MATHEWSON HIMSELF AGAIN

GOOD WORK OF HERZOG ALSO HELPS GIANTS WIN.

Chicago Hoodoo Still at Work on Phillies and Cubs Jump Into First Place—In Game of Fine Pitching Brooklyns Shut Out Reds—Pirates Beat Boston

The Phillies were ranked out of first place yesterday and the Giants moved closer to second position. The Giants took two out of three from the Cardinals, who looked dangerous only in their first game. The victory allowed the New Yorks to gain on the Leaders, who dropped three straight to the Cubs and let go of first place. The Cubs are again in that good position. The Brooklyns won a game of exceptional pitching on both sides from the Reds and so avoided being cleaned up for the whole series. The Pirates won the entire series in Boston. The results:

New York, 10; St. Louis, 2.

Brooklyn, 1; Cincinnati, 0.

Chicago, 3; Philadelphia, 2.

Pittsburg, 3; Boston, 1.

The Cardinal confederation was conquered by the Giants again yesterday, conquered easily and outplayed in every particular. The largest crowd since the erection of the new plant came out looking for a battle between Titans, but there was naught Titanic about the Cardinals. The Giants were far and away the better club and needed only the spur of a one run lead by the Cardinals to unlimber and devastate the Cardinal ranks with volleys of hits.

The rehabilitation of Mathewson and the swagger debut, or redebut, of Herzog were the premier features. Mathewson was himself again, and the Cardinals were not long in discovering that fact. Not only did they have trouble getting to first, but Mathewson pitched himself out of holes with so much resourcefulness and skill that the Cardinals lost heart apparently and didn't play with the fire and buoyancy they have had on tap for some time. They turned their heads homeward last night drooping a bit.

Herzog was received with cheers when he appeared on the field, heartily welcomed to our city after bearing the burden of a year's exile in the province of Boston. He seemed to be delighted to be back among live ones again. McGraw sent him to third base and Fletcher to short and there was lots of dash in that half of the diamond. Maybe the natural exhilaration of a change of venue from Back Bay environments to a regular city quickened Herzog to extra efforts, but anyway he was in the game in all departments. He made two hits, stole a base, made two runs and was fast in the field. An impromptu but vociferous reception followed him to the clubhouse after the game.

Doyle's batting got a wide swath in New York's success. Larry batted in two runs and made two more himself. He pulled Steele's pitching for a single, a home run and a two bagger. His home run was to deep right centre. What helped make this a homer was the fact that Larry tipped off his cap as he was rounding first base. Whenever he sheds his chapeau that way it means he is hitting the high places for the grand tour. Scorers give him a home run without waiting for him to arrive at the plate, and opposing fielders chase the ball merely as a matter of form.

Mathewson, Bresnahan and Hauser all left the game on account of minor injuries. Mathewson was hit on the pitching hand by a pitched ball. Bresnahan hurt his hand stopping a pitch and Hauser was shaken up in a collision at second base. As the game was on ice for Mathewson there was no use in his sticking. Though he pitched several good innings after being wounded as for Bres and Hauser, there was no use in their clinging to a sinking ship.

Only one man saw first in the first three innings, he being Doyle, on the strength of a base hit. In the fourth Higgins was the first man up and walked. Hauser succeeded but on Ellis's hard chip to Fletcher Higgins was run down between second and third. Konetchy whaled a crashing liner to centre right, but Murray grappled for the out.

Devore walked for New York in the fourth, took second on an out, landed at third when Murray muffed Bresnahan's throw and was run down on Meyers's brilliant stop of Snodgrass's severe slam. The scoring began in the fifth. Meyers singled and by venturesome running reached third on Chase's hit to centre. Shipke's base running in Chase's made it possible for Meyers to score on Doyle's sacrifice fly. Rebel stopped on Meyers's throw to Fletcher. The throw was low and drew Fletcher in and the Rebel sauntered past him. Meanwhile Meyers strayed home. As the man up was the pitcher and a weak batter and as there were two outs it was poor judgment for Meyers to throw at all.

Herzog opened New York's memorable scoring session with a safe that Higgins fumbled on Fletcher. Meyers sacrificed a hit to short and Herzog darted home. Mathewson was jet flying the bases. Devore thrust a snoot by to Dolan, who threw to second and doubled Meyers. That how Meyers happened to allow himself to be doubled THE SUN reporter couldn't tell. In the seat in front of him was a large black hat wearing a woman and it was impossible to see through the forest of carrion plumes. However, Meyers was doubled and Fletcher scored on the play. Following came Doyle's bareheaded home run.

The Cardinals threatened trouble in the sixth but Mathewson quieted them with anaesthetic fadeaways and the ice. With one out Hauser singled. Devore injured his shoulder and Bresnahan played a star game in the field. The score:

BROOKLYN, 1; CINCINNATI, 0.

Extraordinary pitching by Nap Rucker and Frank Smith made the Brooklyn-Cincinnati game at Washington Park yesterday unusually interesting. Rucker, with his sinkerball controlled left handed shoots, held Griffith's Reds of All Nations down to a single hit, while Smith, the piano mover, retired the Dahlens with only two safe drives. Brooklyn won by a score of 1 to 0, and the run was scored on fielding misplays by Grant and McLean.

