HORSE'S ADIEU TO THE GARDEN

GRAND FINALE TO LONG STRING OF SUCCESSES.

Championships Reserved for Closing Night Interest Spectators—Judge Moore Leads All Competitors—F. Ambrose Clark Thrown, Not Hurt.

With the plaintive strains of "Auld Lang Syne" stealing softly into every nook and corner of Madison Square Garden last night the curtain went down on the Horse Show, and not only did it end the annual event but it brought to a close the reign of the horse in the old building. Whether or not the exhibits which had extended back more than a quarter of a century will be forgotten, there was a consolation to the horse lovers, the society people and the other showgoers in the fact that the grand finale went out in a blaze of grandeur. With the idea before them of making the last session worthy of the occasion, the association reserved a relish for the big throng that went to look on.

For the afternoon and evening there was a programme of twenty-four classes, ten being championships. Eight of these were kept for the night and the remaining two were brought off in the afternoon. These latter were for light and heavy weight saddle horses, and what lent additional importance to the items was that the prizes had been presented by the International Horse Show, London. Six sleek animals and winners in minor classes came out for the heavyweight, and after a lengthy test before the judges the cup and first ribbon fell to Panama, a chestnut gelding owned by Mrs. H. L. Pierce. The lightweight followed, when eight took the banbark. After the usual formalities had been gone through a pair were singled out and stripped for closer inspection. The honors were given to Rosalie, a black mare, the property of W. A. McGibbon.

Had there been such a thing as a grand total championship prize it would have easily been the property of Judge William H. Moore of this city. Before the home-stretch had come in sight last night he had placed such a margin between himself and his rival exhibitors that he could not lose. With over twenty firsts, some seconds and thirds tallied behind his name it would almost take another week of the show for the nearest opponent to draw level.

One of the choicest plums plucked by the Judge was the English hackney challenge cup, a gold trophy valued at $500. The competitive conditions had it that it should be won three times before becoming the permanent property of an exhibitor. Judge Moore scored in 1909 and 1910 with Lady Seaton, and as her ladyship did the trick again the cup is his for good. The other exhibitors to do well in the winning line were E. T. Stotesbury, the Belton Farms, W. A. McGibbon and J. Sumner Draper.

One of the heaviest classes of the afternoon was for hunters, the Maclay cup going with the ribbon to the winner, and it also contributed the sensation to the morbidly curious. F. Ambrose Clark figured among the long string on his gelding Meinawen. At one of the jumps the horse threw Clark clean over his head, and the crowd jumped up thinking there was an accident. The attendants, ring master, bugler and all ran to his assistance and they were pleased to find that he had not a feather taken out of him.

After steadying himself for a while he remounted, but his horse did not catch the judicial eye. The blue fell to H. L. Bell, one of the Long Island hunting set getting the chief honors anyway. Bell rode the gray gelding Pinkun. The foreign and Canadian cracks were out in force, but the best they did was fourth, which was captured by Touraine, a gelding owned by Major Kilgour of the Queens Own Rifles, Canada.

WOMEN MAKE THE SHOW.

Society Attendance Keeps Up to the End.

The Garden was filled in the afternoon and there were the supporters of the harness horses, the saddlers and the hunters. There were many new faces too because some who can't come for the whole week select the last day for their visit when they are able to see the best horses of the various types compete for championships. The evening attendance was large too and that old tradition that Saturday night is an off night is being gradually dispelled and this year it was the best Saturday night in the history of the show.

The Horse Show as a popular institution with those who are looking for entertainment is more successful than ever. The women are largely responsible for that. They have not only taken up the horse and showed their approval of the show by making liberal entries, but morning, afternoon and evening they have attended and watched with critical eyes the working of the judges. They can tell too where sometimes the judges have in their opinion erred in their selection and they can tell why one horse should be placed over another. The women this year have taken their share of the prizes and among the most successful have been Mrs. W. A. McGibbon in saddlers, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bowen with ponies, Mrs. George W. Lederer with her small select stable and Miss K. L. Wilks with her trotters. Their gowns and millinery have been so attractive that each night the entrance to the amphitheatre has been crowded with milliners, dressmakers and their assistants who have been busy making notes.

It has been generally decided among the visitors to the show that Col. P. A. Kenna, who has led the English army officers, is the most popular of the visitors. The Colonel, who is an Irishman, small of stature and light weight, is an aide to King George. He wears the Victoria Cross and the Distinguished Service Order ribbon and as a fighter is quite some man, although to look at him one would not think so. The Colonel has ridden in every class possible and has won some prizes and he has been seen visiting in nearly every box around the arena at some time during the week. He is a lover of the horse and part of his popularity is because he is as kind and considerate of the grooms and troopers as he is attentive to the social set.

