RESEMBLANCE TO BASEBALL

IN GAME PLAYED BY HILLMEN AGAINST BOSTONS.

But Such a Slight Resemblance Is Their Lurid Display That Red Sox Run Away From Them—Washingtons Capture Contest With the Athletic Team.

There was some resemblance to baseball in the game played by the Highlanders yesterday, but so slightly did their fearsome display resemble the real thing that the Bostons ran away with the game, that made the teams split the four game series evenly. The only other American League encounter was between the Washingtons and Athletics, the Washingtons winning, a consummation devoutly to be wished so far as the other teams are concerned. The results:

Boston, 13; New York, 4.

Washington, 4; Philadelphia, 1.

The Highlanders played a wild farce of a game yesterday and the Red Sox ran away from them. The onesidedness of the beating taken by the Hillmen wasn't as bad as the flabbergasted fielding done by the home team while losing. In the phantasmagoria collectively the stack of errors was as big as that word of misplays made by the New Yorks only Roach, Gardner, Laporte and Frill escaped unscathed. All the rest contributed to the lost cause with fumbles, muffs, boots and grotesque heaves. It was the most inchoate, incoherent and luridly loose game of ball played by the Highlanders within their existence.

In addition the Bostons hit the ball on the solar plexus. Jim Vaughn returned to mound duty after a ten days absence with a lame arm, and while he wasn't his usual effective self by a good deal he wouldn't have been slammed the way he was if he had support which resembled respectability. With such support as he had he could have pitched his arm off and not won. By the same token it doesn't do to pass harsh judgment on young Walsh for his poor work behind the bat after he relieved Sweeney. It was Walsh's first game and as he was pitchforked into a rout in which nearly everybody else was playing with riotous raggedness small blame to him if he too caught the fever.

The difficulties of the New Yorks were increased by the savage way the Bostons smashed hits in front, to the side of and behind them, but that was no reason for the home defence going completely to the bad. There was some rocky fielding on the Boston side too, principally by Hack Engle, but Harger did much better pitching than was done on the New York side. The grand total of batters who reached first on errors was ten and the grand total of errors of every persuasion fourteen. The New Yorks easily carried off the error honors with ease.

By means of bases on balls, steals, hits, errors and everything else in the calendar of diamond happenings Speaker of Boston made four runs, which equalled New York's total. Speaker made his first run the first inning when he took first on balls, went to third on a passed ball and was batted home by Stahl, who let fly with the first of three hits.

Two good plays by Chase retired men in the third, but then came a hit and muffs by Chase and Wolter and two runs. With a load of hits by Vaughn, Chase and Speaker and displays by Engle and Gardner the harried Highlanders made one run in the third and one in the fourth. A wild throw by Hooper cut off one run at the plate.

The New Yorks merged three errors closely in the fifth that it was next to continuous performance. Vaughn lumbered over to first and muffing an assist, bungled, making a bad throw to the plate and Sweeney hurling over Hal Chase's head to right field. The fifth inning jamboree, which for general jaundice made all that had gone before seem like the acme of fielding grace and elegance, embraced a grand slam to the bleachers by Daniels, a muffed fly by Wolter and a base on balls and a stream of hits, long and short. This was Daniels's round.

Boston's run in the seventh was due to a walk and a two bagger by Lewis. New York's fielding record was unsullied in this inning. Frill and Walsh went in in the seventh and in due time it dawned on O'Loughlin that the rules require announcement of the substitute umpire. Thereupon Sisk got busy, Frill and Walsh by that time having witnessed enough horrors to turn their hair gray.

In the eight a Good Samaritan in the stand distracted attention from the game by footing so stentorously that he required some little pacification from a cop and others. Said gentleman made a speech in which he declared that he wanted the New Yorks to win. His forensic outburst, however, did not have the desired effect. The Bostons made two more runs in the eighth on hits by Hooper and Engle, the former's bunt which ran around Daniels's ankle, climbed his leg, prodded him in the stomach and finally bopped off his elbow. Walsh's and Lewis's round by a shade.

Last of our weeping boys wandered to the plate in the second half of the eighth, their rambles being produced by three hits and a pass and with no great hindrance on the part of the Bostons.

Giants Drop a Couple and Brooklyns Win a Couple.

The Chicagos were shut out by the Cincinnatis yesterday and aren't having an easy time holding their lead, but yesterday's defeat didn't do the Giants much good. While the Cubs were losing one the Giants were losing two. The Bostons took both parts of a double header from the New Yorks and took three out of the series of four. Therefore the second long trip from home hasn't started well. The Brooklyns surprised themselves by beating the Phillies twice. They took sixth place away from St. Louis. The results:

Boston, 5; New York, 4—First game.

Boston, 5; New York, 2—Second game.

Brooklyn, 2; Philadelphia, 0—First game.

Brooklyn, 7; Philadelphia, 4—Second game.

FIRST GAME.

Boston, July 7.—Luck was against the Giants in every way to-day and they ended the series here by losing both games of a double header. The scores were 5 to 4 and 5 to 2, the second game going seven innings.