Rucker looked as if he would record a hitless game until two Reds were retired in the ninth inning. Not a sign of a hit had been made up to that time, and when Bob Bescher came to the plate the fans urged Rucker to make a clean sweep. He had one strike and one ball called when he curved the ball over the centre of the pan. Bescher landed on it squarely and it whistled past the Brooklyn pitcher like a Mauser bullet. Hummel made a great attempt to stop the ball as it rolled swiftly over second base. He knocked it down with his bare right hand, but could not recover in time. Bescher, one of the fastest runners in the business, would have beaten Hummel's throw if the latter had been fortunate enough to make a clean pickup, so that the wallop went as a hit and Rucker's no hit aspirations went up in thin air.

Bescher stole second and was left. He was the second Red to reach that bag, as he did the trick himself in the first inning when he walked on balls and was advanced on Marsans's sacrifice, only to be cut down by Bergen's speedy throw when he attempted to steal third.

Rucker gave four bases on balls and received errorless support. Counting Bescher's single and two force hits, therefore, seven Cincinnati batsmen reached first base. Counting free passes and a sacrifice Rucker pitched to only twenty-nine batsmen in nine full innings and only four drives went outside of the infield.

Smith was in his old White Sox form. He had terrific speed and beautiful control of his curve ball. The Brooklyns didn't get their first hit until the fourth inning. Daubert smashed a ripping grounder in the direction of Grant, who made a fine stop while playing deep, but could not get his throw over to Hondzel in time to shut off the runner. Daubert, however, was easily thrown out by McLean when he tried to steal second, a reproduction of a play in which both men figured in the first inning.

Zimmerman opened with a base on balls in the sixth inning but a dazzling double play in which Smith, Egan, Grant and Hondzel took part prevented possible scoring. Daubert hammered a grounder to Grant and was safe on the fumble that gave half was excusable. As Smith was in the act of winding up Daubert dashed for second and kept on to third as McLean made a frantic throw into centre field. Wheat got a base on balls and Hummel landed a shin breaker to Grant. The latter tipped off that half just long enough to lose a chance to stop Daubert at the plate, but he managed to throw out Hummel in the nick of time.

Daubert's run loomed up as big as a church after that, for Rucker put on extra steam and made the visitors look decidedly puny. Zimmerman made the second hit of the game when he pounded a straight ball squarely into centre field for one bag. But he was forced and Mitchell ended the inning by dragging down a towering fly from Rucker's bat. Then came the fatal ninth and Bescher's eleventh hour hit.

When the battle began at 3 o'clock Chief Umpire Klem announced that the rival managers had agreed to have game called at 4 o'clock, no matter how the score might stand at that time. Both managers had to catch trains early trains for the West, but as the game consumed only one hour and eighteen minutes they had ample time to catch their grips. The play was so fast that the final five innings were completed in forty minutes. Manager Griffith coached his team from a seat in the grand stand near the Washington bench. His wife and son Joe were in the crowd. Their enthusiasm over Marsans and Almeida and also short gains when the latter muffed a little pop fout in the eighth inning. That display was clearly not permitted Zimmerman to take another peck at the ball, resulting in Brooklyn's second hit. The score:

HIGHLANDERS ONCE MORE SUBDUE THE TIGERS.

Athletics Beaten by the White Sox, So Detroits Lead Is Not Endangered—Bostons Put Away by the Naps and Washingtons Again Beat for Browns.

Once more the Highlanders subdued the Detroit Tigers yesterday. With Jack Coombs de Lion Warhop on the mound they battled through a fourteen inning game with the leaders, the second extra inning bout of the present series. Detroit's grasp on first place was not weakened appreciably, for the Athletics also lost. The White Sox drubbed them. The Bostons lost in Cleveland and the Washingtons were met for the Browns again. The results:

NEW YORK (A. L.), 8; DETROIT, 7.

Detroit, July 22.—Warhop pitched fourteen innings against Detroit to-day and in the fourteenth he scored a run, coming home on Hartzell's sacrifice fly. It was this run that defeated the Tigers for the third straight game, 8 to 7.

Detroit came from behind, overcame a lead of five runs and tied the score in the sixth. Lafitte opened for Detroit and was knocked out of the box after two and two-thirds innings. Works replaced him with the same lack of success. Then came Willett, and after the sixth a brilliant pitchers' duel took place between the giant from Kansas and the midget Highlander.

Time and again in the extra innings Warhop found himself in deep water, but freed himself by as game an exhibition of pitching as Detroit has seen in many a day.

Chase's terrific batting in the early stages gave the Yanks their lead. In the third with two out and men on second and third he smashed one into deep centre, which went for three bags.

Two more were driven in by the New York manager in the fifth and in the field he played his brilliant game. Stanage was a tower of strength to the Tigers all through and nipped three New York runners who took chances with his arm.

The Tigers tied up the game in the fifth and sixth on long drives by Stanage, Cobb and Crawford, singles by Jones and Shaller and a pass to Delahanty. The score:
