GIANTS HAVE A RICH INNING

FIGHT IN THE THIRD AND CARDINALS BEATEN.

New York Gains Slightly on Cubs, Who Break Even With the Phillies. Brooklyns Drop Two to the Reds, While the Pirates Manhandle the Bostons.

A slight gain on the Cubs was made by the Giants yesterday, a gain of nine points. The New Yorkers knocked the spots out of the Cardinals while the Cubs were breaking even with the Phillies. The Cubs were beaten in the first game, making three straight losses, but won as they pleased in the second. The Pittsburgs won easily in Boston and also pulled up a bit on the leaders. The Brooklyns met with two setbacks. Their opponents were the Cincinnatis, who tied the Phillies for fourth place. The defeat for the Cardinals was their twelfth straight. The results

New York, 9; St. Louis, 4.

Cincinnati, 1; Brooklyn, 0 First game.

Cincinnati, 2; Brooklyn, 2 Second game.

Philadelphia, 3; Chicago, 1 First game.

NEW YORK (N. L.), 9; ST. LOUIS (N. L.), 4.

The Giants in their favorite pastime of making eight runs in one inning added some cheer to an otherwise cheerless day at the Polo Grounds yesterday and simultaneously left the Cardinals hopelessly in the lurch. The third inning was the one of the big realization, and St. Louis's little lead of one run became a mere trifle. The Cardinals made the score closer by making three runs in the fourth, but that was their final gasp, for Wilhe had them dancing to his music thereafter.

Wiltse relieved Drucke, who was going badly. The Texan was unsteady and when he passed the first two men up in the third inning McGraw called for his resignation. Wiltse showed his quality by shutting right down on the Cardinals instantly. They plastered his pitching somewhat in the fourth, but that was after the New Yorks had made their charge en masse and when Wiltse didn't have to sit right. Had Drucke weathered the third inning he doubtless would have survived the game without much trouble, as he would have had a seven run lead to restore composure.

The intended double header was abandoned on account of the rain, an opportunity lost apparently, the Giants being in so much better playing trim than their guests. The former outplayed the patchwork Cardinals in every way. Two of the St. Louis players were hurt and had to leave the game. Konetchy's foot was hurt in a play at first base and a collision at the plate between Snodgrass and Phelps, in which both of them were shaken up, sent Phelps off the field. McGraw excused Snodgrass in a subsequent inning.

In the first two innings the Giants weren't as lively as their rivals. A double steal with a tally at one end was put through on them in the first inning, but due entirely to a stupid play by Drucke. Ellis made a hit and went to third on Snodgrass's fumble of Mowrey's hit. Konetchy grounded to Devlin, who hesitated, hoping to be difficult bagging cleverly but with enough throw over Ellis's shoulder he caught the Rube chap at the plate.

Mowrey went to third on the out and he and Konetchy operated a delayed steal. Meyers had the play sized up, made the short throw to Drucke and all the latter had to do was to return the ball to Meyers to expedite Mowrey on the plate, Drucke having played into the Giants' hands in dashing off home with the throw. Drucke, however, turned and threw to Bridwell. The latter had come in for a possible return to the plate, and both base runners were safe. The inning ended with a grandstand catch by Murray and one which promoted a home run. Murray footed it out over the wet turf, stretched and reached Evans's colossal wallop and did a somersault over the ball in his fond embrace. It was a snatching extraordinary.

Strikeouts by Merkle and Drucke left three men on the bases in the second, but in the third the Giants ceased nibbling at the service of Bob Harmon and proceeded to massacre him. Hauser finished Drucke's tap. Doyle drilled a single to centre and Snodgrass placed a bunt to the best advantage. Murray brought in a run with a sacrifice fly, and then Bridwell flopped a hit to right. Devlin died to Zacher. Zich made a true throw home, but in the jarring rencounter at the plate between Snodgrass and Phelps the latter dropped the ball and Snodgrass tumbled safely over the tendejas.

Merkle brushed a three bagger to left centre, which was good for a run by Bridwell. Meyers singled and in floated Merkle. Wiltse hit a tangent grounder to Mowrey, who mussed it up, and Devore sent a double winging to left, which completed Meyers's travels. Doyle had a two bagger in his bat too, and spilled it along the right foul line. Wiltse and Devore scored on the play, the second all around flight of the inning for Devore. Snodgrass really beat out a grounder to Hauser, but Brennan called him out.