Among those who were noticed in the Garden yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. C. Cecil Fitler of Philadelphia, Morton W. Smith, at one time interested in polo ponies and now a yachtsman; W. S. Bitz, promoter of open air shows all over the country; Mrs. Sumner S. Shears, Mrs. Warren Coulsten of Philadelphia, E. S. J. McVicar, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Peters, Elliot C. Cowden, Wilton Lackaye, Charles F. Hart of the Richmond County Hounds, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Newton, George D. Leith, Oliver Harriman, Ernestus C. Gulick, J. Campbell Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McGibbon, Mr. and Mrs. John Gerken, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton W. Cary, Miss Weatherbee, Dr. Salmon, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Morris of Keswick, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. George Gustav Rohlig, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Maddock of Warrenton, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Willock and Franklin J. Willock, who divide their time between Pittsburg and Lakewood; Thomas Plant of Boston, Col. R. G. Emerson of Wellesley, A. W. Davis of the Chamber of Commerce, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Campbell of Middletown, Conn.; J. Sumner Draper of Milton, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Devoe.

Saturday afternoon is usually regarded as children's day and yesterday was no exception to the rule. Children occupied seats in the boxes and were led around the ring and down to the stables and all were anxious to see the thirty inch pony Tootsie, owned by Howard S. Starrett of Brooklyn. There were children in the Harriman box, in the Francis L. Hine box and the Louis Haight box and in several others who were most attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Harriman were present to watch their showy stallion Nala exhibited. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moore occupied their box and among others weree Mr. and Mrs. George G. Heye, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, the Hon. and Mrs. Clifford Sifton, Harvey S. Ladew, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pierce, whose saddle horse Panama won the championship; Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bowen, Col. and Mrs. William Dupont, Harry D. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bull and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia.

THE DAY WITH THE JUDGES.

Championships Add Interest to the Many Awards.

The saddle horse championships were decided at the afternoon session of the show yesterday and one was secured by Panama, owned by Mrs. H. L. Pierce of Leominster, Mass., and the other by Rosalie, owned by W. A. McGibbon of this city. There were two classes for saddle horses, heavy weight up to carrying 200 pounds in one division, and middle and light weight in another division. The conditions require that first and second prize winners in the various classes shall compete for the championship. This condition makes the ribbon of more value and the horse a real champion. Sometimes it has happened that an owner dissatisfied with a decision in one class has withdrawn from the championship event and this has left an element of doubt as to the winner's claim to the title.

In the heavyweight class there were six exhibitors, Avoca, owned by George Rohlig; Dr. Hickey, owned by George S. Wallen of White Plains and entered in the name of the Little Farm; Panama, owned by Mrs. H. L. Pierce; Kildare, owned by Miss H. D. Asterbury; Premier, the English horse, owned by James Dunn, and Sunburst, owned by Mrs. S. F. Haserot. Panama, a very stylish chestnut having lots of quality and all the qualifications of a high class saddle horse, was ridden by Godfrey Preece and shown to the best possible advantage. He secured the championship ribbon, while the reserve was pinned on Avoca.

In the middle and light weight class there were eight contestants. Mrs. McGibbon was represented by her bay mare Rosabel, Mrs. J. A. McSloy of St. Catharines, Ontario, by Confidante; James Dunn of Surrey, England, by Sceptre; J. Parker Kirlin by Queenlight, Edward McLean of Washington by Indian Flower, Mrs. Beatrice Chipchase by Cousin Francis, W. A. McGibbon by Rosalie and Mrs. Thomas J. Regan by Mahli. The judges selected Rosalie for the championship and placed the reserve ribbon on Indian Flower. For this decision there was considerable criticism. Many good judges were of the opinion that Confidante should have won the prize and were very much surprised when she was passed over altogether. Confidante has at various shows this year won more than sixty prizes. In conformation she is the perfect type of saddle horse and she was ably shown at the different gaits by Thomas Ryan.

A very attractive class in the afternoon was for the best collection of three horses shown in single harness. Judge Moore sent three into the ring, Lord Seaton, driven by George Chipchase; Lady Seaton, driven by the Judge, and Robin Hood, driven by W. Hilton. J. Sumner Draper of Milton, Mass., showed three of his newly imported English hackneys, all of which were winners at the last Olympia show. These were Billington Nimble, Satire and Baronet. Edward McLean of Washington showed the Moore castoffs, Pride of Prides and Guardsman and Snapshot. The Draper trio showed very well but were outclassed in every way by the Moore exhibit and the ribbons were placed, Moore, first; Draper, second; McLean, third.

