SECOND PLACE FOR GIANTS

BEAT ST. LOUIS TWICE, WHILE PITTSBURGS LOSE.

Champion Chicagos Split Even With the Brooklyns in a Double Header—Philadelphias Trimmed by Cincinnatis, Who Climb Into a Tie for Fourth.

The Giants used the St. Louis double-play as a stepping stone to second place while the New Yorks were taking two games from the visitors, the Bostons took the Reds into camp and made it easier for the Giants to climb. The Brooklyns showed good form in two games against the champion Cubs, not only in the second did they have the Cubs at the end. The Reds trimmed the Phillies and bracketed themselves in a tie for the fourth place. The results:

New York, 1; St. Louis, 0. First game.
New York, 11; St. Louis, 3. Second game.
Chicago, 5; Brooklyn, 3. First game.
Brooklyn, 3; Chicago, 2. Second game.
Boston, 5; Pittsburg, 4.
Cincinnati, 8; Philadelphia, 3.

FIRST GAME.

Manager Bresnahan seized upon the occasion of a flag end of the season double header with the Giants yesterday to try his new pitchers, and the New Yorks are in second place now. Hearn, a stalwart left hander from the North Carolina League, went through all the first game for St. Louis, and although beaten showed signs of becoming a good pitcher. There are precisely two good reasons, one on each coaching line, why a new pitcher trying out against the New Yorks doesn't keep control. Hearn came through the ordeal pretty well.

The first game was sharply played most of the way. The second game was not. Twenty-eight players were used by both sides altogether in the second, four in the New York line being pitchers. Golden, selected from the Newcastle Club of the N. P. League, and Alberts from the Terre Haute club of the Central League, were the new men for the Cardinals. Golden is a rugged right hander who started well, but lost his grip before long and had to be beaten. When he got out there was nothing else in the game.

Wilhelm pitched so well in the first game that the Cardinals never had a chance to win the game, although one run would have tied it. One would have carried off the game in the first, fourth and ninth innings, four batters faced the lean left handed. In the other six innings the outs were one, two, three. He struck out seven men and gave five hits, well separated.

Hearn came through a trying time in the ninth inning. With one gone, Meyers singled and Wilhelm sent a Texas leaguer to right for a base. Hearn struck out Devore and then passed Doyle, so the bases were filled with two out and Snodgrass coming up. The best Snod could do was to pole a fly to Hauser.

In the fourth Murray lined to Ellis, but Bridwell walked. Devlin singled to centre on a double steal. Bridwell was caught at third but Devlin got to second. He scored on Merkle's sharp single to centre. That was the only run of the game. Hearn disposed lethargic of thought in the ninth, Snodgrass stealing third while the pitcher held the ball. It didn't count seriously, however.

The second game was a comedy. With Ewing in the first inning, Snodgrass singled, his first hit in some time. Murray drove far to centre field. Abbott after a run got under the ball, but dropped it, and Snodgrass scored. The Cardinals hammered Ames all over the place in the second. Ellis and Phelps singled. Abbott sacrificed and on Hauser's single Evans counted. Phelps scored on Schlei's crack three to centre (trying to catch Hauser stealing and Golden's sacrifice) brought in Hauser. The second of the second the New Yorks met the score. Merkle singled and Becker, batting for Schlei, drove the ball along the ground to far centre field for a home run. Wilhelm was set flat at both ends of the game. On the ground just as it came to his hands a double play closed off more New York runs in the third, but there was nothing to save the Cardinals in the fourth.

Merkle started this with a single and Mowrey's error let Drucke on. Meyers banged up with a home run that struck the tobacco sign in right field just on the top and bounced into the stand. There is a prize of $50 for hitting the sign. Devore walked and went to second when Golden, growing to keep him close to the bag, let fly a wild one.

Alberts was sent in then. He walked Doyle. Snodgrass's third hit scored Devore. Murray singled and Doyle counted. Bridwell doubled and Snodgrass came in. Murray was caught sleeping and Devlin fanned, but Merkle, up for the second time this inning, got a double and Bridwell scored in. Drucke fanned and that was Devlin's triple in the sixth scored Snodgrass when two were out. Alberts fanned Merkle then.

