QUIETER IN YOUR ALLEY?

IT OUGHT TO BE, FOR SCHOOL IS AN SESSION AGAIN.

Supt. Maxwell, Back From Germany, Says Our Classrooms Would Be Cleaner if We Had Movable Furniture—Parochial and Aid Schools Also Reopen.

Long before the gates of the public schools were opened yesterday mobs of children jostled one another on the sidewalk in their eagerness to be inside first and have first choice of seats. It was the opening day of the long term. Many children appeared who had neglected to be registered last week.

The day was given up to the organization of classes and the assignment of pupils to grades. In the downtown schools and at some of those in The Bronx and Brooklyn several children newly arrived in this country applied for admission. They were the offspring of immigrants who had arrived here since last spring. The teachers say that the first thought of the immigrant is to have his children learn the language of their new country in the public schools. Many of the newcomers accustomed to a paternal form of government have a notion that Uncle Sam will teach their boys and girls a trade or a profession.

There was no information yesterday as to the number of pupils that were admitted to the 560 schools of the city. It will be several days before the reports from the principals will have been tabulated and the census figured out. It is expected that The Bronx will have considerable trouble on account of lack of room. Only 329 new sittings were added yesterday. There were no new sittings in Brooklyn and the result was congestion in Brownsville, Richmond and Queens also were without additional sittings.

The Board of Education took charge yesterday of the Manhattan Trade School for Girls on East Twenty-third street. It has 200 pupils.

City Superintendent Maxwell will meet all of the principals at 4 o'clock to-day in the assembly room of the De Witt Clinton High School and will make an address to them. Dr. Maxwell, who has just returned from Europe, said yesterday:

"In Germany one thing impressed me; that was cleanliness. Everything about the classrooms was so remarkably neat and trim that it made one feel good just to look about. The neatness applied to the pupils as well as to the rooms and furniture.

"I observed there a condition I have long been advocating in the schools of this city; that is, moveable furniture. With it installed a room can be kept clean; also it affords help in doing away with part time, for furniture in a classroom that is not fully occupied may be shifted to a room where it is needed."

Dr. Maxwell said that he thought it likely that the estimate of 53,000 part time pupils this month would be very nearly correct.

"No child will be turned away from school. Every one applying will be admitted," he said.

The lack of accommodations in the public schools is relieved by the parochial schools, which have about 125,000 pupils. There were five new parochial schools completed in time for yesterday's opening.

Fifty-five hundred children are enrolled in the day classes of the fourteen schools of the Children's Aid Society which opened yesterday morning. This is an increase of about 500 over last year. Most of the children are of foreign birth or parentage. The requirements for teachers have been raised; no teacher being employed who has not had at least one year at the normal college after having graduated from high school, or who has not had, in default of the normal training, two years teaching experience elsewhere. Salaries have been increased.

The schools, which have previously given much attention to the care of their pupils' teeth, are making a special effort this year to prevent deterioration of their eyes. Each of the text books used in the schools will have pasted on it these injunctions:

Never read in bad light. Always hold your head erect when you read. Your eyes are worth more than any book to you. Hold your book about fourteen inches from your face. Let the light come from behind or over your left shoulder. Your safety and success depend on your eyes. Take care of them. Rest your eyes by looking away from the book every few moments. Avoid books or papers printed indistinctly or in small type. Never read with the sun shining directly on them. Wash your eyes night and morning. Turn to a doctor at the first trouble. Clear and good. Never let a cloud come between you and your book.

The common drinking cup has been banished. Each school has a fountain and the child's lips touch nothing but the water.

PRESIDENT VAIL ON TRIAL.

Head of Dutchess Fire Insurance Company Charged With Forgery.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 12. Lewis H. Vail, president of the Dutchess Fire Insurance Company, was placed on trial for forgery before Justice Morschauser in the Supreme Court here to-day under an indictment obtained in the early summer by Supt. Hotchkiss of the State Insurance Department. He is charged with having ordered removed from the minute books of the company a page containing a resolution passed by the directors regarding the reinsurance of business taken over from the Dutchess Mutual Insurance Company which went out of business soon after the San Francisco earthquake and fire.

