BROOKLYNS WIN, BY GEORGE!

PLAY A BULLY GAME AND BEAT THE GIANTS.

Barger a Puzzle With Men on Bases and Most Other Times—Cubs Take Uphill Contest From Reds—Philadelphias and the Pirates Come Out on Top.

All clubs have to tend to their knitting when tackling the Brooklyns, and the Giants didn't tend to theirs well enough yesterday to keep from losing. The defeat sent the New Yorks further away from first place. The Cubs increased their lead, winning from the Reds in an uphill contest. The Pirates also overcome an opposing lead and won. They vanquished the Cardinals. The Phillies slammed the Bostons. The results:

Brooklyn, 4; New York, 1.

Chicago, 6; Cincinnati, 4.

Philadelphia, 5; Boston, 2.

Pittsburg, 5; St. Louis, 3.

BROOKLYN, 4, NEW YORK (N. L.), 1.

The Giants ventured on to the Brooklyns' lot yesterday in their daily foray for baseball spoils but ran into such a lively and belligerent foe that instead of replenishing they were worse off at the finish than before. The raid on the Park Slope was a failure. The Brooklyns played the better game and won cleanly and decisively. They outhit and outfielded the Giants. They bunched their hits to advantage on Wiltse, who fielded better than he pitched. He was one of the best fielders in a game of stylish fielding in which the Brooklyns, as said, excelled.

There was finish and force in Brooklyn's game, a goodly amount of the motive power being radiated from the turtle back, otherwise the mound, and sometimes known as the box. Here Cy Barger held forth, and by his good work against the Giants he further enhanced his rapidly spreading reputation as a pitcher of 24 carat grade. The warp and woof of his service consisted of speed, change of pace deftly concealed as to motion and a sharp breaking curve. Thus equipped he was to the Giant batsmen a craftsman who prevented any hitting in sequence and one whose slants inscribed absolutely unknown hieroglyphics when there was nobody on base.

All Brooklyn that could get a day off rallied to the support of the Washington-parkers, and as the Giants always draw many of their own townsmen when they go over to the village of Dablen's Corners there weren't any men fans in either the city of New York or the hamlet of Brooklyn who stayed home on account of wash day. There they sat, jammed in the grand stand and overrunning the bleachers, the urban New Yorker and the rural Brooklynite, shirtwaisted by hundreds for comfort, and the Manhattan boulevardiers forced by circumstances on the field below to do a second fiddle turn in the battledore and shuttlecock of persiflage with the Brooklyn rubes. Wit holds high revel when Giant and Demon clash.

Says rube to boulevardier: "The Gi'nts ain't got a chance." Says boulevardier to rube: "Aw, wait till Matty gets at 'em and they'll throw away their bats." And if that wouldn't make you laugh and forget Theodore Hook and George Ade what would?

It was in the second inning that the Brooklyns first spanned the circuit, but for a fine fielding play by Wiltse they would have made more runs. Hummel singled to centre and made a pretty steal of second, hurting his leg, but soon being himself again. Lennox sacrificed. Davidson hit over the drawn in infield. Murray fumbled. Hummel came home and Davidson went to second. Wiltse caught a tearing liner from Smith's bat and doubled Davidson with a throw to Bridwell at second. By George! Wiltse's play was bully. There was only one inning in which the New Yorks made two hits. Wiltse and Devore singled in the third with one out, but Doyle and Murray perished on infield grounders.

The New Yorks couldn't steal on Bergen when they did get on. Doyle tried it in the fifth inning. The Brooklyn battery caught the wireless for this steal, and though there were two balls on Murray Barger made a pitchout on the third and Bergen turned Doyle back with an accurate throw—nice headwork and handiwork, bully fine! The Brooklyns missed a good chance to score in the fifth. Lennox doubled and Davidson tried to sacrifice. Meyers handled the bunt sharply and threw out Lennox at third. That play on Brooklyn's part was well conceived, but where alertness wasn't shown was when Davidson, who took third on Bergen's hit, stood flat-footed there when Barger bunted. He could have come in for the trying and was left on Dalton's fly. Lennox's two bagger incidentally was such because Devore gauged the ball poorly. He should have eaten it up.

