X-SCIENCE MALICE, MURRAYS CHARGE

Malign Animal Magnetism Imputed by Them to Mrs. Eddy.

MUST GIVE UP LITTLE DAVID

Murrays Say Cult Favors Race Suicide and Opposes Marriage.

Sarah Van Alen Murray and W. John Murray, who are in themselves the Church of the Healing Christ, are going to lose their little David, the reincarnation of David, King of the Jews. Vice-Chancellor Howell of the New Jersey Court of Chancery decreed the joint prophets of the new dispensation to restore the embodiment of the great psalmist to St. Mary's orphanage, East Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Murray and W. John Murray, her husband, say that this decision of the court in the suit brought in the name of Miss Amy W. Mason of the asylum board is but another stroke of the malicious animal magnetism that has been shifted their way by Mary Baker Eddy, Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson and several other present and former powers in the Christian Science Church ever since they, the Murrays, withdrew from that sect several years ago. The dual head of the Church of the Healing Christ also says collectively that the reason why Sarah and W. John Murray withdrew from the Christian Science Church and adopted all the children they could well care for was Mrs. Eddy's secret preaching against the sacrament of marriage and the duty of child bearing.

The taking away of little David is persecution, say the Murrays. They assert that they can trace the vengeful hand of the head of the Christian Science Church through the New Jersey Court of Chancery. They intend to throw sheltering wings over the nine others of their adopted brood which find asylum in their home at 21 Warrington place, East Orange, lest the bolts of animal magnetism should unhappily strike another defenceless orphan's head.

Seven or eight months ago the Murrays adopted the boy, who was known as Kenneth Williams, out of the Providence orphanage and took him to live with them in the East Orange nursery. W. John Murray, who was found yesterday in the office of the Church of the Healing Christ, in the tower of the Metropolitan Building, asserted positively that the adoption of little Kenneth had been done at the urgent request of Miss Mason. Not only had Kenneth been taken into the common shelter of the household and the Healing Christ but three other orphans whom Miss Mason had recommended as worthy had previously been received into the Murray home.

When Kenneth came to the expansive hearth of the Murrays Mrs. Murray felt that he had been sent to her by God as a divine possession and she believed that out of the brown, serious eyes of the orphan the soul of Jesse's tuneful scion peered. At least she renamed him David, and she did not hesitate to say that East Orange housed a mighty man of God reincarnate.

"Miss Mason was a visitor at our house several times after David came," said W. John Murray yesterday as he tilted back and forth in the swivel chair of the pontificate. "She seemed to place the utmost confidence in us until she learned that we were not members of the Christian Science Church, as she had supposed. At that minute she cooled toward us and soon thereafter she instituted suit for the custody of little David."

W. John Murray said that she had cited as one ground in the petition for a writ of habeas corpus which she had made in the New Jersey court that the Murrays were "improper and irreligious persons, that they were grossly immoral and that they were not financially competent to give the proper care to their adopted son.

"She put us down as grossly immoral because we did not adhere to Mrs. Eddy's secret teachings against marriage," Mr. Murray explained yesterday. "The suit had two hearings and dragged from February up to the present. The Judge granted the custody of the child to the orphanage on the sole grounds that in his opinion our income is uncertain and irregular. He would not even allow us to produce our bank books to show our ability to care not only for little David but for the nine other children whom we have under our roof.

"The court did say that it could not find any reason to believe that Mrs. Murray was not a kind and competent mother and ruled out all allegations that had to do with Miss Mason's religious bias. We were vindicated even in defeat."

Murray says that the M. A. M. from Boston has also infected that part of East Orange in which the Murray home is situated. August of last year several of the neighborhood appealed for an injunction to prevent the trustees from building an extension on their home for the accommodation of a growing brood of infant wards under the direction of the Healing Christ. The complaint of residents set forth that babies on every floor of the house and that the building of the extension manifestly designed to harbor babies. The Murrays were running a farm without a license, the petition said.

This is still before the courts, but Mr. Murray says with quiet glee that the extension is already finished. He has no doubt that he and from his neighbors was part of the same Christian Science persecution. He is also equally as sure that he is the joint apostle of the new sect for running a baby farm without being recognized by members of Mrs. Eddy's church, says Mr. Murray.