In the last contest the Giants were three runs ahead of the Doves in the eighth inning, but it had been agreed to call the game at 6:25 P. M. to allow Boston to catch a train, so that by dilatory tactics on the part of the locals time was called before the eighth ended and the score reverted to the end of the seventh in Boston's favor.

The Giants started the first game by knocking Curtis out of the box in the first inning and scoring two runs. Snodgrass opened with a single. Doyle flied to centre, but Murray singled. He tried to stretch it, but was out at second and when he kicked about the decision he was put out of the game along with Latham, who also protested. Becker took Murray's place. Seymour and Bridwell then received passes and Devlin singled, scoring Snodgrass and Seymour. Here Evans replaced Curtis. Devlin was caught off first, ending the inning.

Boston landed on Drucke in the second inning and passed the Giants. A double by Miller, an out, Devlin's wild throw, Beck's double, a base on balls and a triple and a single netted the Doves five runs. These were the only hits and runs made by Boston in the game. Crandall took Drucke's place, and but for two flies dropped by Seymour the locals would not have reached first base. New York scored again in the fourth on doubles by Merkle and Meyers and in the fifth drove Evans from the box by scoring another run on two passes and a single by Bridwell. Frock held the Giants safe thereafter.

Raymond and Ferguson opposed each other in the second game. It was agreed to stop it one hour before Boston's train time. Snodgrass was passed to start it, and he scored later on Doyle's single and Seymour's infield out. Boston came back in the second inning with two runs. Beck singled and scored on a triple by Shean, who also scored on Ferguson's single. Two long singles by Becker and Seymour and a double tied the score for the Giants in the third, at two runs each.

A single, a home run by Miller, another single and a triple by Beck gave Boston a three run lead in its half of the third. Raymond was taken out and Ames sent to the rubber.

There was about ten minutes to play when New York opened the eighth. Ferguson passed Becker and Seymour singled. Mattern then went into the box and this change delayed the game a few minutes. The southpaw was wild and passed Bridwell, filling the bases. Devlin singled, scoring two runs. Bridwell was out at the plate on Merkle's infield hit. Schlei flied to Miller in short right and there were two out and two on base. Meyers batted for Ames and was deliberately passed by Mattern, again filling the bases. Snodgrass worked Mattern for a pass, forcing in Devlin and tying the score. Then Doyle singled, scoring Merkle and Shafer, who ran for Meyers. Becker followed with a single, scoring Snodgrass. The Giants then realized that Boston was playing for time and Becker deliberately allowed himself to be tagged out.

Boston was in no hurry to go to the bat and McGraw appealed to Johnstone. Beck then came up and with Dickson pitching fouled off seven or eight balls. Johnstone stopped the game with Beck still at bat. McGraw rushed over to Johnstone and protested vigorously, but the umpire waved him back.

BROOKLYN, 2. PHILADELPHIA (N. L.), 0.

FIRST GAME.

Philadelphia, July 7.—Brooklyn put it over the Phillies to-day in both ends of the double header, the first by the score of 2 to 0 and the second by 7 to 4 after eleven innings of strife. In the extra inning affair long hits did the business for the visitors, notably home runs by Lennox and Daubert and a three bagger by the former.

In the first game there was nothing to it but Rucker. Moren pitched a good enough game, but Rucker let the Phillies down with only four hits.

In the windup Cole pitched for Brooklyn and Manager Dooin selected Foxen. In the matter of number of hits the Phillies had one the better of it, but the wallops were not nearly as timely nor as heavy. Lennox and Daubert contributed regular knockout punches. Foxen was chased to the clubhouse in the fourth because Lennox made a home run, the ball again going into the left field bleachers, and in fielding which Magee smashed into the wall and hurt himself.

Foxen lasted long enough after that to allow Smith and Erwin to single and then McQuillen went on. He went along pretty well until the eleventh, when Daubert cleaned up with a home run crack to the clubhouse. The Phillies had tied the score at 4 all in the eighth and all was quiet until the eleventh. Ward fumbled Erwin's grounder and Harger forced Erwin at second. Dalton singled, which put two on base. Then Daubert's smash came and three runs counted, which made the final score 7 to 4. The scores:

HERZOG SUSPENDED.

Boston Third Baseman Tried to Supplant Manager Lake.

Boston, July 7.—Insubordination in the Boston National League team has resulted in the indefinite suspension to-day of Charley Herzog, the third baseman secured from New York early in the season. Herzog, according to Manager McGraw of the New York team was endeavoring to undermine Manager Fred Lake of the Boston team and get his job. The plot had progressed so far, McGraw said that Herzog was considering an offer of $5,000 a year on a two year contract as manager and came to him (McGraw) for advice day before yesterday. McGraw listened to the information given him by the local player and being of the opinion the Herzog was not acting squarely tipped Manager Lake off of what was doing.

Lake did not go to President Dovey about the matter, but called up Vice-President Harris at his home in Pittsburg and told him what was up. Mr. Harris said it was the first intimation he had received that a change in management was contemplated and told Lake to go ahead and handle the affair in the way he thought best. Herzog's suspension came this mor