Two singles, a base on balls and a two bagger by Huggins gave the Cardinals three runs in the fourth. They had two on bases in the fifth with nobody out but Wiltse's pitching enticed three flies from the succeeding batters. Zacher hit one higher than the rest of boying, but Devore got it with a good shoe top catch. Zich pitched pretty well for the Cardinals. The only run off him was due to a three bagger by Snodgrass, the ball breaker, and a sacrificial uplift by Murray.

CINCINNATI, 1; BROOKLYN, 0. FIRST GAME.

It hadn't been for an error by Burch in the thirteenth inning of the first game in Brooklyn yesterday the battle might have gone on until midnight. With that error a Cincinnati run trickled across the home corner, the only run of the game. Gaspar and Scanlan both pitched effectively, and while there were a good many who got on bases, scoring was next to impossible. It was impossible for the Brooklyns, but not for want of chances.

It looked as if the Brooklyns would win in the ninth inning. Scanlan opened with a two bagger, a long enough hit for a three bagger for a good runner. Scanlan took third on Burch's bunt. Davidson ran for Scanlan and the faithful thought it was all over. Daubert filled the sacks with his walk, and the important base runners straddled at the leads. Wheat biffed the ball on the profounds but straight to McMillan. Daubert was doubled off third and Davidson was caught at the plate. Mitchell to Dalton to Mitchell. McMillan was safe against his former club. He accepted fifteen out of twenty chances.

Dalton was the hero of the hitting for the Brooklyns in the fourth inning and all of the scoring. He collected two clean runs in the fourth inning and then the Brooklyns were shut out as tight makers. With the bases loaded twice Gaspar stuck to pitching energetically and won a unassisted game. Twice he grouped hits for three runs, either one of which lighter was ample to make a win. Two of the home troupe, Griffith and Umpire Rigler, finished in the fourth inning and Griff faded away to the St. Helena of the clubhouse. The scores:

New Yorks and Browns Shut Each Other Out. Athletics Beat Detroits.

The Highlanders brought their list of consecutive defeats up to seven before they won a game. They were shut out by the Browns in the first game yesterday and shut the tailenders out in the second. That brought them a little closer to the Detroits, who in the first game of an important series with the Athletics were beaten. Another pennant aspirant also met defeat, the Bostons succumbing in Chicago. The Washingtons lost the first game and won the second in Cleveland. The results

ST. LOUIS (A. L.), 1; NEW YORK (A. L.), 0.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—Good ball, the best the Browns have shown in some little time, was on tap this afternoon in the opening game of the bargain bill when New York lost, score 1 to 0. The Browns could not keep up their winning ways, however, and New York won the second game in decisive fashion by 8 to 0.

Pitcher Jack Powell proved the coming back theory to be wrong in his case. His work in the first game was the best he has shown all season, although he was fortunate in passing the first and sixth innings without being scored on. Fast fielding kept New York from evening up the score in the sixth. Daniels ripping off a long hit over Hoffman's head in centre. The wallop was good for a triple, but the coacher on third at the time sent the speedy New Yorker on home, and the relays of Hoffman and Truesdale cut off the count that would have tied the score.

New York never had a chance in any of the other innings of even getting close to the pay off station. And to add to Powell's glory, he scored the lone run of the battle. The strangest part of the whole affair was the fact that the tally registered by Powell was the first run that he has scored this season.

Everything was different when Bailey went in to pitch for the Browns in the second game. Stallings's men hammered the trail southpaw all over the lot, and the longer Bailey remained in the game the worse he became. New York scored three runs in the second, one in the sixth and four in the ninth, and only one hit was made in the final inning by New York, Bailey giving three walks and hitting two batsmen.

All the while the visitors were piling up the runs and slapping Bill's twisters young Mr. Ford was travelling along at top speed. St. Louis never had a chance of becoming dangerous. Ford allowed only three scattered hits, did not give a base on balls and fanned ten. The Browns never had a man get past second base. Newnam and Truesdale were the only players to get as far as the middle station during the entire contest.

Quinn, who twirled the opening contest, can blame Charlie Hemphill for the loss of the game. Powell opened the sixth with a single. Stone sacrificed. Quinn to Laporte. Hartzell beat out an infield hit, Powell taking third. Newnam sent a long fly to right, which Hemphill muffed. Powell scored. Griggs rolled to Foster and Hartzell was safe at third when Austin dropped the ball. Hoffman forced Hartzell at the plate, Foster to Criger. Wallace was out, Laporte to Knight.