"I wish to make what he calls a statement of facts concerning the attitude of Christian Science teachers and Mrs. Murray and himself and themselves from that body of which they are members, my dear friend, that I protested against the heretical views of some higher up' regarding the question. I have no sympathy with such on the part of the general public. I consider race suicide postponement on the part of the Christian Science organization I did so in the belief that I might be freed from the tyrannical tyranny of the most insane that mortal mind has ever conceived. I say mortal mind, for there is no Mind or Infinite Love that would put into the heart of man to formulate and enforce the rigid rules of such by-laws as would make it impossible for a Christian Scientist to love a person because of the sex connection with a certain Roman Catholic, as Mr. Murray publicly explained yesterday, refusing to comply with what I was termed disloyal, and only a faithful Scientist knows what that means."

Eugene R. Cox, the head of the Christian Science publication committee, who has his office about twenty floors below that of the Church of the Healing Christ and is aware of the dissenting grace over his head, said yesterday that so far as he knew there had been no Christian Science persecution of the Murrays. He believed that Christian Science didn't bother much about the Murrays anyway.

ORANGE, N. J., July 22.—An appeal from the decision of Vice-Chancellor Howell is to be taken by Mrs. Murray, who now has the boy in her possession here.

"It is rank Jersey injustice," declared Mrs. Murray. "When they could not prove that I was an immoral person and unfit to have the care of the child they absurdly attacked my income. If I am not in possession of sufficient income how is it, do you suppose, that I can keep up this house and care for all these children?"

No attempt has thus far been made to enforce the decree of the Court placing the boy in the care of the Providence association. A stay of the execution of the order will be asked for at once by Mrs. Murray's counsel. Meanwhile a close watch will be kept on the youngster. Mrs. Murray says that she fears a second attempt to kidnap him.

MRS. BOGART KILLED BY TRAIN.

Aged Woman's Dress Caught by Third Rail Shoe of Car.

Mrs. Jennie Bogart, about 70 years old, was killed early last evening at the Bay Twenty-fifth street station of the West End line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit road in Bath Beach. She stepped onto the station platform to get out of the way of an automobile and her dress was caught by the third rail shoe of the last car of a four car train that was starting from the station. The rear wheels of the car ran over her neck.

It was some time before the woman could be got from under the train. Firemen of Hook and Ladder 143 took off the brake shoe in order to get the body out.

The dead woman was identified by Mrs. John Lee of 2515 Hazway avenue, Brooklyn. Mrs. Lee said that Mrs. Bogart was the widow of William Bogart, who died about twelve years ago. About 1895 he was in the District Attorney's office. He was once wealthy but lost his money in some financial deal about twenty years ago.

Mrs. Bogart's maiden name, according to Mrs. Lee, was Mackay. Mrs. Lee said that she was related to John Mackay, father of Clarence Mackay. Her old family homestead was on Second avenue in the neighborhood of Gramercy Park. Mrs. Lee thought she had relatives living on Thirty-fifth street near Fifth avenue, Manhattan.

Mrs. Lee did not know where Mrs. Bogart had been living recently, but said that she had been on a visit to her and was on her way home evidently when she met her death.

WANTS HER HUSBAND.

Percy Procter's Wife Rejects All Other Suggestions of Settlement.

CINCINNATI, July 22.—For two hours last night Mrs. Percy Procter, formerly the Baroness von Klifus, and her attorney, George W. Cormany, were in conference with Attorney Lawrence Maxwell in an effort to reach a settlement regarding the transfer of Procter & Gamble stock to the Baroness by her husband, Percy Procter.

Certain advances have been made to Mrs. Procter, but she has firmly rejected them. "I want my husband," has been her reply to propositions from Procter's attorneys. Word has been sent to Mrs. Procter that her aged husband does not care to meet her, but she does not believe this to be true.

"He loved me devotedly and has had no reason to change his attitude, except outside influences," she declares.

Arrangements were made to-day for further conferences between Mrs. Procter and her husband's attorneys, at which it is hoped to come to a settlement.

Attorney Cormany said to-night that when the case comes to trial he will be ready to prove that Percy Procter's marriage with the Baroness was purely a love match.

"I have here, ready to present as evidence, a stack of the most ardent love letters that were ever written. No young lover in the ardor of his first romance ever penned anything more affectionate, more endearing, than these letters which Percy Procter wrote to the Baroness," he said.