Daubert slapped a three bagger past Seymour in the sixth. He held third while Wheat flied to Devore, but made tracks for the plate when Hummel grounded to Doyle. Doyle had an easy play in front of him, but threw the ball into the ground, and the time lost while Meyers was gathering in the bound allowed Daubert to slide under safely.

Devlin made New York's run in the seventh. He hit safely to centre, and what would have been a two bagger became a three bagger because Wheat crossed Davidson and booted the ball. Devlin tallied on Merkle's ground plan smack to Smith. The Brooklyns increased their lead in their half of the inning and it was Recruit Dalton who contributed the breakup hit, a bingle which was pure luck. Smith singled, and with two out Dalton tried to duck a ball close in and got the handle of his bat in the way. A pop fly over Merkle's head was the result, good for two bases. Smith scored and Daubert's single brought in Dalton. The latter did fine running to beat Devore's throw in. Wheat walked, and when Meyers made a quick throw to second to catch Daubert a moment later the latter dashed to third. He got there too, and the laugh would have been on the Giants if Wheat hadn't been slow in trying for second on the play. As it was, Devlin's return to Doyle nipped Wheat.

Seymour opened the ninth with a two bagger. Bridwell struck out. Devlin drove a line ball to centre, but Davidson made a great shoelatch catch, saving all kinds of probable trouble thereby. Davidson skated in head down and plucked the ball from the clover tops. Merkle became defunct on a skimmer to Smith.

TEMPLETON SUPREME.

Williams Pitcher Plays Errorless Game, Allowing Amherst Only One Hit.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 20.—Before a crowd of 5,000 persons Amherst went down to defeat, 4 to 0, at the hands of the Williams nine to-day. Hosts of Williams alumni were on the field, each delegation in costume and headed by a band.

Despite an enforced absence of three weeks from the box, due to a lame arm, Capt. Templeton was in fine form. He allowed only one hit, and accepted ten chances without an error, thus finishing the season with a fielding average of 1.000. He also secured two hits, one of which was for two bases. He still clings to his decision not to accept the offers to join a professional team.

Williams's runs were all earned by hard hitting and fast base running. Amherst was never dangerous, going out in order in seven innings.

Baseball Notes.

Walsh, the Notre Dame catcher, reported to the New York Americans yesterday, and Daniels, the Bucknell outfielder, is due to report to-day.

Manager Stallings says Ed Sweeney is the best catcher in the American League.

Olmstead, the White Sox pitcher, is doing well lately. He held the Washingtons to five hits in a thirteen inning game last week and let the Clevelands down with six bingles yesterday.

Ford and Bender are described as the two best pitchers in the American League. Johnson and Walsh are about as good as there are anywhere, excepting possibly Mathewson.

The St. Louis Browns are doing much better. They seem to have picked up a promising young pitcher in Rei.

The New York outfielders all had their troubles yesterday. Devore misjudged Lennox's two bagger, Seymour was awkward in getting under Daubert's long swipe, and Murray let a single roll between his legs.

Barger isn't the personification of poetic grace on the mound, but he can handle that sphere.

A movement is on foot in Philadelphia to nominate Rube Waddell as Lieutenant Governor on the ticket headed by John Tener. "Both have won fame as baseball pitchers," says the North American. "How Rube has distinguished himself at times by acting as a bartender is a matter of history."

WOMEN AT THE NETS.

Miss Louise Hammond Wins Two Matches in Championship Tourney.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—History repeated itself at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, St. Martin's, to-day in the first day's play of the lawn tennis tournament for the women's championship of the United States. For the past two years tournament week at the Philadelphia Cricket Club has been the hottest week of the year, and the way it started out to-day bids fair to keep up the record.

Miss Louise Hammond of the West Side Lawn Tennis Club, New York, who recently won the championship of Pennsylvania and Eastern States, won both her matches to-day in easy fashion. In her second match she gained an easy victory over Mrs. W. H. Pouch, West Side Lawn Tennis Club, New York, 6—1, 6—3.

Miss Edith Rotch, Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, also won both her matches. Miss Browning of the West Side Lawn Tennis Club, was the third of the competitors to win two matches. Her first victim was Miss Beatrice Morgan, Germantown
