailed over the country in the last six weeks. This has had an unavoidable influence sentimentally because it has disturbed the daily and weekly outing plans of many large professional speculators, leading them to the irritated belief that weather conditions this year are erratic and abnormal, and has also in many ways injured general business in a more logical and direct manner. Taken as a whole the country's crop prospect is still good, even if as the result of poor weather the corn crop is backward, winter and spring wheat conditions deteriorated somewhat during May and the cotton crop is now suffering to a certain extent from too much rain. After all no particular complaint would be heard in this regard were it not for the fact that general summer trade so far this year has been materially impeded. There has not been the usual buying of light clothing materials and similar merchandise normally incident to the season. A few weeks of warm and dry weather is what is needed now from a general agricultural and business point of view more than any one thing, and should this weather come the disagreeable days of the past will be speedily forgotten. The stock market itself touched the lowest point of its decline on the first day of the week, recovered violently thereafter and then again showed a tendency to recede. The movement following the break has been, it must be admitted, in accord with traditional precedent. The first rally after a sharp drop in a market takes place in the shape of urgent covering of contracts for the fall and is not infrequently based upon the announcement of an item of decidedly good news such as in the present instance the settlement of the railway rate difficulty at Washington. Then it is discovered, or often is, that the public is not yet in a temper to support the advance at the higher level of prices shown. The market loses animation and values again fall, but with a slower and more irregular movement. An easier money market here and abroad, of which the most definite indication was a reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent.; the unsettled weather conditions to which reference has been made, the Government's general crop report, which still afforded basis for confidence as to large harvests this year if the weather from now on should be ordinarily propitious, and the progress, which it is hoped will be hastened, of the railway rate bill in Congress, all these aside of course from President Taft's agreement with the railway officials upon the injunction proceedings, were the chief developments last week upon which financial attention rested. Toward the close of the week there was, it must be confessed, some recurrence of pessimism as to the general situation, mostly caused perhaps by the report of the Copper Producers Association, which showed another large increase in copper stocks. It is now very evident that copper production in the country is running heavily in excess of consumption, and a further decline in the price of copper metal seems inevitable unless some measures be taken to restrict the output of the commodity.