The Weather.

July 22.—The depression which was central north of the lake regions moved eastward yesterday accompanied by showers and thunderstorms in the lake regions, New York and New England.

The Western low area became better defined and from its centre over southern Alberta spread southeastward over the Rocky Mountain States to Texas and Mexico. The pressure continued high over the country south of the Ohio River.

There were showers throughout the West, except on the Pacific Coast, and showers continued in the Gulf and south Atlantic States.

It was warmer south of the Ohio Valley and east of Oklahoma and Texas and cooler in New York and generally westward over northern parts of the country.

In this city the day was fair, little temperature change, wind, fresh southwest to southeast, average humidity, 77 per cent, barometer corrected to read to sea level, at 8 A. M., 29.98; 3 P. M., 29.90.

The temperature yesterday, as recorded by the official thermometer, is shown in the annexed table:

9 A. M.	68°	72°	6 P. M.	67°	68°
12 M.	70°	78°	9 P. M.	73°	68°
3 P. M.	81°	71°	12 Mid.	74°	68°

Highest temperature, 82°, at 2 P. M.

WASHINGTON FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

For eastern New York and New England, local showers to-day; partly cloudy to-morrow; moderate south and southwest winds, becoming variable.

For eastern Pennsylvania, local showers to-day and probably to-morrow; light to moderate variable winds.

For the District of Columbia, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, partly cloudy to-day, probably followed by local showers by to-night or to-morrow; not much change in temperature; light to moderate variable winds.

For western New York, partly cloudy to-day and to-morrow; light to moderate variable winds.

For western Pennsylvania and Ohio, local thunder showers to-day and probably to-morrow; light to moderate variable winds.

GIRL PASSED FORGED CHECKS

SMALL BOY SENT TO CASH ONE TOLD ON HER.

Mary Benson Is Only 17, but Harlem Folks Say She Has Swindled Them—Boy Charges She Robbed Him—She Says "a Woman" Gave Her the Checks.

It isn't unusual in Harlem for a child to walk into a store with a check to be cashed. Therefore when ten-year-old Francis Walsh went into Yaeger's drug store at 2518 Eighth avenue yesterday with a check for $49.39 to be cashed the druggist took it and turned toward his cash register. He gave the check a moment's study and then arrested his hand on the "No Sale" key. With one more squint at the check he went to the telephone and softly called Police Headquarters.

Detectives Isaacson and McCullough responded. The Walsh boy led them to the corner of 135th street and Eighth avenue and pointed to a demure looking girl in a basket hat who, he said, had given him the check to get cashed while she waited. The girl was Mary Benson, 17, of 1752 Amsterdam avenue. She went to the West 125th street police station protesting that she hadn't done anything. But several persons who have been swindled recently by forged checks had been summoned.

The girl's protests were cut short by the entrance of Mary Hines, 13, of 2517 Eighth avenue, who said that the Benson girl on Wednesday gave her a check to be cashed in Isidor Greenbaum's butcher shop. Just then Greenbaum himself reached the police station.

"I was called up Wednesday by a woman who said she was Mrs. Manley T. Sharpe of 488 St. Nicholas avenue," said Greenbaum excitedly, "and asked would I cash a check for $40. I said I couldn't yet, but I would give her $20 on it, and she said that would be all right and she would send the check around. Soon Mary Hines here came in with the check."

A nine-year-old boy, Billy Dietrich, of 25 Manhattan street, was sure that Mary Benson was the girl who had spotted him with $40 with which he was running an errand on June 10 and who had shoved him into a doorway and wrested $36 away from him.

The girl cashier of Charles Farrington's bakery at 2538 Eighth avenue recognized the Benson girl as the one who tried some time ago to get her to cash a check for $50 on the Garfield Bank. The check was preposterous to look at.

The Benson girl kept saying in the police station that "some woman" gave all these checks to her. In the Harlem police court before Magistarte Harris she later pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to pass a forged check on the druggist Yaeger. She was held in $3,000 bail for trial at General Sessions.

The check she sent to the druggist was drawn on the Philadelphia Trust Company. Daniel Lazinsky of 488 St. Nicholas avenue (Mrs. Sharpe's address) was the ostensible maker and the check was in favor of Samuel Lazinsky. The indorsement was "D. Lazinsky."

