O'Neill Suits for Women

Adams Building—Second Floor

The secret of finding a suit that satisfies your taste and your judgment lies in going where quality is as much considered as style.

At $19.75

We have women's tailored suits made of cheviot, serges and worsteds, and we venture to say that no custom tailor puts better cloth into a $30 or $40 suit or better tailoring into any suit than you will find in these. They are lined with silk serge and interlined, so they can be worn throughout the winter.

At $29.75

There are totally different styles made of broadcloths, basket weaves, cheviots and serges in all the good colors—taupe, green, huckleberry, blue and black; the coats are short and the skirts so various and yet so closely identified with the narrow gored skirt that you have all the style that is and none of the conspicuous lack of it that is found in so many skirts to-day.

In the O'Neill Building.

At $22.50 to $58

There's a very large variety of dresses made of velveteen for afternoons or morning or to wear with the fur coats that will be so much worn this winter. Some of them have chiffon waists and are trimmed with fur.

At $32.50

There are unusually fine suits of heavy cheviots and fancy mixtures, excellently tailored with all sorts of go in the cut; many have the plain tailor-made coats, others are quite elaborate in their trimmings with buttons and satin bands, and all of the skirts are cut over the newest models.

We give SURETY STAMPS and redeem them in merchandise.

J. H. JONES INDICTED.

Accused by Cortland Grand Jury of Grand Larceny and Intent to Defraud.

BINGHAMTON, Oct. 26.—The arraignment of J. Halleck Jones of New York, secretary and treasurer of the J. H. Jones Corporation, on three indictments found by a Cortland Grand Jury created a sensation in business circles in this section. The indictments charge that Jones, through false representations and with intent to defraud, secured the signatures of members of the Marathon Milk Producers Association and committed grand larceny in obtaining the use of the factory of the Marathon Association and a large quantity of milk.

It is alleged that Jones and his corporation induced the farmers to take their milk to the creamery and that the milk and its products were afterward shipped to New York without compensation to the producers. Jones was arraigned before County Judge Joseph E. Eggleston and released on the sum of $5,000. The defendant is to appear at the December term of court to plead to the indictments.

Widow of Defaulter Hankey Turns Over Money to Creditors.

Mrs. Adelbert Hankey, wife of the late J. Frank Hankey of Hornellsville, who was confidential clerk for Frank Dwyer, Treasurer Charles F. Dwyer and Comptroller Coler, called herself as a witness before Referee Mr. Lewis in the proceeding in which the Dwyer estate is suing Mr. Lewis for the return of $100,000 of the money he is said to have received from the Dwyer estate. Mrs. Hankey said that her husband had turned over to her $100,000 in cash, which she had given to the Dwyer estate. Mrs. Hankey said that her husband had told her that he had taken the money from the Dwyer estate. Mr. Lewis said that he had taken the money from the Dwyer estate. Mr. Lewis said that he had taken the money from the Dwyer estate. Mr. Lewis said
