GIANTS WIN--SO DO RIVALS

CLEAN HITTING AND GOOD PITCHING BY AMES.

Reds in Quarrelsome Humor and Three Tired From Field—Cardinals Topple Brooklyns Twice—Phillies Get There in Ninth—Cubs Take a Long Contest.

The relative positions of the first three National League clubs underwent no change yesterday, all three winning, but the Cardinals gained by winning two games from the Brooklyns. The Giant-Cincinnati contest saved the New Yorks as a preparation for to-day's clash with the Cardinals and McGraw's men played first class ball. They took three out of four from the Reds while the Cardinals took three out of four from the Brooklyns. The Phillies cleaned up five straight from the Pirates and the Cubs finished their stay in Boston by winning in the twelfth inning. The results:

New York, 4; Cincinnati, 2.

St. Louis, 4; Brooklyn, 2—First game.

St. Louis, 8; Brooklyn, 5—Second game.

Philadelphia, 5; Pittsburg, 4.

Chicago, 5; Boston, 3.

NEW YORK (N. L.), 4; CINCINNATI, 2.

The Giants gathered up the loose ends yesterday and played baseball far different in quality from the slipshod display of the day before. They played a natty and snappy game and beat the Cincinnatis. They gave a smooth performance, winning by outhitting the Reds. Larry Doyle committed the only error of the day, a trifling misdemeanor as it turned out, and though the Reds had no errors and fielded well it so befell that the Giants were called upon to put more acceleration in their fielding and that in consequence they did more fast fielding than the losers.

Jim Johnstone was umpiring behind the bat again and did not have as peaceful a day as in the game of Tuesday. The Reds were in quarrelsome humor, and three of them were put out of the game. Downey kicked on a called strike in the first inning and was dismissed unceremoniously. A decision at the plate on Mitchell in the sixth, he being called out, culminated in the discharge of Egan and Griffith. "I wasn't talking to you," Egan told Johnstone, but out he went just the same. Griff joined the colony at St. Helena a few moments later, having been involved in the same kick. He went unwillingly and paused en route to comment on the decision disparagingly in all probability to Johnstone and McGraw.

With the removal of Downey and with recourse to pinch hitters, the Cincinnati congress of nations was put on view. The two Cubans took a hand as pinch hitters and Balenti, the Indian and Carlisle alumnus, went to the vacated stand at short. The polygenetic team did not make any deep inroads into the good pitching of Leon Ames at any time, though had the decision in the sixth, which was close, been given in Cincinnati's favor the Reds would have had an even chance of winning.

The hitting of the Giants was hard and clean. Merkle's able use of the sceptre of home just that the number of runs represented by the margin of victory. The Reds did well to keep the New York grist down to four, for in one inning the Giants made a double and single and didn't score. For that matter the Reds had a similar inning in which for them too there was no substance. In the critical sixth, already referred to, the Red melange included a triple, a single and a base on balls and yet no run.

The two hits by the Giants in the second came between outs. Bridwell singled with one out. Fletcher arched a fly to Mitchell. Wilson plodded a two bagger to the right field wall, not long enough to send Bridwell beyond third. As Ames was the next batter the Reds weren't worried, and Ames, true to tradition, failed to do anything heroic. He grounded gently to Hoblitzell.

What with a base on balls to Egan in the third and an error by Doyle the Reds picked up a gift run. Humphries hit to Bridwell for a force of Egan, but Doyle muffed the throw. With two defunct, Johnny Bates singled and scored Egan. The Giants took the lead right away from the Reds. Devore picked a grounder to short which was too precious to be handled by Balenti. Doyle tripled to left centre, scoring Devore, and Ames himself on a wild pitch. Two outs followed and then a home run by Merkle into his favorite left field bleachers.

A two bagger by Mitchell and a single by Grant gave the Reds a run in the fourth with one out. Esmond sent the ball streaking to Fletcher and a peppery double play, with Merkle making a good gather of Doyle's low throw, cut the inning short. Doyle singled in the fifth and was brought home from second by Merkle's two bagger after Snodgrass had sacrificed. Snodgrass didn't run his hit out. While he was fretting over whether it was a foul Humphries picked up the ball and threw to Hoblitzell.

Hoblitzel, first batter in the sixth, flied to Murray. Mitchell hit in the same general direction, but slammed his drive into the concrete façade. Murray chased the sphere bound and Mitchell chased to third. Mitchell might have been held at second if Snodgrass had moved over and backed up Murray. Balenti grounded to Bridwell, Mitchell piled into the plate on his back, and just before or just after he did so Wilson caressed him with the ball. Just before, Johnstone said, Balenti stole second. Grant walked and Egan singled to short, Bridwell spearing the ball and holding Balenti at third. The bases were filled. Mclean forced Egan at second, being one of three times the human skyscraper dwindled away at the plate and left men on bases.

Monsieur Gaspar pitched the last two innings for Cincinnati, and though the first two men up in the eighth smote him for singles there was no run to blot his escutcheon. Murray and Merkle singled in the eighth, the latter's being on a hit and run play and sending Murray to third. Merkle's hit went to Beecher, whose foxy strategy enmeshed Merkle at second. The latter was looking for a throw to third apparently and went tacking along to the middle buoy. Beecher shied the ball into that point quick and straight, and Merkle, who stumbled over the bag, was touched by Balenti. On Bridwell's poke to Gaspar Murray tried to tally and was run down, Beecher drifting in from the suburbs and making the putout.

Ames with the merely incidental assistance of Wilson, retired the Reds in the ninth on his own individual efforts. With an assortment of dips and hooks and other mesmeric ammunition he struck out the three batters who faced him without their so much touching the ball.

ST. LOUIS (N. L.), 4; BROOKLYN, 2—FIRST GAME.

The fighting Cardinals toppled the Brooklyns yesterday and showed to advantage as a hustling, determined crew. The first game was not so strenuous as the second. There was less hitting and less fielding. The Cardinals winning through hitting pitches and through the good pitching of Steele, who was invincible in the one inning.

The Brooklyns did all their scoring in the third inning. A fumble by Hauser and singles by Daubert, Wheat and Coulson gave the Superbas their two counts. They were threatening in any of the other innings though a stop by Hauser and Ellis robbed the home talent of a hit.

The visiting hustlers won the game in the fourth inning. After Koney had singled and been caught dozing by Barger, Evans singled. Mowrey was passed and McIvor popped a safe fly to short left which scored Evans, put Mowrey on third and landed the batter on second. Then did the only Roger, king of the Cardinals, win the game for his people with a safe swipe which sent in two more runs.

The Brooklyns had a comfortable lead in the second battle until the Cardinals turned on the most furious batting rally seen on the Atlantic seaboard this summer. The Brooklyns grabbed two at the start on a triple by Burch, a single by Daubert, a fly by Wheat and another fly by Hummel. With that nucleus to work on all went well until the fifth.

The aforesaid furious batting soiree began with a two bagger by Mowrey. It thrived on a home run by McIvor and ere the smoke had cleared away Bliss had made a single, Ellis and Konetchy doubles and Evans a home run. Evans flicked the bulb over the right field fence and came along with the seventh run of the inning.

The Brooklyns were game and came back with a rally of their own in the sixth. It was part rally and part error making by the Cards. Three runs eventuated, but Brooklyn's run getting ended with the sixth inning spurt. Burke pitched a tidy game after Schardt had been lashed into oblivion.
