WOLVERTON IN THE THICK

Sets Example to Beaten Charges —Scores a Run and Fields Faultlessly.

Et tu, Russell! The Highlanders had in their most successful pitcher against the Clevelands yesterday, but the revivified Naps greeted him with a broadside and won the game. The Washingtons, who are outdoing themselves, kept their slate clean in the West by handing another trouncing to the White Sox, the Griffithites climbing to third place. The Detroits were beaten by the Red Sox and fell to fifth place, the Clevelands taking possession of the fourth berth. The Athletics outplayed the tail enders. It is a good race in the American League among the first six clubs, and a somewhat nip and tuck conflict between two more for eighth place.

CLEVELAND, June 6.—Harry Davis's buccaneering crew of Naps to-day made another old hoodoo walk the plank into the sea of dismal defeat. The hoodoo of defeat was Russell Ford of the Highlanders, who for moons beyond number had been one of the humblers-in-chief of the Cleveland team. In consequence of this piratical act, Cleveland for the second time in two days won from New York, 8 to 3. Cleveland's baseball thirsty band of adventurers did not have Ford's hands tied, as true pirates would have done, but Russell's good right arm might almost as well have been bound behind, for all the good it did. The Naps garnered twelve hits from the delivery of the eminent spitballer. Four of these safeties were good for two bases. Only two of the hits came at times when they did not aid in producing runs. As, while this hitting was being done, Ford delivered a wild pitch at a most inopportune time, and the Yankees made three errors, also inopportune, the size of the Cleveland score is not to be wondered at.

New York had to face an entirely different proposition in the person of one Fritz Blanding. He proved the tightest of the tight for the first seven innings, in that time but three hits were collected by the Kilties, and, owing to brilliant fielding, but one man was left on base. Blanding loosened up in the final two sessions, and New York then drove in three runs by reason of four hits and Blanding's only base on balls. It was a bit of futile struggling, but showed that Harry Wolverton has a bunch of game fighters.

Hal Chase, the peerless one, again was in the limelight. He continued his ragged playing afield by twice dropping throws to which he should have frozen. One of these errors was laid to Stump, because his throw on O'Neill's grounder in the fourth inning was high, but it might very well have been considered the fault of the first baseman. Still, Hal somewhat redeemed himself by getting two of New York's seven hits, one of them a double. The two were Chase's second and third safe wallops of the present trip.

Big Ed Sweeney caused several thrills of surprise yesterday when the Naps stole six bases. To-day not a base was stolen on him and he flagged three Naps who assayed to make the middle station. In addition he made three great catches of high, wavering fouls. He retired the first two men in the second inning in this fashion. Then, however, came one of Chase's errors and two Nap runs followed.

Manager Harry Wolverton showed that he is a peppery little scrapper by getting into the game himself in the sixth he batted for Daniels, whose swatting efforts have been pitiable. He then went to third base, chasing Hartzell to Bert's place in right. The manager did not get any hits, but his walk in the ninth resulted in a run. His work afield amounted to catching Birmingham's difficult foul and retiring the side in the seventh inning, and an assist on Ball's grounder in the previous inning.

Cleveland scored its first tally in the first inning. After Graney had walked and perished in an attempt to steal, Olson beat out a hit to Hartzell and on Lajoie's single scored all the way from first, a pretty bit of base running. Two more came in the second, on Chase's error with two down, Blanding's double, and Graney's single. Another pair resulted in the next inning, when Jackson singled and Lajoie doubled, the former scoring on the hit and the latter going to third on a wild pitch and home on Peckinpaugh's sacrifice fly to Zinn. That was all until the seventh, when O'Neill, first man up, singled. Blanding followed with a Texas Leaguer to left. Olson doubled along the left foul line, scoring O'Neill. Jackson drove Blanding home with a single.

After seven innings of too much Blanding, the Yankees tallied twice in the eighth. Gardner, first man up, singled and went to third on Chase's double. He went home and Chase to third on Stump's infield hit. Chase scored, too, when Sweeney hit into a double play, Peckinpaugh to Ball to Lajoie. Ford fanned. A lone tally came in the ninth. Wolverton walked Hartzell fouled out to Olson. Chee singled, the manager going to third. Wolverton scored on Zinn's sacrifice fly to Jackson. Gardner ended proceedings by falling victim to Blanding's teasers.

TWO HOMERS OFF ED WALSH.

Youngster Gandil and Walter Johnson the Bludgeoners.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Walter Johnson and Chick Gandil drove the ball over the left field fence as incidents of the 9 to 1 win of the Senators over the White Sox to-day. It gave Washington the second straight victory in Chicago. Gandil polled his homer in the third with none on while Johnson hit over the fence in the seventh, when Ainsmith was standing on second. Both hits were made with Ed Walsh on the slab. Later the Sox pitcher kicked himself out of the game when Umpire O'Loughlin called a balk. Musser, a youngster, started for Washington, but was relieved by Johnson in the sixth, with the bases filled and none out.

Red Sox Wield Stick Against Veteran From Very Start.