SURE CRIPPEN CLUE—PERHAPS.

London Police Elated Over French Report of Couple at Dieppe.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, July 22.—Scotland Yard received word this morning from the French police that detectives are shadowing a pair at Dieppe who resemble Dr. Crippen and Ethel Clare Le Neve, who are wanted here in connection with the mysterious murder of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife. Scotland Yard believes this latest clue to the fugitives is a trustworthy one.

The hunt for Crippen in the Pyrenees has been without result thus far, but it has not been abandoned. At the request of the French police a close search is being made in the little Republic of Andorre, which is under the joint suzerainty of France and the Spanish Bishop of Urgel. A keen hunt is also being made for Crippen in Barcelona and that neighborhood.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Albert Rickward, arrested here this evening on suspicion that he is Dr. Crippen, is only 29 years of age while Dr. Crippen is about 55.

The police say they will release him as they have no charge on which to hold him. Rickward wore an English suit of clothes and aside from his age bore some resemblance to pictures of Crippen.

He had more than $2,000 and arrived from New York this morning. He is highly indignant over his detention but refuses to say what his business is or where he is going.

HORSES BOLT IN THE ALPS.

Baron Pallavicini Fatally Hurt in Simplon Pass—Wife and Son Hurt.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

GENEVA, July 22.—While Baron Pallavicini and his wife were driving through the Simplon Pass to-day their horses bolted.

The couple and their son, who accompanied them, were thrown out and the Baron was mortally injured. The Baroness and the son were seriously hurt.

SAY SHE'S KEELER'S WIFE.

Woman Who Introduced Him to Mrs. Lynch Posed as His Sister.

DETROIT, July 22.—The police here say they have found out definitely that Dr. Henry Bryan Keeler, the dentist who was arrested here on Tuesday on a charge of swindling Mrs. Wilhelmina Lynch Keeler of Brooklyn, whom he married in the Adirondacks last summer after a speedy courtship beginning at Ocean Grove, out of $13,500, is the husband of the woman who was arrested with him. The woman had been passing as Dr. Keeler's sister Emma.

From letters left behind by Dr. Keeler in New York, detectives learned of Mrs. Mary Cullen of Los Angeles. They communicated with Mrs. Cullen and she told them that her daughter, Emma Cullen, had married Dr. Keeler and was still living with him.

The woman who is now declared to be Dr. Keeler's wife was with him when he first met Mrs. Lynch at Ocean Grove in July, 1909, and was a third party during the brief courtship which resulted on July 15, 1909, in the marriage of Keeler and Mrs. Lynch.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS.

Monroe Doctrine Strong in Latin Republics Following Washington's Lead.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

BUENOS AYRES, July 22.—European diplomats are exercised over the possibility of the active extension of Monroeism to all the Americas and the probable recognition of the doctrine by resolution in the Pan-American conference now assembled here. Diplomats see in the propaganda to make the Monroe Doctrine a principle of all the Americas a step to advance United States trade in South America at the cost of European commerce now predominant.

A resolution to make Monroeism apply to all the Americas will probably be introduced by Brazil supported by Chile. Argentina would fall heartily into the scheme, but she believes that Brazil may be favoring the propaganda as a means of winning favor with the United States. What Washington delegates wish done will be executed. Delegates from smaller republics are following the lead of Washington throughout.

FRENCH HISTORIAN PASSES.

Sudden Death of Léopold Victor Delisle, Author and Antiquarian.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

PARIS, July 22.—Léopold Delisle, the historian, a member of the Institute, died suddenly this morning.

Léopold Victor Delisle was born at Valognes, La Manche, in 1826. He was grand officer of the Legion of Honor and a member of the Académie des Inscriptions et belles-lettres. He was educated at the Ecole des Chartes. He married the daughter of Eugène Burnouf.

Delisle was employed in the department of manuscripts in the National Library under the successive directions of Benjamin Guérard and of Natalis de Wailly. He was conservator of the department from 1871 to 1874 and Administrator-General to 1905. Besides societies interested in the history and antiquities of France, he was a member of many historical and learned societies throughout Europe.