The resolution, Supt. Hotchkiss charges, would have prevented the new company from doing business had it come to the attention of the State Insurance Department. Other charges were preferred against Vail before the Grand Jury, but that body failed to indict on them. Mr. Hotchkiss then obtained permission from Justice Morschauser to present the other charges before a Grand Jury of another county, and it is expected that he will present the case in Albany county if the jury here fails to convict.

The case came to an abrupt adjournment at noon, when Justice Morschauser heard argument on a demurrer made by Abraham J. Rose, counsel for Vail. Rose said that the same crime is charged several times in the one count of the indictment and cannot therefore hold. Justice Morschauser asked for briefs and the jurors were excused until Wednesday.

German Widow Desires Husband: Will Pay $150 if Satisfactory.

Mrs. Ida Hahnn, who describes herself as a German widow and domestic as her kind, has written to Assistant City Clerk Scully of Brooklyn asking him to find her a good sober man, German or Swedish preferred, for whom she is willing to pay at least $150. Even the possession of a child or two need not interfere with matrimonial arrangements. Mrs. Hahnn forgot to give her address, but was particular to say that she is 30 years old and a fine cook.

Theatrical Manager Bankrupt.

Part of the claims were contracted when Plohn was a partner in the firm of Miller & Plohn. He also was a partner in the firm of Miller, Plohn & Saylor. Both firms have been dissolved. Plohn owes $614 to his actors and actresses.

USURPERS OF AUTHORITY

JUSTICE HOWARD ENUMERATES THEM IN A TALK IN COHOES.

They Are, He Says, the Political Boss, the Reformer Boss, the Executive Boss the Eminent Citizen Boss and Moral Uplift Boss—Whack at Roosevelt.

COHOES, N. Y., Sept. 12. In an address before the Cohoes Chamber of Commerce to-night Supreme Court Justice Wesley O. Howard paid his respects to the boss system of government, took a whack at what he termed the direct primary "quack," deplored the neglect of citizens to exercise their full privileges under primary and election laws, and asserted that in spite of attacks on the Supreme Court of the United States the Government is safe under the Constitution and the laws of to-day. Justice Howard enumerated the various usurpers of authority as the political boss, the reformer boss, the executive boss, the eminent citizen boss and the moral uplift boss.

"Of all the political evils which beset us," said Justice Howard, "the greatest danger is our drift toward government without law. In form, this is a government by the people; in fact, it is a government by the bosses."

After giving some characterizations of the political boss he said:

"It would hardly seem credible to one who had not thought about it to be told that in this Empire State for more than a decade no law was enacted without the sanction of the boss, no law in opposition to his wish, and that his desires, instantly almost without murmur, became written in the statute books of the State. Yet such is the fact well known to all. The highest places of appointment were filled absolutely by him; the boundaries of great cities he altered and their charters he fixed and changed; he made and unmade Governors; he nominated Judges at his pleasure and stripped off their gowns in his anger; he decreed that canals should be dug and roads should be built; he caused himself to be appointed and reappointed to a great office. * * * until at last in his decrepitude the sceptre of power was wrested from his hands not by the people but by the treachery of his lieutenants."

"Just now," said Justice Howard later, "the political world is racked by the subject of direct primaries; but it is only the political world that is thus racked. For two years every effort has been made to get the people excited about it, but these efforts have failed. The people are not greatly concerned in it, for as they well know the bosses will rule whatever may be the fate of direct primaries. The people would not be conscious of it by reason of any material effect upon them if direct primaries became a fact. Direct primaries is a device of the bosses in a war cry of the bosses. No issue between the people and the bosses is presented by this hubub about direct primaries; it is only a strategem by which one set of bosses hopes to oust the other set. This is distinctively a war between the bosses, a war in which the people are not interested, and in which they neither profit nor lose, except that they pay the freight.