DETROIT, June 6.—The Boston Red Sox took to-day's game from the Tigers by a 5 to 2 score, touching up Mullin for eleven hits, three coming in the first inning, on which three runs scored. Sensational fielding by Speaker and Hooper saved O'Brien on several occasions, the Tigers getting but seven safe whacks.

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—Pelty had nothing with which to fool his opponents to-day and was removed from the game in the seventh inning after the Athletics had won, score 7 to 2. NOTES OF THE DIAMOND.

Here it is only the first week in June and the Giants have a fat lead of 8½ games.

Wait until the Highlanders get to St. Louis! So long as the Browns remain in the league all is not lost.

The Boston Wardmen have dropped seven straight, but that is a mere incident in the career of a tailender.

The Reds promise to achieve the doubtful honor of having had more runs scored against them in two games in one season than any other team extant. Twenty-three for the Pirates plus twenty-two for the Giants make forty-five. Fromme started both games for the Reds.

Coombs was going along nicely for the Athletics, but struck a snag in St. Louis.

When the Brooklyn game was over on Wednesday the fourth inning was being played at the Polo Grounds. The games at the Polo Grounds lately have been inordinately long, but the 3:50 votes are coming in fast.

There have been three home runs at the Polo Grounds in the last three days—Meyers, Snodgrass and Fletcher. The last two were inside the playing field.

One of the things claimed for the White Sox is that they have the best playing leader in the American League. Scanning the broad field of playing leaders, consisting of Callahan, Stahl and Stovall, one is inclined to agree with the claim.

The Washingtons just now are the speed of the American League. They have won their last seven games.

It looks strange to see the two chief contenders of last year, the Athletics and Tigers, both in the second division in the third month of the race.

Chase made two hits yesterday, the best batting he has done in some time. He has been very slow to strike his gait with the stick this year.

Accompanying the considerable amount of loose and erratic ball playing this season has been a scarcity of games which were well played on both side.

PERTINENT FACTS IN MARQUARD'S 11 WINS

Opponents Have Been Able to Average Only Two Runs a Game.

DETAILS OF RUBE'S WORK

Big Scoring Contests of the Year in the Two Major Leagues.

In all the pitching done by Rube Marquard this year, which is a bit more than is represented by his record of eleven wins and no defeats, only twenty-two runs have been made off him by opponents. Marquard has pitched in two games besides the eleven. One of these was a defeat for the Giants, which was charged against Mathewson, Marquard pitching only part of an inning, after Ames and Wiltse had been retired. The other was a victory for the Giants, Marquard acting as a rescuer and relieving Tesreau, the former pitching one inning and the latter getting credit for the victory.

Twenty two runs in eleven games and parts of two others is at the worst an average of only two a game, and the point in that connection is that, even if his mates have often provided a lot of runs for him and so made his work that much easier, the Rube nevertheless has done his full share by keeping opposing tallies down to a small average. Right through the eleven games runs the pertinent fact that he has done his share in taking care of the enemy. A total of 77 hits has been made off Marquard, and the small proportion of runs for other teams shows that what hitting there has been off Marquard has not been profitable, in which inability of hhostile parties to bunch hits surely plays no small part.

Another feature of his great effectiveness of Marquard this year is the far better control he has than he had before he found himself. That is a big item in his rise to eminence. The figures prove his good control in several ways. Total passes issued by him are only twenty-six, between two and three a game. Furthermore, he has made only one wild pitch this season and hit only two batsmen.

The full list of games in which Marquard has pitched this year, showing opponents' total number of batters who faced him and other details are as follows, the games of April 20 and May 3 not counting in his record. These two were respectively won by Tesreau and lost by Mathewson. The table follows:

	ab.	h.	r.	hb.	bb.	so.	wp.
April 11, Brooklyn	27	3	0	0	3	3	0
April 16, Boston	33	6	2	0	0	5	0
April 20, Brooklyn	3	0	0	0	1	5	0
April 24, Philadelphia	37	7	4	0	4	5	0
May 1, Philadelphia	28	6	0	0	1	9	0
May 3, Philadelphia	3	0	0	0	0	0	0
May 7, St. Louis	35	9	2	0	2	5	0
May 11, Chicago	39	9	3	1	3	6	0
May 16, Pittsburg	33	4	1	0	1	3	0
May 20, Cincinnati	34	6	0	0	2	2	0
May 24, Brooklyn	38	8	3	0	4	1	0
May 30, Philadelphia	36	9	1	0	2	7	1
June 3, St. Louis	37	9	3	1	2	6	0

Big scoring games have attracted the attention of the fans a good deal lately, largely because several times over twenty runs were scored by one team. Opponents twice so far have made over twenty runs against the Reds, the Pirates and Giants each doing it. However, games in which one side made twelve runs or more have not been as numerous this season as last. There were eighteen up to this time last year in the American League and sixteen in the National. Including the contest of June 5, there have been fourteen of these games in each of the big leagues this year.

The scores of these battles with the winning team's hits and losing pitchers are as follows:

The National Commission yesterday sent out the following:

"Investigation having established that the Ridgewood club, operating in and around Greater New York, is harboring ineligible players all National Agreement clubs are hereby warned under penalty of a severe fine against violating the laws of organized baseball by arranging and playing games with such club or with any club which shall engage in games with the Ridgewood club until this order is revoked."