His works dealt mainly with subjects of French history. Among them were "Études sur la condition de la classe agricole et l'état de l'agriculture en Normandie au moyen âge," "Le Cabinet et les Manuscrits de la Bibliothèque Nationale," "Memoire sur les figures de l'Apocalypse," and many bibliographical works.

TWO ARRESTS IN RAWN CASE

NEGROES SUSPECTED OF MURDER FOR REVENGE.

Illinois Central Attorneys Who Accused Dead Man of Conspiracy Refuse to Reiterate Their Charges—Mrs. Rawn Describes the Killing of Her Husband.

CHICAGO, July 22.—While the body of Ira G. Rawn, late president of the Monon Railway, was being laid to rest in Rose Hill this afternoon two negroes were run down on a mysterious tip received by Coroner Hoffman and hastened secretly to the city hall, where they are being subjected to a severe grilling.

Coroner Hoffman refuses to give the name of his informant, but says he is a man of such prominence that his information carries great weight.

The letter to the Coroner said Rawn had been slain by a negro from motives of revenge.

One of the negroes under arrest is Ernest Stevens, aged 24, who worked in Rawn's stable from May, 1906, to December, 1909, and was discharged. H. P. Cullen, a prominent commission merchant of 79 Dearborn street, identifies this negro as one he overheard swearing that he would get that ... fellow Rawn.

The negro, who is a graduate of a South Carolina college and of Armour Institute, had failed to make payment on a ring he had purchased, and after his dismissal Rawn is said to have told the collectors where he could be found. For this the negro is said to have sworn he would kill Rawn. Mr. Rawn discharged him for taking his automobile out at night for joy riding.

Witnesses have been found who saw two negroes lurking in the vicinity of the Rawn home, and neighbors heard two men discussing some crime in the Rawn shrubbery on the night of the tragedy.

The negroes came out from Chicago on the last suburban train. Residents of Winnetka who saw them were so impressed by their evil apperance that they sought to inform the authorities, but for some reason this was not done.

Coroner Hoffman attaches much importance to the clue he received and to the arrest of the two negroes.

Illinois Central attorneys who yesterday said they had positive proof that Mr. Rawn was the head, front and brains of the conspiracy which robbed that company of $1,500,000 to-day refused to reiterate the charges. All apparently were acting under instructions not to discuss the case.

Insurance companies holding straight life policies of $47,000 on Rawn will pay without contest. Accident companies carrying $110,000 will await the Coroner's inquest and verdict, meanwhile conducting their own investigations.

The second "bullet" found in an open grate and tending to prove that two shots were fired, may not be a bullet. Opinion is divided among those who have inspected it.

Coroner Hoffman this evening disposed of sensational stories that C. Furness Hately would be dismissed as foreman of the Grand Jury which will investigate the Rawn tragedy. Mr. Hately, a neighbor, has been very active in behalf of the stricken family. It was he who thought to scrape the ashes in a grate facing the spot where Rawn was killed and found a battered piece of lead which, it is claimed, was the bullet fired by Rawn at his assailants.

Mrs. Rawn, propped up in the bed she has not left since the death of her husband, to-day told of the tragedy. She said:

"Mr. Rawn and I had spent a very happy evening. We had our children all around us and we came upstairs, I think about 11 o'clock, and retired. I do not know how long we had been asleep, but we were both awakened by the same noise, but said nothing to each other until I heard him move.

"We had heard the same noise the night before and Mr. Rawn got up, but came back and said he thought it did not amount to anything, and I thought I would wait and see what he was going to do. So I did not let him know I heard the noise at all and pretty soon he got up from the bed.

"I said to Mr. Rawn, 'What are you going to do?' He said, 'I am going to investigate. I am tired of these noises.' 'Oh, don't go!' I said. 'Shut the door and lock it.' We had our door wide open. He said, 'No, I am going.' I said, 'It is foolishness,' and by that time he had got out.

"It did not seem a second when I could hear him creeping down and he had about time to get to the first landing when I heard a terrible scuffle. So then I jumped up and screamed, and my son and daughter were in their rooms; and at the time I screamed I heard a shot, at least I heard something. Whether I heard a shot or shots I don't know, but I heard a shot; this awful scuffling and the shots, and I was so dazed that I could not move for the second; but my son jumped right out of bed and went down there."