"Will the time never come when public men cease to humbug the people? Why insist that this question is paramount? As a mere incident among a hundred burning questions which ought to be considered direct primaries, real direct primaries, not the monstrosity which recently died by abortion, would be a good thing. There is no great need of the measure, however, for the laws are ample now if citizens would only assert themselves. The torpor of the citizen renders all laws null."

"The cost of living," Justice Howard continued, "mounts higher and higher; untilled farms which contribute to it lie all over New York and New England. There are roads that should be made or repaired at public expense, but all these things and others must wait while the bosses fight the battle of direct primaries.

"Many public characters are fretted and annoyed by the Constitution and its limitations. They chafe to have their energies so circumscribed. They are indignant that the Supreme Court should continue to construe legislative enactments in conformity with the Constitution. Such decisions do not, they think, come up to the needs of the times. If vested with dictatorial power they would abolish a tribunal so fossilized. The age of statecraft seems to have perished and the age of the spectacular to have come. Instead of profound public papers which are to live in history, letters of repudiation frequently emanate. Instead of an effort to foster industries, a frenzy to smash business is the rage. Noise is substituted for reason and words for acts."

Newburgh Papers Complain of the Census and Will Take Another.

NEWBURGH, Sept. 12. There is such general dissatisfaction with the manner in which the census by the United States authorities has been conducted that the Newburgh Journal and the Newburgh News to-night announce that they will each individually place canvassers on the work and have the census of the city again gone over, the Federal enumeration showing a gain of 2 per cent. only over that of ten years ago. The News says it has not yet decided on the methods to be adopted. The Journal does not state its plans, but it will start at once on well prepared lines. It is known that sections of the city were but roughly gone over by men who were not presumably capable of doing the work.

Yank away! boys!

One feature of our school suits is their strength.

Few boys' suits have so much of their cost put into careful sewing and fine stout trimmings.

Yet strength is not our strongest point.

Style is.

Because while other good makers turn out strong suits, precious few have our outlet for boys' suits of a style usually found only with the few merchant tailors who will make boys' clothes at twice our prices.

School suits from $7.50 to $20.

SOLDIER TRAIN WRECKED.

Passenger Train Takes Wrong Track Through Open Switch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 12. Two were killed and sixteen injured, three seriously, in a collision of passenger trains on the Big Four this morning at 7:30 o'clock. Passenger train No. 9 struck an open switch connecting double tracks and plunged into a soldiers' special loaded with more than 900 Kentucky National Guardsmen bound for Fort Benjamin Harrison.

The engines telescoped their boiler heads almost half way to the cabs. The coal tender of train No. 9 was demolished, as was a combination baggage car and smoker.

Four coaches behind the wrecked combination car were derailed, but were not damaged, while the twelve coaches of the soldiers' special kept the track.

The military hospital corps was ordered to the front and did service caring for the injured. Responsibility for the wreck has not been placed.

DR. F. J. J. WOOD REMARRIES.

Weds Mrs. Mabel Wheeler Bailey in Boston Soon After Divorcing English Wife.

Dr. Frederick J. J. Wood, who long served as surgeon in the Forty-seventh Regiment, Brooklyn, and was surgeon of the Second Brigade at the time of his retirement from the National Guard in April last, was married to Mrs. Mabel Wheeler Bailey, a widowed daughter of Mrs. Henry W. Wheeler of 274 Washington avenue, on July 12, but the announcement of the marriage was not made until yesterday.

The ceremony took place in Boston, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, officiating. The couple are now in Europe on an extended wedding tour.

Dr. Wood early in the present year obtained a divorce in Carson City, Nev., from his first wife, Mrs. Anna Ardin Wood, whom he married in England before settling in this country. His first wife and their three children still live in the old home at 2 S. James place. Dr. Wood's retirement from the National Guard followed his return from Nevada last April.