The Giants have won 32-39 of their games and if they keep on at that rate they will win 126 games, beating the record made by the Cubs by ten games. It is asking a good deal of any ball team, no matter how strong—or how weak opponents—to keep on at the clip the Giants have been maintaining; and to surpass the Chicago record of 116 victories is the stiffest sort of a task. It isn't so much that other teams are likely to interfere by their own improvement as that a team must be able to withstand a strain of keeping on edge all the time to keep from slumping. There's the wear and tear of constant winning and the high pressure that goes with it to withstand. Just how strong has been the Giants' playing may be appreciated better by noting that they have won the equivalent of five-sixths of every series; that is, their average of victories for each of the twelve series they have completed is 10-12. A driving pace indeed, and yet they don't appear to be playing under forced draught.

OARSMEN NEARLY SWAMPED.

Harvard Crew Meets Squall, Hustles Ashore—Yale Speeds Up.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 6.—Harvard's crews had a close call from being swamped this morning owing to the southeaster that was kicking up white caps along the course. Jim Wray, in his single, was also driven off the river while coaching, his craft being well filled when he reached the float.

The wind was still fresh at 6 o'clock this evening when the Crimson squad started out, with Wray in advance, again in the single. A detour was made along the shore to Cow Point, thence to the half mile flag opposite Red Top and an hour's practice was given the oarsmen, the principal work being racing starts. The two varsity fours and the freshman quartette had a lively scrap for an eighth of a mile, all three crews rowing a high stroke, the first varsity four winning out by half a boat length.

MacVicar, at No. 3, in Harvard's freshman eight, broke an oar while attempting a racing start, and this delayed the crew's practice for several minutes. Fuller, bow in this boat, is on the sick list. Storrow, a substitute, taking his place. Withington, another substitute, was rowing again this evening in Capt. Trumbull's stead at No. 5. Dr. Ladd, who has looked after the health of the Harvard men at Red Top for several years, was a visitor at camp to-day.

The veteran Yale coach, Bob Cook, is not in first class health, having caught cold since he arrived at Gales Ferry.

"I did not care to go aboard the launch to-night," said Mr. Cooke, "as the rain would not do my cold any good. I just took some of the men out in the pair oar and kept close to quarters."

Jim Rodgers, coached the crews, which were compelled to row in smooth water above the clubhouse, from shore with a megaphone. The steamer Yale Bee put out as usual with a few visitors, among them W. W. Skiddy and George St. John Sheffield of the rowing committee, Dr. Richard Harrison, a classmate of Bob Cook in 1876; Jack Goetchius, an old Yale oar, and A. De Witt Cochrane, who came from New York in his power yacht Reliable. Yale's varsity eight is rowing in good form and has improved considerably since the arrival from New Haven. There were no changes in any of the makeups to-day.

The boats, which have been tendered Yale-Harvard boat race officials for use on race day, were announced to-day by Chairman Frank V. Chappell of the regatta committee. The referee's boat will be August Belmont's fast steamer Scout. The regatta committee will be provided with Charles H. Hoyt's Greyling. Gen. Henry A. Bishop's steamer Akola will be the yacht used as the judges' boat.

GRIFF MIGHT SCENT SIGNALS.

Washington Manager Ought to Hear About Giants.

If Clark Griffith could go up against the Giants' terrific slugging at the Brush Stadium there isn't a doubt that he would nose around in search of a signal tipping bureau located under the centre field seats. Griff, because of the ridiculous charges which he has frequently made, is the laughing stock of the baseball world. Turn about is fair play, so that some of these fine days, if the Washingtons keep on winning, Griff will be compelled to deny that he is onto the signs of the other teams.

Without Chance, Kling, Overall and a few other men who helped to win championships, the Cubs made up as they are just now, do not look formidable. Saier, who is trying to fill Chance's shoes, is a good fielder, but he cannot hit. Evers, once a dashing second baseman and the life of the team, seems to be playing machine ball and is rapidly going back. The pitching department is fair in quality, but nothing more. Were it not for the great work of Tinker, Zimmerman, Schulte and Archer the Cubs, it is believed, would be wallowing in the second division. Chance is doing wonders with the material in hand, which strengthens the general belief that he is one of the best managers in the game. But he'll not win the pennant this year, though he may finish not far from the top of the heap.

It turns out that Shortstop Jack Martin of the Highlanders, who was hit under the left eye with a swiftly pitched ball, delivered by Walter Johnson of the Washingtons, has been suffering from slight concussion of the brain. Martin's physician says that if the ball had landed two inches higher the young player would have been instantly killed. Martin, in spite of pains in his head and frequent dizziness, is with the Highlanders in the West against the wishes of his medical adviser.

Brennan Fined for Oiling Ball.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 6.—President Lynch of the National League to-day wired President Horace Fogel of the Philadelphia National League Club that Pitcher Brennan of the Quakers had been fined $10 for expectorating on a new ball in Tuesday's game between the Phillies and the Pittsburg Pirates.

During the game on Tuesday numerous protests were made by Pittsburg, who
