ART AND RELICS AT AUCTION

CHANCELLOR PRUYN'S COLLECTION TO BE DISPERSED.

Many Rare Objects in the Varied Collection Brought Together by the Widely Known Albanian, With Relics of Cromwell, Washington and Others.

People in many lands know of [illegible] of furniture, art objects [illegible] relics made by the late [illegible] John V. L. Pruyn of Albany. [illegible] had travelled much and [illegible] distinguished persons abroad [illegible] had many visitors. His [illegible] and the associations attached [illegible] the relics and curios often [illegible] conversation in the great house [illegible]. The house changed hands [illegible] and now the collection which [illegible] together from many parts of [illegible] is to be dispersed at auction. [illegible] to take place at the American [illegible] in this city and will probably [illegible] show week.

[illegible] collection is so varied that it is [illegible] characterize it in a word. It [illegible] Oriental porcelains, antique [illegible] some most interesting objects [illegible] ware, books, prints, auto[illegible] paintings, watches, ivories, [illegible]. The historical relics in them[illegible] are as varied as is the collection [illegible].

There is a Cincinnati plate from the [illegible] of Cincinnati china which [illegible] Samuel Shaw of Boston presented [illegible] Washington. Capt. Shaw was the [illegible] secretary of the Order of the Cincinnati. The plate in this collection was [illegible] by Mrs. Pruyn from Mr. Lewis, [illegible] of Nellie Parke Custis, to [illegible] the Cincinnati china went by in[illegible] from Martha Washington.

A neighbor of the Cincinnati plate is [illegible] which Lord Byron presented to [illegible] who first produced "Mazeppa." The head of the cane pictures the "Wild Horse of Tartary" in beautifully carved [illegible]. Another neighbor is Martin Luther's wedding ring. Then there is [illegible] chairs that once belonged to Victor Hugo and there are objects that were sent from the King of Holland's collection in 1849.

A pair of silver cups in the collection were once owned by Lord Darnley and a silk pot was once the property of Oliver Cromwell. There is a small paten from which it is said that Mary Queen of Scots took the sacrament and there is a Book of Hours that is said to have belonged to Catherine de Medici. A pair of silver candlesticks came from the collection of the Duke of Buckingham in 1848 and a [illegible] from the collection of Lord [illegible] which was sold in London [illegible].

Coming back to America, there is an elaborate silver vase bearing this inscription: "By citizens of Philadelphia to their townsman Commodore Decatur Esquire for his virtues, honored for his valor."

There is a copy of the "Strawberry Hill Catalogue" of "Spence's Anecdotes," a [illegible] of De Bry's "Grand Voyages," a rare edition of the Bible, some Grangerized [illegible] and publications of the Bibliophile Society.

There are some scarce prints, copper [illegible] engravings by Hollar, Faithorne and others, some items of Americana, art books and books of reference pertaining to some of the objects in the collection, [illegible] some of the other things included in [illegible] European ceramics and glassware. [illegible] Pruyn himself took special enjoyment in his rare silver and porcelain. It [illegible] been written of him and of his home. [illegible] could enter that house without being struck with the evidence that everything met the eye of the rare taste and [illegible] of its owner. Chancellor John [illegible] Lansing Pruyn was a man of [illegible] as well as of education and [illegible] of considerable wealth and [illegible]lises, he enjoyed the enter[illegible] friends. His door swung [illegible] and foreigner alike. [illegible] received in foreign lands [illegible] in the most generous hos[illegible] his public and private life [illegible] into contact with almost [illegible] personage in this country [illegible] 1877 and few were the men [illegible] that came to the United States [illegible] did not bear a letter of introduction [illegible] Chancellor Pruyn."

WIFE AND WIFE WRITE

And Leave It to the Public to Take the Point of View of Either.

A correspondence between husband and wife was included in the papers submitted to Supreme Court Justice McCall on a motion by Mrs. A. J. Rendle for alimony and counsel fee pending her suit for a separation from Arthur J. Rendle of 18 West Forty-fourth street on the ground of abandonment. Mrs. Rendle said that her husband has an income of $3,500, other property worth $10,000 and real estate worth at $3,000, while Rendle says he has spent all he had on his wife. He submitted to the Court a letter his wife wrote from her home at Sarasota, Fla., after she had returned from a five months' trip abroad. In this letter Mrs. Rendle said:

"My dear, the time has come to write after a year of deliberation I have decided I cannot live with you again. I have been so unhappy during the years of our married life that the freedom has been like the breath of life and I know it has to you. I wished to find out from you about alimony and counsel fee and a settlement of support. It will be best for you to have an interest in your business and pay me an agreed sum. This is free of the annoyance of court proceedings to compel you to, and at the same time put you in a bad light before the world.

"With the best wishes for your happiness and welfare, and I hope things will improve, if they have not done so, I remain."

Mr. Rendle submitted this reply from his wife:

"Your letter of the 20th received, the fine Italian hand of [illegible]. It is not what I would expect. In fact it bristled with hate. It was evidently dictated and was most [illegible] a judge would consider proper for what he [illegible] has spent trying to [illegible] a miserable [illegible]. For [illegible] sake I am willing to agree to pay [illegible] women like you [illegible] of course not [illegible] allow the poor [illegible] times, barring [illegible] all me I should [illegible] authority and [illegible] some of them [illegible] statement free [illegible]. A. J. Rendle."

Since week alimony [illegible].

Grover Shoup appointed [illegible] Brooks as his secretary succeeding Michael [illegible] a few weeks ago to [illegible] salary than $1,800.