Curiosity of scoring is that although Golden and Schlei were the original battery, Ames next to last in the summary, Meyers, who batted for him in the ninth inning before going in to catch, the last. Becker batted for Schlei according to the scoring rules. The pitchers, Drucke, Marquard and Ames, bat as following him, and so do Ames and Meyers. The scores:

[illegible] before the Brooklyns herded [illegible] run across the plate in the [illegible] and if the bleacher malefactors possessed their souls in peace [illegible] longer they would have had their [illegible] home as souvenirs of a [illegible] the tape instead of hurling them [illegible].

[illegible] Brooklyns got away in the lead in [illegible]. They were jogging along [illegible] the first three runs to the good, and all went merry as a marriage bell until the seventh. In that round, however, the conniving Cubs spilled various and sundry deadly hits around the field. The sudden yield included a three bagger by Hofman and a home run by Sheckard over the right field fence. The four runs that resulted clinched the game for the Cubs.

The old Kling-Cole battery was in hot water most of the time in the second game, that is, the Cole half of it was. Still he so tempered wildness with speed and control that he kept the scoring down. In the first inning, when Cole was at the zenith of his wildness, the Shapely Brooklyn Blonds none of them 40 and some married, made two runs off hits by Davidson, Daubert and McEiveen, a wild pitch and a base on balls.

The Cubs made three scratchy hits in the fifth, which, plus a base on balls, enabled them to tie the score. With the bases filled in the sixth Lennox batted for Scanlan, incidentally did nothing, and that brought Rucker into the battle. Rucker with his speed and curves was invincible, and the best the Cubs could hope for was a tie. Both Brooklyn pitchers were well backed by Miller, who threw to bases admirably.

A couple of errors and a brilliantly bonehead play by Tinker settled the game in the tenth. With one out Archer couldn't pick up Wheat's bouncer. Hummel singled to left, and Wheat sprouted at third good running. Coulson hit to Cole, who threw to Kling, and Kiem called Wheat out. Kicks, bottles, police. Dahlen, Wheat and Burch kicked, hoodlums turned on the glassware, which didn't frighten Klem in the least, and finally a couple of cops deployed on the field.

When the tumult subsided McEiveen shot a hot to left which Tinker knocked down. Hummel dashed around from second and Tinker was asleep. He wasn't watching Hummel and made a poor throw in when reason was restored to him. Hummel tallied standing up. The scores:

NEW YORK (A. L.) 5, ST. LOUIS (A. L.) 1.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17. About the only reason to advance for the Browns' defeat this afternoon by the Highlanders is to simply mention the name of Russell Ford. After that there is nothing much to say outside of giving the score, 5 to 1. Malloy, the Browns' young recruit from the Houston, Tex., League team, was hit much harder than the score would indicate. The Browns mixed in a few errors which helped send them down to their ninety-fifth trouncing of the season.

Had not Jimmy Austin fumbled Hartzell's drive in the fourth inning St. Louis would have been shut out. As it was, Ford was kind, and after Graham had flied to Daniels Wallace was passed. This put Hartzell on second, from where he scored on Killifer's single to right. The Highlanders made as many errors as the Browns, but only one of their breaks helped the locals, while all three errors by St. Louis afforded the Highlanders opportunity to score.

Knight, who played short, took an especial liking to Malloy's slants and Knight punched out three hits, two doubles and a single. Daniels, Chase and Austin were also there with a nice collection of safe hits.

The Highlanders got off to a running start in their first when a couple of errors allowed the visitors to tally two runs. Daniels sent a tap up the third base line. Miller threw the ball all the way to the right field gate, Daniels taking third and scoring on Knight's double to the left field fence. Truesdale dropped Laporte's pop, Knight scoring. Laporte in the fourth singled to left. Cree doubled along the third base line, Laporte taking third. Austin singled to left, Laporte scoring. Mitchell hit into a double play, Wallace to Truesdale, to Graham. Cree counting.

After two down in New York's fifth Chase singled to left. Knight doubled to left, Chase scoring. One down in New York's eighth, Knight singled to centre, stole second and took third on a passed ball. Laporte hit to Truesdale and Knight was thrown out at the plate. Cree rolled to Truesdale.