The show opened in the morning with pairs of Shetland ponies not to exceed 46 inches, and Charles E. Bunn of Peoria, Ill., captured the first two prizes, the first going to the black stallion Grandee and the black mare Kancette, and the second to the black stallion Prince Hal and the roan mare Locust. Miss Grace Watt drove her pair, Frolic and Dame Fortune, and secured third prize, while Aguinaldo and Beauty, driven by Miss T. Holm and owned by Howard S. Starrett of Brooklyn, were highly commended.

There were two classes for ponies under saddle. The first was for mares or geldings 12 to 13.1 hands. In this class Payne Whitney sent Carlton Quality into the ring and won the first prize; the second went to Merry Lass, owned by R. Penn Smith of Philadelphia; the third to Donsy, owned and driven by Master Edward R. Gerken, and the fourth ribbon to Peacock, owned by Miss Helen Gertrude Alexander. The second class was for Shetland ponies not exceeding 46 inches and this prize was won by Czar, a bay gelding owned by Mrs. John Gerken, who defeated Gazelle, owned by Charles L. Bunn, and Ester, owned by Miss Helen Starrett, in the order named.

A class that pleased the children immensely was for Shetland ponies to be shown with three of their get. There were five stallions taken into the ring, and their get, which were, some of them, not a year old, ran loose around the arena, cutting up all sorts of capers and enjoying themselves immensely. Miss Alice L. Bunn was represented by a beautiful stallion named Prince of Wales, and his three youngsters very much resembled their sire and easily won in the class. Charles E. Bunn took second prize with Grandee, who did not have quite the quality of the Prince, but whose get was a most promising trio. Ellersie of Elsinore represented the Elsinore Farms and took third prize, while Aguinaldo, owned by Howard S. Starrett, was highly commended.

There was one class of ladies' saddle horses to be ridden by ladies during the afternoon and in this class Avoca, ridden by Miss E. Rasmussen, who later won the reserve ribbon in the heavyweight championships, took the blue. The red ribbon went to Sunburst, a chestnut gelding, owned and ridden by Mrs. S. F. Haserot of Cleveland, Ohio. Doctor Hickey, owned by George S. Wallen of White Plains and ridden by Mrs. M. E. Thompson, won third prize.

Runabout horses made a very attractive showing. In this class the horses counted 50 per cent. and the runabout and appointments 50 per cent., and the horses were judged on conformation, style, all around action, pace and good manners. They showed considerable pace too. Edward McLean of Washington sent Snapshot into the ring, driven by Frank Palmer, and took the blue ribbon. Louis Haight drove Little Prince for Tonzo Sauvage and won second prize. Florham Knight, driven by George Watson, was third, and Honor Girl, well handled by Mrs. J. S. Walsh and driven with considerable daring, was highly commended.

The hunters had a big programme to go through. There were four classes early in the day and four championships to be decided early in the evening. One class that taxed the ability of the horses and riders considerably required that they should ride over an in and out, stop, turn back and ride in again, but this time take the side rails to get out. Then the horses were to ride up to a post and rail fence and without dismounting the rider was to slip out the top rail and jump the remaining bars. The horses were judged on their manners, performance and promptness. There were thirty-six entries in this class and the Dutch horses, which are the best schooled of the jumpers shown this year, were seen at their best. Black Paddy, owned by Baron H. F. M. Van Voorst tot Voorst of the Royal Dutch Hussars, was thoroughly at home at this sort of work. He negotiated all the jumps without a touch, getting in and out of the rig pen without any difficulty and standing quietly while the Baron dropped the bar on the rail fence. He won first prize, and Gravin Ada was highly commended. The second prize went to Mayfair, owned by Lieut.-Col. Herbert C. Cox of Toronto and ridden by Hugh Wilson. Keswick, owned by Edwin H. Weatherbee and ridden by Arthur White, won third prize.

There were two classes for hunters, but the horses were not required to jump, being judged for their conformation, quality, manners and ability to carry the weight. In the heavyweight class Hydro, owned and ridden by the Hon. Adam Beck of London, Ontario, was the winner. Knightsbridge, owned by Hugh Wilson, was second and Duke of Ashley of the Mounted Service School was third. The first prize for the lightweight division was won by Megantic, owned and ridden by Julian Morris, and Banco, owned and ridden by Clarence F. Levin of Avon, N. Y., was second. Silver Fox, owned by B. Lambert Sackett and ridden by F. Ambrose Clark, was third, and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock's Calvinist, ridden by W. Lambert, was highly commended.