"That is, Mr. Coburn was suggested."

"Yes, and before I got down there he got down there in the dark. How he ever got down there I don't know. I don't know what he heard, but he got down there after I screamed, and then I got down to the first landing and looked down there and saw my husband lying there shot. I ran down to him, and my son by that time had turned on the light. I looked around to see what was the trouble and I said: 'Why, Ralph, the doors are all open.' There has been a burglar in. Some one has been in.' He said: 'Yes, mother, father has been killed.' I said, 'Oh, maybe he is just wounded.' 'No,' he said, 'no; it is all over.' I thought maybe the man just wounded him, but he shot to kill. That was all. From where I sat on the stairs over my husband I could see right through and see the door open."

"That was after you reached him?"

"Yes, after I sat down by his body."

After the completion of this part of the story Mrs. Rawn was visibly affected. Being revived with restoratives she was asked if she cared to speak further and at once expressed a willingness to answer any questions that might be asked.

In reply to questions Mrs. Rawn said that her husband had owned the revolver he took with him from the bedroom for about two years, that it had been bought when porch climbers had entered the house of a neighbor. She said that while they were in the country he kept the pistol on a table in the bedroom.

She said that Mr. Rawn always slept well and had not been restless on the night of the tragedy.

Clerks for Brooklyn Coroners.

Coroners Rooney and Glinner of Brooklyn yesterday announced the appointments of Dr. John B. Byrne, Jr., and Thomas Creamer as their private clerks respectively, at salaries of $1,500 a year. A law was passed a few years ago empowering the Coroners to make such appointments and fixing the salary, but the predecessors of the present Brooklyn Coroners were unable to act under it, the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate having failed to make the necessary appropriation. Both boards recently made the appropriation.

Brandenburg Pleads Not Guilty to Bad Check Charge.

Broughton Brandenburg, a magazine writer arrested a week ago charged with giving a worthless check to a barkeeper, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Foster in General Sessions yesterday.

Brandenburg said he was without means to employ a lawyer and counsel was assigned to him. The case will be heard in the fall.

DRIVEN INTO LAKE BY FIRE.

Homesteader Stands in Water Up to Neck Till Forest Fire Passes.

NEGAUNEE, Mich., July 22.—Driven into Little Lake by forest fires which destroyed his home and all his belongings, John Carlson, a homesteader living near here, stood up to his neck in the lake all last night and part of to-day to escape from the flames.

Carlson stayed at his farm as long as he dared in a desperate struggle to save his property. Too late to make his escape by a land route, Carlson was forced to take to the water.

He tried to reach Little Lake station by walking on the shore but the flames came too close for comfort and he was driven into beep water. There he stood until the fires abated this morning and he was able to walk to the station over burned stumps and through smouldering brush heaps. He is in a serious condition from the long exposure.

MERRILL, Wis., July 22.—All night long refugees from the burned town of Heinemann and the threatened villages of Gleason and Bloomville poured into the city.

Homes here are thrown open to the unfortunate inhabitants of the fire swept region twelve miles to the north. Many men are sending their families out of danger and will stay in the threatened villages to give what aid they can. Scores of men from Heinemann, their own homes in ashes, are turning their attention to saving Gleason and Bloomville.

The saving of the lives of the people at Heinemann was due to the energetic action of H. H. Heinemann, who took a St. Paul train without waiting for permission and ran the train back and forth until everybody was out of the village and all the lives were saved.

WAUSAU, July 22.—Fires in Marathon county are the worst in years. The State forest reserve near Kelly has been fire-swept. The loss is fully $500,000. The fires are still sweeping to the northwest, fanned by a strong breeze.

ANTIGO, Wis., July 22.—Several settlers have been burned out and much timber has been destroyed. Aniwa, fifteen miles south of here, was fireswept and the inhabitants were taken away on trains.

BEAUDETTE, Minn., July 22.—The forest fires around the village of Beaudette have been checked to-day. The fires around the town of Rainy River, Ont., swept directly against the town and fear was widespread. The Canadian Northern Railroad had fire engines pouring water on the flames. The Rainy Portage and Rainy River Lumber Company closed their plants and sent their men to the fire line.

Two little girls living in the Rainy River district wandered into the forest and were burned to death.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 22.—Reports from the Rainy River district along the United States border, where forest fires have been raging for three days, show improvement, but many fires in remote districts are burning.

SEATTLE, July 22.—Officers of the steamer Dolphin, which arrived from Skagway, Alaska, yesterday, told of a forest fire ten miles square which they judged to be twenty-five miles inshore from the Strait of Georgia, north of Howe Sound.

ULTIMATUM TO STRIKERS.

Cloak Manufacturers Will Prepare One Setting Time Limit for Return to Work.

The Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association has called a meeting for Monday afternoon at the Hoffman House to take decisive action in reference to the strike of the cloakmakers. A meeting of the executive committee of the association will be held on Monday forenoon at which recommendations will be formulated to be acted on at the general meeting later.

It is expected that the association will issue an ultimatum to the strikers, giving them a certain time within which to return to work, in default of which the manufacturers will proceed to fill their places. The latter say they can get plenty of help, but do not want to begin to employ strike breakers until the strikers have had ample chance of returning to work. Most of the strikers quit work simply at the command of the union leaders and by this time have come to regret what they have done, one of the manufacturers said.

The office of a Jewish daily paper on East Broadway was mobbed yesterday forenoon by strikers and sympathizers who were angry because the paper printed an advertisement giving the manufacturers' side of the strike and advising the strikers to return to work. A stone was thrown through a window and other missiles followed. Reserves from the Madison street police station dispersed the crowd. There were no arrests.

MOB BURNS NEGRO'S BODY.

He Had Been Killed by Sheriff's Posse While Resisting Arrest.

BELTON, Tex., July 22.—Henry Gentry, a negro, was surrounded by a Sheriff's posse near this place and killed upon resisting arrest. His body was then brought to Belton and burned in the public square after being exhibited throughout the city.

The negro this morning shot and killed Constable James Mitchell. Mitchell met his death at about 2 o'clock this morning near the residence of Mrs. John Lamb, a widow, who had notified him that the negro was trying to break into the house.

When the officer arrived, following a telephone message from the widow, the negro had fled and the officer returned to the city after bloodhounds. When he reached the house again in company with two citizens the negro, who had armed himself with a shotgun, opened fire, killing Mitchell, and again escaped.

Just before noon the officer brought a negro to this city and lodged him in jail. Immediately 1,000 people congregated around the jail until satisfied that the negro was not Gentry.

Later, when the body of Gentry was brought to the city after he had been surrounded in the river bottoms and shot down while resisting arrest, the crowds again gathered and the body was carried around the city and finally to the public square, where it was burned.

After the negro's body had been burned Judge J. D. Robinson made a speech from the Court House steps advising the crowd to disperse, which was done, and everything is now quiet.

HIT OUT WHEN ASKED NAME.

Blow Landed on Policeman's Chin, but a Little Later Sharvio Told.

They were taking the pedigree of Louis Scharvio of 221 Mott street in the old West Twentieth street police station last night and Policeman Henry McCabe, who had arrested Scharvio on a charge of assault, asked the prisoner his name. There was no answer. The lieutenant on the desk and the policeman who was leaning over the desk writing in his note book again asked Scharvio what his name might be. The prisoner turned swiftly and hit McCabe on the jaw. When the lieutenant mastered his amazement he bellowed for the reserves pinnoching in the back room and then Scharvio told his name, be sure of that.

McCabe went to the New York Hospital and had some stitches taken in his lip, cut by Scharvio's blow. The belligerent one had been charged with striking William Caspar of 13 East 113th street in a fight on West Seventeenth street and to this was added the charge of assaulting a policeman.

NAB ALLEGED MOB LEADER.

Man Charged With Leading Ohio Lynchers Held for Murder.

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio, July 22.—Joseph Bush, 31 years old, alleged leader of the Newark mob that lynched Carl M. Etherington, detective, was captured at Harper, this county, late last night. He was taken to Newark this morning and lodged in jail, charged with first degree murder.

Four policemen burst in the door of the house where Bush had been in hiding and took him by surprise. Bush had nothing to say except that he would not have been caught had he not been surprised.

Detective Foster declared that Bush is the man who held the rope and placed it about the neck of Etherington. Bush is also charged with being the ringleader of the mob and directing the assault on the jail doors at Newark. He lived here six years ago and is a laborer.