Alfred B. Maclay offered a silver cup, value $150, for hunters that had been hunted at least eight times during the last season with some recognized pack of hounds. Performance counted 75 per cent. and conformation 25 per cent. and the horses were ridden by members of a recognized hunt. This was another big class, there being forty-five entries and the jumping was remarkably good. Pinun was the winner and he was ridden by Henry Lawrence Bell of Bay Side. Elmhurst owned by the Hon. Clifford Sifton and ridden by his son, Lieut. Clifford Sifton, Jr., won second prize, a ribbon. The third ribbon went to Gloversville, a chestnut gelding owned by Frederic Bull, and Touraine, owned by Major Joseph Kilgour of the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, was highly commended.

Six classes of harness horses, three single and three pairs, to settle the championships, occupied the attention of the judges at the opening of the evening show, and in these classes winners of first and second prizes in the harness horse classes were obliged to show. The first was for single horses 14.2 to 15 hands, and three entered the ring. These were J. M. Harriman's Lady Dilham, William Foster's Mel Valley King George and Edward McLean's Snapshot. Jack Donnelly drove Lady Dilham and the famous little hackney mare showed to rare advantage. It didn't take long to determine that she was entitled to the championship. Snapshot and King George were tried out together for the reserve ribbon, which was finally bestowed on the English horse, a grand acting animal which should develop into a champion when he is fully matured.

The next class was for horses 15 to 15.2 hands and this time Judge Moore drove Lady Seaton and George Chipchase handled the reins over Lord Seaton. These two were easily the best of their size in the show and Lady Seaton earned the championship and Lord Seaton the reserve ribbon.

There were seven shown in the class for single horses 15.2 hands and over, and of these five were owned by Judge Moore. These were Vida Fayre, Oakwood, Burgomaster, Wallenstein and Robin Hood, just about as fine a class of heavy harness horses as could be found anywhere.

The judge himself drove the best of the string, Robin Hood. From the Avondale Farm was Nala, driven by J. W. Harriman, who can always make this stallion show to advantage. George Watson drove Florham Tip Top. The judges took the place of some of the drivers in order to find out the good or bad qualities of the horses and finally selected Nala for the championship and Robin Hood for the reserve ribbon.

The hardest class in which to decide the championship was that for pairs 14.2 to 15 hands, in which Judge Moore drove Menella and Phyllis and Walter Holton drove the second string, Memento's Pride and Charm. Lady Dilham and Elegant Dilham represented J. W. Harriman and were driven by J. Donnelly. The contest at once became one between Menella and Phyllis and the Dilhams. Menella and Phyllis were in perfect form and moved like one piece of machinery, and they were well driven by the Judge. Lady Dilham showed well but the Harriman team was spoiled because Elegant Dilham lacked the quality of his mate. They were driven around the ring until Lady Dilham was in a lather of foam and then the judges climbed up beside the drivers and watched the horses from that point. And still there was no decision. Each team had its followers in the Garden and each was cheered and applauded as it made the circuit of the ring. Menella and Phyllis won, as they did in a class earlier in the week, and Lady Dilham and Elegant Dilham received the reserve ribbon.

Lord and Lady Seaton, driven by Judge Moore, won the E. T. Stotesbury cup offered in the championship class for pairs 15 to 15.2 hands, and the second ribbon, the reserve, was pinned on Judge Moore's other entry, Lady Auckland and Marquise.

Judge Moore captured his fourth championship and one of the International Horse Show of London prizes in the sixth championship event, which was for pairs over 15.2 hands. He showed Robin Hood and Wallenstein and as a second string Oakwood and Vida Fayre. Mr. Vanderbilt sent Hamlet and Hetles into the ring for this class and the competition was really between the Vanderbilt pair and the Moore second string for the reserve ribbon. Judge Moore won, which makes his total of prizes in six championship events four firsts and four reserves, and Mr. Harriman won two firsts.

August Belmont won the championship cup for hunters with Saracene and the reserve ribbon went to the thoroughbred mare Sally Coombs, owned by F. Ambrose Clark. This cup was offered for hunters judged for their conformation, quality and manners and they were not required to jump. There were seven shown and the others were Hydro, Kingsbridge, Domineer, Megantic and Vanco.

The championships for qualified hunters closed the show. There were three divisions of these, and the heavyweights were judged first. The prize went to Touraine, owned by Major Kilgour of Toronto, and Black Paddy, owned and ridden by Baron H. F. M. Van Voorst tot Voorst of Belgium, took the reserve ribbon. In the middleweight division there were six contestants and Sir Edward, owned by the Hon. Adam Beck of London, Ont., was the winner, with Elmhurst, owned by the Hon. Clifford Sifton, in second place. In the lightweight division there were five. Cleveland, owned by the Hon. Clifford Sifton and ridden by Jack Hambleton, fell at the rails and Hambleton was hurt so that he could not continue the contest. Algoma of the Blenheim Hunt, Baltimore, won the cup, and the reserve ribbon went to Miss Celestine Hitchcock's Coronet.
